U. S. Demands Russians Release Yale Professor

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Foy Kohler today demanded the immediate release of Prof. Frederick C. Barghoorn, Yale University professor held by the Russians on spy charges.

The ambassador spent 15 minutes with Valerian Zorin, deputy foreign minister. He also demanded the right to see Barghoorn and to have the charges against him given in detail.

In a brief statement, the embassy said the ambassador "registered a strong protest at the completely unwarranted arrest and detention of Prof. Barghoorn and the unjustifiedly long period of time between his arrest and notification of the American Embassy by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs."

The Foreign Ministry announced the arrest of the visiting professor Tuesday, said it took place several days ago but gave no other information.

Barghoorn, professor of political science at Yale, has written a number of books critical of the Soviet system and was here on a tourist visa preparing to write a further book.

He was last seen by an embassy official on Oct. 31 when he came for drinks to the apart-

Hardest hit was a three-story museum that housed priceless heirlooms from the city's pioneer days.

Dramatic action by 300 firemen saved the Cliff House Restaurant itself. Flames roared to within 50 feet of the restaurant building, which in the past has burned down twice.

The front and roof of the museum blew out in an explosion of flame, knocking one fireman off a high ladder. He suffered a fractured shoulder, the most seriously injured among 16 firemen otherwise treated for smoke inhalation, lacerations and bruises. No one else was hurt.

Bloody New Revolt Put Down by Iraq

By WEBB MCKINLEY

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iraq's Ba'Ath Socialist party government apparently battled down a bloody attempt at revolution today believed led by an ousted minister.

After a morning of combat, including jet plane attacks on Baghdad's presidential palace and the Al Rashid military camp, the capital was reported quiet at midday.

Eastern States Get Snow With Autumn Weather

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Parts of Maine and Michigan lay under coats of snow today and three other states braced for expected snow storms as an aging autumn threw a blustery tantrum.

Houlton, Maine, reported a 5-inch snowfall. In Houghton, Mich., 2 inches were reported.

Heavy snow warnings were issued for northeastern Ohio, northwestern Pennsylvania and extreme western New York with possible accumulations of 4 to 6 inches or more.

Lighter snowfalls were reported in the west.

Snow flurries occurred in many areas, and measurable rain fell in isolated sections.

In Erie, Pa., .23 inch of rain was reported and .31 inch dampened Marquette, Mich. South Bend, Ind., and Buffalo, N.Y., each reported .08 inch of rain and numerous areas had a few hundredths of an inch.

The mercury declined over most of the country except for the southern coastal area.

The northern and central portions were generally in the 20s to the 40s, with a few readings between 10 and 20 in the northern Plains.

In the south, the 40s and 50s prevailed with a few 60s in the Deep South.

Council Adopts Peterson Area Land Use Plan

Suggested land uses within air approach zones at Peterson Field were formally adopted by City Council Tuesday.

Altho the restrictions prohibit places of public assembly in the zones, Mayor Harry Hoth said this will not apply to School District No. 11's proposed Mitchell High School.

"The city has absolutely no jurisdiction over where the schools want to build," Hoth said.

Junior Colleges Say They Have Lost $1.2 Million

DENVER (AP) — Junior college officials told Gov. John A. Love Tuesday that the schools have lost $1.2 million since a district court struck down a junior college finance law.

The law declared unconstitutional was one which required counties outside of junior college districts to contribute $500 per student to the junior college the student attends.

The case is now before the Colorado Supreme Court.

The governor met with officials representing junior colleges at Lamar, La Junta, Trinidad, Sterling, Grand Junction and Rangely. They laid before him their problems—mostly financial—and requested some help from the state.

Love told newsmen that the college officials asked him to put in his call to the next legislature some approach that would place their problems before the lawmakers. But the governor said that any such message would be premature unless the high court ruling is handed down by that time.

Love added that he'd been told that the court expects to have a decision soon.

The governor said officials told him that last year alone the colleges lost $782,965 in revenue due to the court decision. No figures were available for this year.

He said that some counties were still collecting the $500 per student but were holding the money pending the outcome of the court case. Other counties, he said, are no longer collecting.

The last legislature appropriated $455,000 as a loan to tide the junior colleges over for one

CC Announces $4 Million Operating Budget

Colorado College today reported a $4-million operating budget for the first time in its history.

Robert W. Broughton, vice president and treasurer, said the operating budget has more than doubled in the past seven years.

"Operating expenditures for the 1956-57 fiscal year totaled $1,695,000," he said.

About half of the 1963-64 budget is earmarked for salaries for faculty and staff. This year, salaries will come to more than $1,916,000.

More than $2,450,000 has been allocated for general education expenditures for the current fiscal year, which started July 1 at the independent liberal arts college.

The college has a scholarship budget of $338,000 this year, Broughton said. Some 318 students already have received scholarships amounting to $319,000. More than half of them are from Colorado.

Auxiliary enterprises at the college account for more than $1,207,500. This includes operation of the dormitories and dining halls, Rastall Center, the bookstore, and other ventures.

The operating budget does not include money spent on construction or other capital expenditures, Broughton said.

Last year, for example, the college spent more than $1,300,000 on the campus building program.

Construction has tapered off to about a half million dollars for the current fiscal year, he said.

Nobody Will Profit From Biggest Jewel Robbery

By BERNIE GOULD

NEW YORK (AP)—The bandits who pulled off Manhattan's $3-million jewel robbery apparently netted not one carat. A group of construction workers found the stolen gems in a hijacked car and, police said, it was like playing grab bag in King Solomon's mines.

No one may profit from the biggest jewel theft in the nation's history. Chalk that up to an incompetent getaway driver and a talkative worker.

Five construction men were arrested Tuesday night. Police said they recovered about $250,000 worth of the loot from the five. Some of it was buried on a Gettysburg, Pa., farm only about a mile from former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's home.

With that find, police announced that 90 per cent of the treasure had been recovered. They continued to question other construction workers in hopes of finding the remaining 10 per cent.

Still at large are the bungling bandits, who had to abandon their loot-laden car only a block from the robbery scene. It kept stalling because the driver could not cope with its old-style floor shift, police said.

The car, hijacked from a jewelry messenger service in midtown Manhattan last Friday, was found by police several hours later.

Police said the bandit driver, dressed in a police uniform, had gotten as far as a demolition site on W. 41st Street when the station wagon's motor conked out again. He appealed to a construction worker to help him start the car.

The worker said no, apparently relishing the sight of a policeman caught in such a predicament. The frustrated bandit fled.

Then, police said, that construction man, Philip Rossi, 31, drove the car onto the demolition site. He discovered the jewels and gold bars, called fellow demolition men over and, as po-

American Drifts Across Pacific on Balsa Raft

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP)—A slightly built 70-year-old American looked forward today to the comfort of a hotel bed after drifting across the Pacific from Peru to western Samoa aboard a balsawood raft.

"After 130 days at sea I'm looking forward to spending a few nights in comfort at a hotel," said William Willis of New York, a sailor for 53 years.

Willis, alone except for two cats, landed at Faleula, western Samoa, Monday night. He had covered more than two-thirds of a planned 12,000-mile trip from Callao, Peru, to Sydney, Australia. He left Callao July 4.

He planned to have his 33-by-18-foot raft—named "Age Unlimited"—towed to Apia, six miles from Faleula, for repairs. Then he plans to continue his voyage to Sydney.

The raft was damaged in a storm and Willis reported he had to sail most of the trip without either of his two rudders. They began breaking up about 500 miles out of Callao.

"I thought about returning and making another balsa raft, but it was too late. Since then I have been drifting at the mercy of wind and tides."

Dispatches from Faleula reported that Willis was fit and happy but disappointed that the storm forced him to take cover in western Samoa.

"Men of my age have 16 different kinds of heart diseases, but not me," Willis said proudly as he conducted a reporter on a tour of his neat raft.

The raft has a small cabin but Willis said, "My living quarters are right here in the open on deck beside the wheel. The cabin is merely a place where I kept my sextant and things like that."

In 1954 Willis sailed a raft from Callo to Samoa — 6,700 miles more than the distance covered by six Scandinavians on the raft "Kon-Tiki" in 1947.

Willis detailed his exploits about his first trip in a book "The Gods Were Kind."

Willis said before leaving Callao he was making his second trip—and a longer one—to demonstrate that senior citizens should not be forced to retire at 65.

Sukarno Takes Over Post of Premier, Too

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—President Sukarno named himself premier of Indonesia today, apparently to take tighter control of the day-to-day government operations.

Sukarno, who is president for life, revived the premier's post. It had been abolished in 1959, when Sukarno reimposed the 1959 constitution.

Vatican Council Voices Right To Freedom

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A draft decree declaring that all men have the right to religious freedom today was reported ready for presentation to the Vatican Ecumenical Council.

The document may be one of the last major decrees to go before the 2,300 prelates before the second session of the council adjourns Dec. 4.

The decree, part of the schema on ecumenism, was drafted by the Secretariat for Promoting Christian Unity.

It expresses the view that a person is free to follow the dictates of his conscience, that no one should be harried because of his religious views, and that a particular faith should never be forced on anyone.

The decree, if approved, will be the first clear and authoritative statement of the Roman Catholic Church's position on religious liberty.

Lack of such a statement has sometimes been a source of friction between Roman Catholics and Protestants. In predominantly Catholic Spain and some Latin-American countries, for example, Protestants have accused the Church of being responsible for restrictions on their activities.

Catholic leaders usually blame cultural-political factors, and individual acts, for such situations and say these do not represent Church policy. But such incidents have fostered a growing demand within the Church for a firm stand in support of religious freedom.

'Better Morale' Is Reported in Viet Nam War

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The full impact of South Viet Nam's military coup on the anti-Communist war there is expected to show itself by Easter, U.S. officials said today.

Defense authorities reported on Tuesday a "moderate favorable trend in the morale and determination" of South Vietnamese troops in the two weeks since the overthrow of the regime of President Ngo Dinh Diem.

But they said there is no basis for judgment yet on whether the ousting of the Diem government has altered the complexion of the war to suppress Communist guerrillas.

Small Quake Reported in Pueblo Area

PUEBLO (AP) — Pueblo residents reported window-rattling tremors Tuesday and a seismograph reading confirmed there had been a small earthquake in the vicinity.

The quake is not known to have caused any damage.

It was recorded as of Magnitude 2 on a seismograph operated at Bergen Park, 25 miles west of Denver, by the Colorado School of Mines. Prof. John C. Hollister, chairman of the geophysics department at Mines, said earthquakes of that size are felt, if at all, only in their immediate vicinity.

The seismograph showed the quake occurred at 2:28 p.m.

Critical Tailwind Accompanies U. S. Junketing Solons

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional junketeers who took the headwaiter of the House restaurant with them to Paris and London have flown home early on a tailwind of criticism.

Like their trip, their arrival Tuesday night was first class. A fleet of 20 Air Force station wagons and drivers were on hand to chauffeur them home from Andrews Air Force Base, Md. where an air Force jet landed them.

Also on hand to greet the party—10 congressmen, eight of their wives, two senators' wives, and seven staff members—were newsmen and photographers. However, there were reports the newsmen were not entirely welcome.

An Air Force officer who preferred not to be identified said a request had come from the plane that the newsmen and photographers be kept from the landing area.

A base public information officer, however, said "no effort on anybody's behalf was made to impede any media."

There was not much effort to help, either, in efforts to pry loose an official list of those on the trip. But a congressional source said Rep. Wayne L. Hays' hometown aide, Parnell Anderson, Flushing, Ohio, was

A six-year old boy was in critical condition this morning after being hit by a car in the 3100 block of W. Colorado Ave. Tuesday evening.

Girl Deluged With Gifts After Surgery

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Christine Simko, 14, whose right leg was amputated Monday because of a malignant tumor which threatened her life, is being deluged with mail, flowers and gifts.

Her mother, Lily Simko, was with Christine all day and most of Tuesday evening.

Kennedy to Make Strong Pitch for Flights to Moon

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — President Kennedy reportedly will make a strong pitch for the U.S. man-to-the-moon program during a visit to this missile test center Saturday.

Reliable sources said Tuesday the President will interrupt a weekend at Palm Beach and fly to Cape Canaveral.

No launchings are scheduled while Kennedy is on the cape.

The President will tour Merritt Island, the 7,000-acre tract adjacent to Cape Canaveral where facilities for launching astronauts to the moon are being built.

He may find some workers idle. About 600 construction workers of 4,000 employed on Merritt Island honored picket lines established Tuesday by photographic workers involved in an unauthorized strike against Radio Corp. of America.

Kennedy also will inspect launching pads where:

—A Titan 2 rocket is being groomed for the first unmanned orbital mission in Project Gemini, the United States' next man-in-space program which will perfect techniques for the Project Apollo manned lunar landings.

—A Saturn rocket is being readied for its first two-stage test launching in December. Sat-

Threats to Kill Is Charged by Young Witnesses

Two sisters testified in District Court Tuesday that Lee Carmer Love on trial for indecent liberties threatened to kill them should they ever tell.

In a two-count charge Love, 56, of 1913 W. Cucharras St. is alleged to have made an indecent attack on each girl, one 6 and the other 11, April 30.

First witness called by the prosecution was the 6-year old. She told the court that towards the end of June she saw the defendant at her home and then went out to the front where his car was parked.

At his invitation she got into the front seat, said the child, where he took indecent liberties with her.

Her mother than appeared, the witness said and she got out of the car. She alleged Love said, "If you tell anyone I'll kill you." In reply to a question put by Deputy District Attorney Jack Roeser, the child

By ENDRE MARTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union's arrest of Yale Prof. Fred C. Barghoorn on spy charges casts a dark cloud on forthcoming Moscow talks on cultural exchanges, a U.S. source said today.

The high-ranking source, who said he was rather pessimistic about the outcome of the negotiations anyway, added that Soviet charges against the 52-year-old specialist on Soviet affairs will not make negotiations any easier.

Barghoorn's plight will be a thorn particularly in the negotiations dealing with the exchange of students and professors.

Barghoorn was connected with the exchange program as a member of the national executive committee of the Inter-University Committee on Travel Grants.

This group handled such matters as placing of Soviet students in this country, screening American students going to the Soviet Union and, in general, determining conditions together with the Soviet Ministry of Education under which the exchange program is carried out.

The Soviet Foreign Ministry notified the U.S. Embassy in Moscow Tuesday that Bar-

Some U.S. Areas Off Limits For Travel by Russians

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a move to curb spying, the United States has put some 11 per cent of the country off limits to envoys of Soviet satellite nations.

In the past, these diplomats were allowed to travel freely.

The new orders, explained in diplomatic notes Tuesday, also kept in force travel restrictions on Soviet citizens, although some new areas were opened and others closed.

About 26 per cent of the country is off limits to Soviet travelers and a like percentage of the Soviet Union is off limits to American travelers.

The new restrictions—which don't apply to tourists—came after the Defense department had insisted that the travel of the various diplomatic representatives of Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Romania and Bulgaria be restricted.

Many of them, defense officials argued, were flagrantly peering about in sensitive military areas and probably feeding information to Moscow, whose own envoys are barred from the areas.

The U.S. counties listed as off limits in the notes were carefully selected after several Defense and State Departments.

The State Department is understood to have wanted to drop all restrictions on diplomats from the satellites to encourage them to see and understand the United States.

Lighter snowfalls were reported in the west.

Snow flurries occurred in many areas, and measurable rain fell in isolated sections.

In Erie, Pa., .23 inch of rain was reported and .31 inch dampened Marquette, Mich. South Bend, Ind., and Buffalo, N.Y., each reported .08 inch of rain and numerous areas had a few hundredths of an inch.

The mercury declined over most of the country except for the southern coastal area.

The northern and central portions were generally in the 20s to the 40s, with a few readings between 10 and 20 in the northern Plains.

In the south, the 40s and 50s prevailed with a few 60s in the Deep South.

Council Adopts Peterson Area Land Use Plan

Suggested land uses within air approach zones at Peterson Field were formally adopted by City Council Tuesday.

Altho the restrictions prohibit places of public assembly in the zones, Mayor Harry Hoth said this will not apply to School District No. 11's proposed Mitchell High School.

"The city has absolutely no jurisdiction over where the schools want to build," Hoth said.

Junior Colleges Say They Have Lost $1.2 Million

DENVER (AP) — Junior college officials told Gov. John A. Love Tuesday that the schools have lost $1.2 million since a district court struck down a junior college finance law.

The law declared unconstitutional was one which required counties outside of junior college districts to contribute $500 per student to the junior college the student attends.

The case is now before the Colorado Supreme Court.

The governor met with officials representing junior colleges at Lamar, La Junta, Trinidad, Sterling, Grand Junction and Rangely. They laid before him their problems—mostly financial—and requested some help from the state.

Love told newsmen that the college officials asked him to put in his call to the next legislature some approach that would place their problems before the lawmakers. But the governor said that any such message would be premature unless the high court ruling is handed down by that time.

Love added that he'd been told that the court expects to have a decision soon.

The governor said officials told him that last year alone the colleges lost $782,965 in revenue due to the court decision. No figures were available for this year.

He said that some counties were still collecting the $500 per student but were holding the money pending the outcome of the court case. Other counties, he said, are no longer collecting.

The last legislature appropriated $455,000 as a loan to tide the junior colleges over for one

CC Announces $4 Million Operating Budget

Colorado College today reported a $4-million operating budget for the first time in its history.

Robert W. Broughton, vice president and treasurer, said the operating budget has more than doubled in the past seven years.

"Operating expenditures for the 1956-57 fiscal year totaled $1,695,000," he said.

About half of the 1963-64 budget is earmarked for salaries for faculty and staff. This year, salaries will come to more than $1,916,000.

More than $2,450,000 has been allocated for general education expenditures for the current fiscal year, which started July 1 at the independent liberal arts college.

The college has a scholarship budget of $338,000 this year, Broughton said. Some 318 students already have received scholarships amounting to $319,000. More than half of them are from Colorado.

Auxiliary enterprises at the college account for more than $1,207,500. This includes operation of the dormitories and dining halls, Rastall Center, the bookstore, and other ventures.

The operating budget does not include money spent on construction or other capital expenditures, Broughton said.

Last year, for example, the college spent more than $1,300,000 on the campus building program.

Construction has tapered off to about a half million dollars for the current fiscal year, he said.

Nobody Will Profit From Biggest Jewel Robbery

By BERNIE GOULD

NEW YORK (AP)—The bandits who pulled off Manhattan's $3-million jewel robbery apparently netted not one carat. A group of construction workers found the stolen gems in a hijacked car and, police said, it was like playing grab bag in King Solomon's mines.

No one may profit from the biggest jewel theft in the nation's history. Chalk that up to an incompetent getaway driver and a talkative worker.

Five construction men were arrested Tuesday night. Police said they recovered about $250,000 worth of the loot from the five. Some of it was buried on a Gettysburg, Pa., farm only about a mile from former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's home.

With that find, police announced that 90 per cent of the treasure had been recovered. They continued to question other construction workers in hopes of finding the remaining 10 per cent.

Still at large are the bungling bandits, who had to abandon their loot-laden car only a block from the robbery scene. It kept stalling because the driver could not cope with its old-style floor shift, police said.

The car, hijacked from a jewelry messenger service in midtown Manhattan last Friday, was found by police several hours later.

Police said the bandit driver, dressed in a police uniform, had gotten as far as a demolition site on W. 41st Street when the station wagon's motor conked out again. He appealed to a construction worker to help him start the car.

The worker said no, apparently relishing the sight of a policeman caught in such a predicament. The frustrated bandit fled.

Then, police said, that construction man, Philip Rossi, 31, drove the car onto the demolition site. He discovered the jewels and gold bars, called fellow demolition men over and, as po-

Sukarno Takes Over Post of Premier, Too

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—President Sukarno named himself premier of Indonesia today, apparently to take tighter control of the day-to-day government operations.

Sukarno, who is president for life, revived the premier's post. It had been abolished in 1959, when Sukarno reimposed the 1959 constitution.

The president also abolished the post of first minister, which had replaced the premiership in 1959 as the chief government post below the presidency. First Minister Djuanda Kartawidjaja died Nov. 7. His deputy, Dr. Johannes Leimena, had been acting first minister.

'Better Morale' Is Reported in Viet Nam War

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The full impact of South Viet Nam's military coup on the anti-Communist war there is expected to show itself by Easter, U.S. officials said today.

Defense authorities reported on Tuesday a "moderate favorable trend in the morale and determination" of South Vietnamese troops in the two weeks since the overthrow of the regime of President Ngo Dinh Diem.

But they said there is no basis for judgment yet on whether the ousting of the Diem government has altered the complexion of the war to suppress Communist guerrillas.

American Drifts Across Pacific on Balsa Raft

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP)—A slightly built 70-year-old American looked forward today to the comfort of a hotel bed after drifting across the Pacific from Peru to western Samoa aboard a balsawood raft.

"After 130 days at sea I'm looking forward to spending a few nights in comfort at a hotel," said William Willis of New York, a sailor for 53 years.

Willis, alone except for two cats, landed at Faleula, western Samoa, Monday night. He had covered more than two-thirds of a planned 12,000-mile trip from Callao, Peru, to Sydney, Australia. He left Callao July 4.

He planned to have his 33-by-18-foot raft—named "Age Unlimited"—towed to Apia, six miles from Faleula, for repairs. Then he plans to continue his voyage to Sydney.

The raft was damaged in a storm and Willis reported he had to sail most of the trip without either of his two rudders. They began breaking up about 500 miles out of Callao.

"I thought about returning and making another balsa raft, but it was too late. Since then I have been drifting at the mercy of wind and tides."

Dispatches from Faleula reported that Willis was fit and happy but disappointed that the storm forced him to take cover in western Samoa.

"Men of my age have 16 different kinds of heart diseases, but not me," Willis said proudly as he conducted a reporter on a tour of his neat raft.

The raft has a small cabin but Willis said, "My living quarters are right here in the open on deck beside the wheel. The cabin is merely a place where I kept my sextant and things like that."

In 1954 Willis sailed a raft from Callo to Samoa — 6,700 miles more than the distance covered by six Scandinavians on the raft "Kon-Tiki" in 1947.

Willis detailed his exploits about his first trip in a book "The Gods Were Kind."

Willis said before leaving Callao he was making his second trip—and a longer one—to demonstrate that senior citizens should not be forced to retire at 65.

U. S. Demands Russians Release Yale Professor

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Foy Kohler today demanded the immediate release of Prof. Frederick C. Barghoorn, Yale University professor held by the Russians on spy charges.

The ambassador spent 15 minutes with Valerian Zorin, deputy foreign minister. He also demanded the right to see Barghoorn and to have the charges against him given in detail.

In a brief statement, the embassy said the ambassador "registered a strong protest at the completely unwarranted arrest and detention of Prof. Barghoorn and the unjustifiedly long period of time between his arrest and notification of the American Embassy by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs."

The Foreign Ministry announced the arrest of the visiting professor Tuesday, said it took place several days ago but gave no other information.

Barghoorn, professor of political science at Yale, has written a number of books critical of the Soviet system and was here on a tourist visa preparing to write a further book.

He was last seen by an embassy official on Oct. 31 when he came for drinks to the apart-

Vatican Council Voices Right To Freedom

VATICAN CITY (AP) — A draft decree declaring that all men have the right to religious freedom today was reported ready for presentation to the Vatican Ecumenical Council.

The document may be one of the last major decrees to go before the 2,300 prelates before the second session of the council adjourns Dec. 4.

The decree, part of the schema on ecumenism, was drafted by the Secretariat for Promoting Christian Unity.

It expresses the view that a person is free to follow the dictates of his conscience, that no one should be harried because of his religious views, and that a particular faith should never be forced on anyone.

The decree, if approved, will be the first clear and authoritative statement of the Roman Catholic Church's position on religious liberty.

Lack of such a statement has sometimes been a source of friction between Roman Catholics and Protestants. In predominantly Catholic Spain and some Latin-American countries, for example, Protestants have accused the Church of being responsible for restrictions on their activities.

Catholic leaders usually blame cultural-political factors, and individual acts, for such situations and say these do not represent Church policy. But such incidents have fostered a growing demand within the Church for a firm stand in support of religious freedom.

Small Quake Reported in Pueblo Area

PUEBLO (AP) — Pueblo residents reported window-rattling tremors Tuesday and a seismograph reading confirmed there had been a small earthquake in the vicinity.

The quake is not known to have caused any damage.

It was recorded as of Magnitude 2 on a seismograph operated at Bergen Park, 25 miles west of Denver, by the Colorado School of Mines. Prof. John C. Hollister, chairman of the geophysics department at Mines, said earthquakes of that size are felt, if at all, only in their immediate vicinity.

The seismograph showed the quake occurred at 2:28 p.m.

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional junketeers who took the headwaiter of the House restaurant with them to Paris and London have flown home early on a tailwind of criticism.

Like their trip, their arrival Tuesday night was first class. A fleet of 20 Air Force station wagons and drivers were on hand to chauffeur them home from Andrews Air Force Base, Md. where an air Force jet landed them.

Also on hand to greet the party—10 congressmen, eight of their wives, two senators' wives, and seven staff members—were newsmen and photographers. However, there were reports the newsmen were not entirely welcome.

An Air Force officer who preferred not to be identified said a request had come from the plane that the newsmen and photographers be kept from the landing area.

A base public information officer, however, said "no effort on anybody's behalf was made to impede any media."

There was not much effort to help, either, in efforts to pry loose an official list of those on the trip. But a congressional source said Rep. Wayne L. Hays' hometown aide, Parnell Anderson, Flushing, Ohio, was

Kennedy to Make Strong Pitch for Flights to Moon

By HOWARD BENEDICT

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — President Kennedy reportedly will make a strong pitch for the U.S. man-to-the-moon program during a visit to this missile test center Saturday.

Reliable sources said Tuesday the President will interrupt a weekend at Palm Beach and fly to Cape Canaveral.

The President will tour Merritt Island, the 7,000-acre tract adjacent to Cape Canaveral where facilities for launching astronauts to the moon are being built.

He may find some workers idle. About 600 construction workers of 4,000 employed on Merritt Island honored picket lines established Tuesday by photographic workers involved in an unauthorized strike against Radio Corp. of America.

Kennedy also will inspect launching pads where:

—A Titan 2 rocket is being groomed for the first unmanned orbital mission in Project Gemini, the United States' next man-in-space program which will perfect techniques for the Project Apollo manned lunar landings.

—A Saturn rocket is being readied for its first two-stage test launching in December. Sat-

Threats to Kill Is Charged by Young Witnesses

Two sisters testified in District Court Tuesday that Lee Carmer Love on trial for indecent liberties threatened to kill them should they ever tell.

In a two-count charge Love, 56, of 1913 W. Cucharras St. is alleged to have made an indecent attack on each girl, one 6 and the other 11, April 30.

First witness called by the prosecution was the 6-year old. She told the court that towards the end of June she saw the defendant at her home and then went out to the front where his car was parked.

At his invitation she got into the front seat, said the child, where he took indecent liberties with her.

Her mother than appeared, the witness said and she got out of the car. She alleged Love said, "If you tell anyone I'll kill you." In reply to a question put by Deputy District Attorney Jack Roeser, the child

Girl Deluged With Gifts After Surgery

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Christine Simko, 14, whose right leg was amputated Monday because of a malignant tumor which threatened her life, is being deluged with mail, flowers and gifts.

By ENDRE MARTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union's arrest of Yale Prof. Fred C. Barghoorn on spy charges casts a dark cloud on forthcoming Moscow talks on cultural exchanges, a U.S. source said today.

The high-ranking source, who said he was rather pessimistic about the outcome of the negotiations anyway, added that Soviet charges against the 52-year-old specialist on Soviet affairs will not make negotiations any easier.

Barghoorn's plight will be a thorn particularly in the negotiations dealing with the exchange of students and professors.

Barghoorn was connected with the exchange program as a member of the national executive committee of the Inter-University Committee on Travel Grants.

This group handled such matters as placing of Soviet students in this country, screening American students going to the Soviet Union and, in general, determining conditions together with the Soviet Ministry of Education under which the exchange program is carried out.

Some U.S. Areas Off Limits For Travel by Russians

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a move to curb spying, the United States has put some 11 per cent of the country off limits to envoys of Soviet satellite nations.

In the past, these diplomats were allowed to travel freely.

The new orders, explained in diplomatic notes Tuesday, also kept in force travel restrictions on Soviet citizens, although some new areas were opened and others closed.

About 26 per cent of the country is off limits to Soviet travelers and a like percentage of the Soviet Union is off limits to American travelers.

The new restrictions—which don't apply to tourists—came after the Defense department had insisted that the travel of the various diplomatic representatives of Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Romania and Bulgaria be restricted.

Many of them, defense officials argued, were flagrantly peering about in sensitive military areas and probably feeding information to Moscow, whose own envoys are barred from the areas.

The U.S. counties listed as off limits in the notes were carefully selected after several Defense and State Departments.

The State Department is understood to have wanted to drop all restrictions on diplomats from the satellites to encourage them to see and understand the United States.

'Last Man Club' Tempts Superstition to Limit

By ROB WOOD

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—There was room for 39 at the banquet table.

Nineteen of the chairs were empty, the food untouched, the drinks warm and watery.

Next year there'll be another banquet. There may be a few more vacant chairs.

Someday only one man will walk into the banquet hall, toast his missing comrades and collect the winnings: bottle of fiery, aged tequila, three cigarette butts, a match, a few other mementos.

This is the Phoenix Last Man claimed by its members to be the first of its kind in the United States.

Each year the club selects a president—called El Jefe, which is Spanish for chief.

The best qualifications for the post are a miserable medical record and a sickly appearance. The worse your health, the better your chances for election.

The board of directors are called embalmasadors. That's Spanish for embalmers.

The last men carry stainless steel membership cards, suitable for riveting to caskets.

Morbid? A challenge of fate?

"Nope," says club historian Charles Stough, "we're simply looking fate squarely in the eye and tempting superstition to the limit.

"We have the strongest comradeship I've ever seen. "This is a fraternity which simply chuckles at the inevitable."

Stouch is 69 and that's about the average age for the remaining club members. Stough has heart trouble, but still figures he's a good candidate to be the Last Man's last man.

How did it start?

It was a warm night in early 1939. John Stanewich, a bartender; Guy Keeney, a telephone company employe, and Larry Lutz, land developer, were belting a few in the Phoenix American Legion Hall.

Without much thought, the three lit cigarettes off the same match.

Suddenly one remembered and said, "That's bad luck for sure." This turned the talk to luck and superstitution and fate.

As the spirits in the bottle sank lower and the spirits of the trio rose higher, it was agreed that a bet on life expectancy would be an excellent idea.

To add some spice to the wager, the three decided to be the founding fathers of the Last Man Club. Thirty-nine men—three times unlucky 13—were elected to membership. No others have been or will be elected.

A jug of Mexican tequila was placed in storage as a reward to the last man. The three original cigarettes and match were framed under glass.

Then the members suggested the club be incorporated under the laws of Arizona by the official name of Sociedad del Ultimo hombre. William Stephenson, a Last Man member and secretary of the Arizona Corporation Commission agreed to handle the chore.

Within a few days he delivered corporation to the Legion Hall, watched as they were tacked behind the bar, turned to the group and said, "now some of you so-and-so's start dying."

Of the three organizers, only Lutz survives. He left Arizona and dropped from the club. Keeney died recently. Stanewich drowned.

Stough says there are no barriers for the club. "We have Catholics, Protestants and a few atheists. We have Democrats and Republicans and some so dang old, I'm sure they're Whigs."

"Our group includes police officers, lawyers, bookkeepers, firemen, state officials, a doctor, real estate developers, a department store executive, a salesman and a newspaper man.

"We never discuss politics or religion," Stough says, "we just swap yarns, rattle the old seven-come-elevens and indulge in a bit of old folks horse play.

"We're always available if another member needs help of any kind. And we'll all be sorry for that last man the morning after he downs that jug of tequila."

Ft. Worth May Build Underground School

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Suburban Lake Worth may build an underground junior high school in order to avoid the noise of jet bombers.

The school board decided Monday night to submit a $950,000-bond issue to the voters Nov. 26 to build the subterranean schoolhouse which would contain 21 air-conditioned classrooms and a cafeteria.

Board members said the 1,710 students lose up to 10 per cent of instructional time because of the noise from the jets landing and taking off at Carswell Air Force Base about 1½ miles away.

Albert E. Brown, board president, said the noise is a problem even at football games. "When the refree sees an airplane coming, he calls time out until it has passed over," Brown said.

Battle Lines Are Drawn For Goldwater, Rocky

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — From command posts a few doors apart, men who want Sen. Barry Goldwater to run for president and lieutenants of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller have drawn their battle lines.

Their tactics differ, but their goals are the same: top spot on the Republican presidential ticket and a run for the White House — three blocks down the street, but millions of votes away.

A self-styled missionary for the Rockefeller presidential cause is out to spread the New York governor's gospel in Washington—and "not just for the exercise."

Alexander M. Lankler, 34, a tall Washington lawyer, presides over Rockefeller's political office. Actually, it's Lankler's own law office, with a stack of Rockefeller posters and pamphlets in the corner.

"This is a missionary station," says Lankler. "The mother church is in New York."

"We're in the political liaison business, not in the hoopla and headquarters business," he adds. Lankler, a transplanted New Yorker, was deputy manager of Rockefeller's gubernatorial campaign in 1962.

Once again, he has put aside his law practice for politics. "The Governor is in this thing to stay, and so am I," he says. "And not just for the exercise. We think we can win."

Down the street, you can buy a Goldwater button for a penny or a bigger-than-life picture of the senator for $3. "It's one of our biggest bargains," says a Goldwater girl.

In the half-dozen rooms of the national Draft Goldwater headquarters, a staff of 15 is quarterbacking the drive to try to make the Arizona senator next year's Republican presidential nominee.

Rockefeller has declared himself in the race. Goldwater has not.

"We're in this draft movement to demonstrate that Goldwater has a fighting chance on delegates and funds," says finance chairman Frank J. Kovac.

Kovac, former executive director of the Republican national finance committee, adds the Draft Goldwater people "envision the stablishment of a moving vehicle for the senator so that when he announces, he doesn't start from a standing position."

Kovac displays a stack of Goldwater petitions — most of them with checks attached. "Saturday's mail," he said.

He won't say how much money the draft movement has raised, but he displays dozens of checks—for up to $1,000—and stacks of pledges, promising more money when the senator declares himself in the presidential race.

There's an old cash register in Lankler's office, but it's an antique—and Lankler is not in the fund-raising business.

In fact, he says, the office is not a political headquarters "in the traditional sense of the word."

Instead, he says, it will be a liaison office to provide Rockefeller contacts with congressmen and other political leaders.

Lankler says he expects to spend a lot of time on Capitol Hill and at the Republican National Committee.

"A lot of people say elections and nominations aren't won or lost in Washington," he adds. "Well, they aren't won in Indianapolis, either.

"Dollar for dollar and ounce for ounce, there are more political people in Washington than anywhere else."

LIGHTING LURE

DETROIT (UPI) — The multi-billion dollar lighting industry should create an image that will attract young people into the profession, Clarence C. Keller, president of the Holophane Company, New York, told a recent meeting of the Illuminating Engineering Society.

"Those of us who have the biggest stake in this business have the obligation to foster, encourage, and support financially leading colleges and universities that will attract young men and women to include appropriate courses of study in their schedules even if a degree is not obtained."

A jug of Mexican tequila was placed in storage as a reward to the last man. The three original cigarettes and match were framed under glass.

Then the members suggested the club be incorporated under the laws of Arizona by the official name of Sociedad del Ultimo hombre. William Stephenson, a Last Man member and secretary of the Arizona Corporation Commission agreed to handle the chore.

Within a few days he delivered corporation to the Legion Hall, watched as they were tacked behind the bar, turned to the group and said, "now some of you so-and-so's start dying."

Of the three organizers, only Lutz survives. He left Arizona and dropped from the club. Keeney died recently. Stanewich drowned.

Stough says there are no barriers for the club. "We have Catholics, Protestants and a few atheists. We have Democrats and Republicans and some so dang old, I'm sure they're Whigs."

"Our group includes police officers, lawyers, bookkeepers, firemen, state officials, a doctor, real estate developers, a department store executive, a salesman and a newspaper man.

"We never discuss politics or religion," Stough says, "we just swap yarns, rattle the old seven-come-elevens and indulge in a bit of old folks horse play.

"We're always available if another member needs help of any kind. And we'll all be sorry for that last man the morning after he downs that jug of tequila."

Ft. Worth May Build Underground School

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Suburban Lake Worth may build an underground junior high school in order to avoid the noise of jet bombers.

The school board decided Monday night to submit a $950,000-bond issue to the voters Nov. 26 to build the subterranean schoolhouse which would contain 21 air-conditioned classrooms and a cafeteria.

Board members said the 1,710 students lose up to 10 per cent of instructional time because of the noise from the jets landing and taking off at Carswell Air Force Base about 1½ miles away.

Albert E. Brown, board president, said the noise is a problem even at football games. "When the refree sees an airplane coming, he calls time out until it has passed over," Brown said.

Battle Lines Are Drawn For Goldwater, Rocky

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — From command posts a few doors apart, men who want Sen. Barry Goldwater to run for president and lieutenants of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller have drawn their battle lines.

Their tactics differ, but their goals are the same: top spot on the Republican presidential ticket and a run for the White House — three blocks down the street, but millions of votes away.

A self-styled missionary for the Rockefeller presidential cause is out to spread the New York governor's gospel in Washington—and "not just for the exercise."

Half a block up Connecticut Avenue, a high-powered Draft Goldwater movement is looking for dollars and delegates to pledge to the Arizona Senator.

Alexander M. Lankler, 34, a tall Washington lawyer, presides over Rockefeller's political office. Actually, it's Lankler's own law office, with a stack of Rockefeller posters and pamphlets in the corner.

"This is a missionary station," says Lankler. "The mother church is in New York."

"We're in the political liaison business, not in the hoopla and headquarters business," he adds. Lankler, a transplanted New Yorker, was deputy manager of Rockefeller's gubernatorial campaign in 1962.

Once again he has put aside his law practice for politics. "The Governor is in this thing to stay, and so am I," he says. "And not just for the exercise. We think we can win."

Down the street, you can buy a Goldwater button for a penny or a bigger-than-life picture of the senator for $3. "It's one of our biggest bargains," says a Goldwater girl.

In the half-dozen rooms of the national Draft Goldwater headquarters, a staff of 15 is quarterbacking the drive to try to make the Arizona senator next year's Republican presidential nominee.

Rockefeller has declared himself in the race. Goldwater has not.

"We're in this draft movement to demonstrate that Goldwater has a fighting chance on delegates and funds," says finance chairman Frank J. Kovac.

Kovac, former executive director of the Republican national finance committee, adds the Draft Goldwater people "envision the stablishment of a moving vehicle for the senator so that when he announces, he doesn't start from a standing position."

Kovac displays a stack of Goldwater petitions — most of them with checks attached. "Saturday's mail," he said.

He won't say how much money the draft movement has raised, but he displays dozens of checks—for up to $1,000—and stacks of pledges, promising more money when the senator declares himself in the presidential race.

There's an old cash register in Lankler's office, but it's an antique—and Lankler is not in the fund-raising business.

In fact, he says, the office is not a political headquarters "in the traditional sense of the word."

Instead, he says, it will be a liaison office to provide Rockefeller contacts with congressmen and other political leaders.

Lankler says he expects to spend a lot of time on Capitol Hill and at the Republican National Committee.

"A lot of people say elections and nominations aren't won or lost in Washington," he adds. "Well, they aren't won in Indianapolis, either.

"Dollar for dollar and ounce for ounce, there are more political people in Washnigton than anywhere else."

DETROIT (UPI) — The multi-billion dollar lighting industry should create an image that will attract young people into the profession, Clarence C. Keller, president of the Holophane Company, New York, told a recent meeting of the Illuminating Engineering Society.

"Those of us who have the biggest stake in this business have the obligation to foster, encourage, and support financially leading colleges and universities that will attract young men and women to include appropriate courses of study in their schedules even if a degree is not obtained."

Is America selling out ?

America WILL...if it doesn't develop enough future leaders now. They are needed to hold our position in science, in business and jobs, in living standards.

Where do we get leaders? Higher education trains most of them. But colleges are facing higher costs. Many need classrooms, laboratories and competent teachers.

To hold our lead we must back our colleges. Either we help them meet costs or we . . . sell out.

HELP THE COLLEGE OF YOUR CHOICE NOW!

QUESTION: I am very lonesome; being a widower with grown children. I would like to marry again but am afraid women are only interested in me because of my position and not for myself. How can I judge people's motives? —P. W.

ANSWER: The safest place for you to seek your social companions is in your church. While it is true that we find spiritual food and help in the church, there is also a very true sense in which the church supplies our social needs. You certainly should not attend church in order to find a wife but I know of no better place in which to find one. From what you write, it is evident that there are those who would be happy to marry you for the security it would bring them. That you might be able to support someone in comfort is fortunate, but there are many other far more important considerations. Look for a person who is a Christian, near your own age and whose tastes are much the same as your own. It is not only right but proper to make this a matter of prayer and you have every right to expect to be led to the right decision. I know older people who have made very foolish choices, so would urge you to go slow and be sure you are doing the wise thing. In this, as in all the details of our daily lives, God is willing to guide and help if you will but put your trust completely in Him.

'Better Morale' Is Reported in Viet Nam War

The Associated Press that the pattern should become clear by Easter—after about six months.

Critics had contended South Viet Nam could not win against the Communists until the Diem government was replaced by leaders more responsive to the needs of the country's 14 million people.

There have been suggestions that the United States had a hand in the overthrow, but defense officials replied with a terse, "no," when asked whether they had any advance knowledge that the coupe was coming.

A top ranking group of U.S. officials will go to Honolulu next week for a one-day meeting with U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and Gen. Paul D. Harkins, U.S. commander in South Viet Nam, in an effort to assess the impact so far on the war against the Reds.

Leading the Washington group to the Nov. 20 conference will be Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, presidential aide McGeorge Bundy and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Defense experts said the Communists apparently were unaware of the coup for about 72 hours and thus did not take advantage of the situation.

This was blamed on what officials said was their poor communications and command and control channels.

In the backwash of the coup, these authorities said, there was a considerable upsurge in Communist activity, but of a diffused nature.

Operations of the South Vietnamese army fell off about 30 per cent during the three or four days of the rebellion which was centered in Saigon, authorities said.

Since then, however, the Vietnamese army has resumed its offensive and the level of activity has crawled back up to what it was last summer, defense officials said.

ghoorn was arrested several days ago, accused of spying.

There was speculation that his arrest for another tit-for-tat cold war move.

Three Russians accused of spying were rounded up two weeks ago at Englewood, N.J. Two were expelled from the country. The third, Igor A. Ivanov, is being held for trial. Some sources speculated the Kremlin may hope to exchange Barghoorn for Ivanov.

The professor, who had written several books critical of the Soviet Union, served in Moscow in World War II as an attache. He was in the Soviet Union on a 30-day tourist visa to collect information for a book he planned on Soviet political institutions.

While State Department sources concede that Barghoorn's arrest bodes ill, they said it did not affect the U.S. delegation's plans for attending the cultural exchange talks.

The 10-man group, headed by Frank G. Siscoe, director of the State Department's Soviet exchange staff, is scheduled to leave on Thursday. Siscoe indicated he expected some hard signed in January 1958. Two first exchange agreement was bargaining on the program. The others have been approved since.

Young Demo Meet Speaker Charges Figure Juggling

The present Republican administration of Colorado is indulging in figure juggling to cover up the fact the state is headed toward being broke, a Denver Democrat said here Tuesday night.

The speaker was Allen Dines, now in his fourth term as a member of the House of Representatives in the state assembly. He spoke at the November meeting of the El Paso County Young Democrats held in the Antlers Hotel.

The Young Democrats of Pueblo County also attended. Both organizations held short business meetings before Dines spoke.

In October the general fund of the state was listed at $10,181,000, and $10,000,000 of that was the revolving fund which is supposed to stay at about that figure, being used to keep the state paid up to date on bills, and replenished when it goes below that figure.

A note on that figure explained that $3,471,000 of that amount was owed to the capital construction funds of the state for buildings some of which already have been ordered to go under construction, Dines said.

The capital construction funds in turn shows the $3,471,000 as owed to it, Dines pointed out.

The representative said that on May 6 this year Gov. Love signed a bill passed by the Republican legislature which said that 5 per cent of all money that came in to the state should be transferred to the building fund.

So far, not a cent of that money has been so transfered, he stated.

Dines pointed out that these facts about the state's financial situation are not well known and that the newspapers in the state have not paid much attention to facts.

Not only is the state facing this current financial problem, but the situation may get worse, according to Dines.

The Denver legislator predicted that the Republican administration may spend the balance of the revolving fund in the next year on the belief that such expenditures will get the Republican party past one more election — the one coming up in 1964.

Regardless of what happens to that fund, the state is going to have another problem — that is how to raise $7,000,000 more next year to pay for buildings now going up.

Where will that money come from? Dines asked, but didn't attempt to predict.

The administration got the state into its current straits because the Republican party believed it had promised the people of the state a tax cut in return for voting for Republican candidates and so proceeded to deliver the cut in two packages, Dines said.

The state cut the 1962 state income taxes as a quick move, then adopted another income tax cut effective for 1963 and afterward.

"The results of those tax cuts cost the treasury $15,000,000," said Dines.

Dines said that the people of the state wanted to hear a message from their governor that said they could have more for less, that told them they could have all the services they had, plus more, and at the same time they also could have a tax cut.

They got the tax cut and will continue to get less in the way of services, he said.

He pointed out that some of the weighing stations in the state have been closed.

"Watch," he said, "as the ton-mile tax income goes down, there will be louder arguments for a change in the tax." He pointed out that the income is most likely to go down with some of the stations closed.

Dines said that in his opinion, Gov. John A. Love and others in the Republican party actually believed that it would be simple for them to change the state fiscal picture for the better by simply introducing their methods of government. They would provide more and charge less, he said.

So the new Republican administration cut income and then has had to start cutting services.

An example of how a budget was cut and a prediction was ignored took place at Colorado State College, Dines explained.

He said that CSU had 1,100 more students this fall than last, but the state committee had pared the CSU budget with no regard for the predicted increased enrollment which came about.

Most of the state institutions, the colleges, the correction centers, the penal centers, the mental health centers, and the others are all going to need more money next year because of increased loads, Dines said.

He estimated that the budget next year would be about $140,000,000, and predicted that income would be about the same with the current tax laws.

Where the rest of the money is going to come from, is a good question, Dines said.

These are possibilities for raising more money that the Republicans may consider, Dines said:

1. Increase property taxes with the income going to the state building fund.

2. Impose a state sales tax with the money being divided between the state and the cities.

3. Hike income by actually raising income taxes some as the taxes are fitted into the federal income tax pattern, as approved by the electorate last November when Amendment No. 3 was approved.

4. Put a state tax on all cigarettes.

Dog Training Group Meets At Local Home

The county 4-H dog training group met Thursday Nov. 7, in the home of Tim Taylor, 2610 Bonfoy Ave.

The group saw a demonstration of the points to look for on a Labrador retriever, presented by Mrs. Dorothy Raber, and a Shetland sheep dog by Mrs. Charles Beckwith.

The group discussed the establishment of a dog training workshop for the 4-H junior leaders and apprentice leaders. The first meeting was Nov. 8, at 7 p.m., at the home of leader Mrs. Charles Beckwith, 2518 N. Union Blvd. The objective is to help other clubs who have no trainers.

The next meeting will be at the Art Carlson home in Austin Bluffs at 6:30 p.m., Dec. 5.

Refreshments were enjoyed by all.

lice described it, a grab bag game followed.

Officers said Robert Lee, 44, took a suitcase containing about $200,000 in gems. They said Walter Cunningham, 61, took $8,000 in jewels to his Pennsylvania vacation retreat and buried them in a lard can.

In all, the demolition men carted off at least $268,000 worth.

When police discovered the hijacked car, it contained about $2¼ million in loot, including 15 gold bars.

Monday night, a construction worker boasted in a bar about the windfall in jewels. An eavesdropper tipped police.

About the same time, another construction worker told a private detective that he had seen one bandit unload a briefcase in a boiler at the demolition site. The detective found the jewel-laden briefcase and called police.

Officers searched the site further Tuesday. They came up with still more jewels, and began pumping water from the basement of one partially demolished building, thinking some of the loot might have been tossed there.

Besides Cunningham, of Floral Park, Queens, and Rossi and Lee, both of Brooklyn, police also arrested construction men James P. and John T. Joyce, Brooklyn brothers aged 24 and 23, respectively. All were charged with criminally receiving stolen property. Rossi also was charged with grand larceny for moving the hijacked car.

also one of the party. Hays, an Ohio Democrat, headed the delegation.

Newsmen zeroed in Hays and headwaiter Ernest Petinaud, who Hays said served as a messenger for the delegation in Paris.

With Hays at his side, Petinaud told reporters he saw nothing wrong with his going along to the parliamentarians conference of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Paris and would be "ready to do it again tomorrow."

Petinaud in Pairs had told an interviewer "the only reason congressmen can object to me coming to Europe is that I'm colored."

Hays said he picked Petinaud, rather than some congressional staff member, because he is "a nice guy and I thought he deserved a break."

When the first waves of the criticism reached him in Europe Hays was quoted as saying "congressmen who made an issue of this are cheapskates. One of the reasons I chose Ernest for his trip is that he is a Negro."

Petinaud, who said he understands but does not speak French, said he received $27 a day for expenses the days he actually worked as a messenger. Hays said the expenses for the eight-day stay in Paris were paid out of U.S. counterpart funds—foreign credits of the United States that must be spent overseas.

Before leaving the air base, Petinaud noted he had been on vacation and said philosophically, "I was off anyway." He goes back to work at the House restaurant today.

Criticism of the trip even erupted overseas. The London Daily Mirror described it as "a 10-day luxury trip—at the U.S. taxpayers' expense."

Repeated efforts of a reporter to obtain an official list of all who made the trip ran into a series of stone walls Tuesday, although it was conceded they went at taxpayers' expense in an Air Force plane.

The group included Jean Litten and Patricia Peak, both listed as secretaries in Hays' Washington office.

The single secretary who remained in Hays' office said he had taken all details of the trip with him and she had no list available.

The State Department's congressional liaison division, which arranges expense money on such trips, said it traditionally leaves it up to congressmen to make such information public.

The Defense Department, which arranged the overseas transportation, likewise bucked the query back to Congress.

The House disbursing office requires reports of expenditures on such trips but gives the congressmen 60 days to submit them.

A larger area to the north is designated low density building on 2½-acre lots, with not more than 25 per cent of the lots to be built upon.

The largest area at the north end of the zone is also low density for 2½-acre lots.

Hoth said the restrictions are only "suggested land uses," and that they meet minimum standards of the Air Force and the Federal Aviation Agency.

The council's plat plan for the area will be forwarded to the El Paso County Commissioners or other interested agencies.

its travel restrictions on U.S. diplomats, and the State Department wanted to reply in kind, but the Pentagon objected, so something of a compromise was worked out.

In the past, represenatives of Hungary and Romania had to give advance notification of travel beyond Washington and New York, even though there were no areas forbidden to them. Under the new regulations they no longer have to give this notice.

As for the Soviet Union, the regulations only revise a 1961 list of closed areas, opening up some which were formerly closed and closing others, but keeping the total off-limits area at approximiately 26 per cent of the United States.

Every state but Delaware has at least one county closed to the Russians.

For the satellite diplomats, Delaware and Georgia are completely open, and a footnote says that travel to Alaska and Hawaii may be permitted upon request.

As an example of the differences within states however, 31 of Illinois' counties are off limits to Russians, but only 11 are closed to satellite envoys.

The only Russians exempted from the restriction are those employed by the U.N. Secretariat and visitors under the U.S.-Soviet cultural exchange program.

In case of the satellites, on the other hand, only diplomats are banned from the closed areas.

Police Probe Four Cases Of Theft

Police this morning were investigating four cases of theft which occurred Tuesday.

Virgil Ray Thomas, 211 N. Prospect St., reported the theft of his 1950 model car from a parking place outside his home.

Thieves entered the local office of the Rocky Mountain News at 123 E. Bijou St. last night and stole a transistor radio and change worth a total of $27.

Andrew Michael Furns, agent for the newspaper, told officers the intruders took the radio and change from his desk after breaking a padlock on the desk.

A tachometer worth $35 was stolen from the car of William J. Howland, 2516 W. Kiowa St. The car was parked in the 300 block of E. Boulder St., at the time of the theft. Howland said the tachometer was removed from the dashboard.

Frank Armin Yard of Canon City reported the theft of a .22 caliber rifle from his pickup truck Tuesday afternoon.

In a partly serious, partly humorous talk, "Shoes That Pinch," Robert Gadberry, vice president, Fourth National Bank and Trust Co., Wichita, Kan., told the banqueters that they could do a great deal to better conditions in the world.

It is our duty, he said, to learn to recognize dangerous philosophies, and not go along with them.

"We should assume personal responsibility to help others achieve a better life," he said.

'Better Morale' Is Reported in Viet Nam War

The Associated Press that the pattern should become clear by Easter—after about six months.

Critics had contended South Viet Nam could not win against the Communists until the Diem government was replaced by leaders more responsive to the needs of the country's 14 million people.

There have been suggestions that the United States had a hand in the overthrow, but defense officials replied with a terse, "no," when asked whether they had any advance knowledge that the coupe was coming.

A top ranking group of U.S. officials will go to Honolulu next week for a one-day meeting with U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and Gen. Paul D. Harkins, U.S. commander in South Viet Nam, in an effort to assess the impact so far on the war against the Reds.

Leading the Washington group to the Nov. 20 conference will be Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, presidential aide McGeorge Bundy and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Defense experts said the Communists apparently were unaware of the coup for about 72 hours and thus did not take advantage of the situation.

This was blamed on what officials said was their poor communications and command and control channels.

In the backwash of the coup, these authorities said, there was a considerable upsurge in Communist activity, but of a diffused nature.

Operations of the South Vietnamese army fell off about 30 per cent during the three or four days of the rebellion which was centered in Saigon, authorities said.

Since then, however, the Vietnamese army has resumed its offensive and the level of activity has crawled back up to what it was last summer, defense officials said.

Young Demo Meet Speaker Charges Figure Juggling

The present Republican administration of Colorado is indulging in figure juggling to cover up the fact the state is headed toward being broke, a Denver Democrat said here Tuesday night.

The speaker was Allen Dines, now in his fourth term as a member of the House of Representatives in the state assembly. He spoke at the November meeting of the El Paso County Young Democrats held in the Antlers Hotel.

The Young Democrats of Pueblo County also attended. Both organizations held short business meetings before Dines spoke.

In October the general fund of the state was listed at $10,181,000, and $10,000,000 of that was the revolving fund which is supposed to stay at about that figure, being used to keep the state paid up to date on bills, and replenished when it goes below that figure.

A note on that figure explained that $3,471,000 of that amount was owed to the capital construction funds of the state for buildings some of which already have been ordered to go under construction, Dines said.

The capital construction funds in turn shows the $3,471,000 as owed to it, Dines pointed out.

The representative said that on May 6 this year Gov. Love signed a bill passed by the Republican legislature which said that 5 per cent of all money that came in to the state should be transferred to the building fund.

So far, not a cent of that money has been so transfered, he stated.

Dines pointed out that these facts about the state's financial situation are not well known and that the newspapers in the state have not paid much attention to facts.

Not only is the state facing this current financial problem, but the situation may get worse, according to Dines.

The Denver legislator predicted that the Republican administration may spend the balance of the revolving fund in the next year on the belief that such expenditures will get the Republican party past one more election — the one coming up in 1964.

Regardless of what happens to that fund, the state is going to have another problem — that is how to raise $7,000,000 more next year to pay for buildings now going up.

Where will that money come from? Dines asked, but didn't attempt to predict.

The administration got the state into its current straits because the Republican party believed it had promised the people of the state a tax cut in return for voting for Republican candidates and so proceeded to deliver the cut in two packages, Dines said.

The state cut the 1962 state income taxes as a quick move, then adopted another income tax cut effective for 1963 and afterward.

"The results of those tax cuts cost the treasury $15,000,000," said Dines.

Dines said that the people of the state wanted to hear a message from their governor that said they could have more for less, that told them they could have all the services they had, plus more, and at the same time they also could have a tax cut.

They got the tax cut and will continue to get less in the way of services, he said.

He pointed out that some of the weighing stations in the state have been closed.

"Watch," he said "as the tonmile tax income goes down, there will be louder arguments for a change in the tax." He pointed out that the income is most likely to go down with some of the stations closed.

Dines said that in his opinion, Gov. John A. Love and others in the Republican party actually believed that it would be simple for them to change the state fiscal picture for the better by simply introducing their methods of government. They would provide more and charge less, he said.

So the new Republican administration cut income and then has had to start cutting services.

An example of how a budget was cut and a prediction was ignored took place at Colorado State College, Dines explained.

He said that CSU had 1,100 more students this fall than last, but the state committee had pared the CSU budget with no regard for the predicted increased enrollment which came about.

Most of the state institutions, the colleges, the correction centers, the penal centers, the mental health centers, and the others are all going to need more money next year because of increased loads, Dines said.

He estimated that the budget next year would be about $140,000,000, and predicted that income would be about the same with the current tax laws.

Where the rest of the money is going to come from, is a good question, Dines said.

These are possibilities for raising more money that the Republicans may consider, Dines said:

1. Increase property taxes with the income going to the state building fund.

2. Impose a state sales tax with the money being divided between the state and the cities.

3. Hike income by actually raising income taxes some as the taxes are fitted into the federal income tax pattern, as approved by the electorate last November when Amendment No. 3 was approved.

4. Put a state tax on all cigarettes.

Dog Training Group Meets At Local Home

The county 4-H dog training group met Thursday Nov. 7, in the home of Tim Taylor, 2610 Bonfoy Ave.

The group discussed the establishment of a dog training workshop for the 4-H junior leaders and apprentice leaders. The first meeting was Nov. 8, at 7 p.m., at the home of leader Mrs. Charles Beckwith, 2518 N. Union Blvd. The objective is to help other clubs who have no trainers.

The next meeting will be at the Art Carlson home in Austin Bluffs at 6:30 p.m., Dec. 5.

lice described it, a grab bag game followed.

Officers said Robert Lee, 44, took a suitcase containing about $200,000 in gems. They said Walter Cunningham, 61, took $8,000 in jewels to his Pennsylvania vacation retreat and buried them in a lard can.

In all, the demolition men carted off at least $263,000 worth.

When police discovered the hijacked car, it contained about $2¼ million in loot, including 15 gold bars.

Monday night, a construction worker boasted in a bar about the windfall in jewels. An eavesdropper tipped police.

About the same time, another construction worker told a private detective that he had seen one bandit unload a briefcase in a boiler at the demolition site. The detective found the jewel-laden briefcase and called police.

Officers searched the site further Tuesday. They came up with still more jewels, and began pumping water from the basement of one partially demolished building, thinking some of the loot might have been tossed there.

Besides Cunningham, of Floral Park, Queens, and Rossi and Lee, both of Brooklyn, police also arrested construction men James P. and John T. Joyce, Brooklyn brothers aged 24 and 23, respectively. All were charged with criminally receiving stolen property. Rossi also was charged with grand larceny for moving the hijacked car.

Critical Tailwind Accompanies U.S. Junketing Solons

also one of the party. Hays, an Ohio Democrat, headed the delegation.

Newsmen zeroed in Hays and headwaiter Ernest Petinaud, who Hays said served as a messenger for the delegation in Paris.

With Hays at his side, Petinaud told reporters he saw nothing wrong with his going along to the parliamentarians conference of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Paris and would be "ready to do it again tomorrow."

Petinaud in Pairs had told an interviewer "the only reason congressmen can object to me coming to Europe is that I'm colored."

Hays said he picked Petinaud, rather than some congressional staff member, because he is "a nice guy and I thought he deserved a break."

When the first waves of the criticism reached him in Europe Hays was quoted as saying "congressmen who made an issue of this are cheapskates. One of the reasons I chose Ernest for his trip is that he is a Negro."

Petinaud, who said he understands but does not speak French, said he received $27 a day for expenses the days he actually worked as a messenger. Hays said the expenses for the eight-day stay in Paris were paid out of U.S. counterpart funds—foreign credits of the United States that must be spent overseas.

Before leaving the air base, Petinaud noted he had been on vacation and said philosophically, "I was off anyway." He goes back to work at the House restaurant today.

Criticism of the trip even erupted overseas. The London Daily Mirror described it as "a 10-day luxury trip—at the U.S. taxpayers' expense."

Repeated efforts of a reporter to obtain an official list of all who made the trip ran into a series of stone walls Tuesday, although it was conceded they went at taxpayers' expense in an Air Force plane.

The group included Jean Litten and Patricia Peak, both listed as secretaries in Hays' Washington office.

The single secretary who remained in Hays' office said he had taken all details of the trip with him and she had no list available.

The State Department's congressional liaison division, which arranges expense money on such trips, said it traditionally leaves it up to congressmen to make such information public.

The Defense Department, which arranged the overseas transportation, likewise bucked the query back to Congress.

The House disbursing office requires reports of expenditures on such trips but gives the congressmen 60 days to submit them.

Close to the "nosecone" of the missile-shaped boundary is the clear zone where construction is prohibited. Next is the light industrial zone where buildings can be constructed on five-acre tracts, providing they don't cover more than 25 per cent of the area.

A larger area to the north is designated low density building on 2½-acre lots, with not more than 25 per cent of the lots to be built upon.

The largest area at the north end of the zone is also low density for 2½-acre lots.

Hoth said the restrictions are only "suggested land uses," and that they meet minimum standards of the Air Force and the Federal Aviation Agency.

The council's plat plan for the area will be forwarded to the El Paso County Commissioners or other interested agencies.

its travel restrictions on U.S. diplomats, and the State Department wanted to reply in kind, but the Pentagon objected, so something of a compromise was worked out.

In the past, represenatives of Hungary and Romania had to give advance notification of travel beyond Washington and New York, even though there were no areas forbidden to them. Under the new regulations they no longer have to give this notice.

As for the Soviet Union, the regulations only revise a 1961 list of closed areas, opening up some which were formerly closed and closing others, but keeping the total off-limits area at approximiately 26 per cent of the United States.

Every state but Delaware has at least one county closed to the Russians.

For the satellite diplomats, Delaware and Georgia are completely open, and a footnote says that travel to Alaska and Hawaii may be permitted upon request.

As an example of the differences within states however, 31 of Illinois' counties are off limits to Russians, but only 11 are closed to satellite envoys.

The only Russians exempted from the restriction are those employed by the U.N. Secretariat and visitors under the U.S.-Soviet cultural exchange program.

In case of the satellites, on the other hand, only diplomats are banned from the closed areas.

Police Probe Four Cases Of Theft

Police this morning were investigating four cases of theft which occurred Tuesday.

Virgil Ray Thomas, 211 N. Prospect St., reported the theft of his 1950 model car from a parking place outside his home.

Virgil said the car was unlocked and the keys were in it. He said the car was taken Tuesday afternoon or evening.

Thieves entered the local office of the Rocky Mountain News at 123 E. Bijou St. last night and stole a transistor radio and change worth a total of $27.

Andrew Michael Furns, agent for the newspaper, told officers the intruders took the radio and change from his desk after breaking a padlock on the desk.

A tachometer worth $35 was stolen from the car of William J. Howland, 2516 W. Kiowa St. The car was parked in the 300 block of E. Boulder St., at the time of the theft. Howland said the tachometer was removed from the dashboard.

The truck was parked at the Classic Bowl parking lot, 1866 Alpine Dr. when the rifle, valued at $35, was taken from behind the seat.

said Love appeared to be serious in his threat.

Her 11-year old sister then testified. She stated that while several people were present in Love's home, he asked her into the back bedroom to see some photographs of a relative.

Speaking clearly and concisely, the witness continued saying that when they got into the bedroom the defendant said "That's not the real reason I asked you in here."

She said she tried to get away from love but "he was holding me by the arm." They heard someone moving about in one of the other rooms, the child said, and she was finally released, but not before the defendant threatened to kill her if she told anyone what had happened.

Under further direct examination, the girl said similar incidents "maybe 10" had taken place between her and the defendant previously, but she had never told anyone as she was too scared. She said the first time such as assault happened was when whe was two and a half or three years old.

The court recessed at 4:45 p.m. and reconvened again this morning at 10.

The judge is Hunter D. Hardeman and Montell Dunn is appearing with Roeser for the district attorney's office. Robert Dunlap is representing Love.

In a partly serious, partly humorous talk, "Shoes That Pinch," Robert Gadberry, vice president, Fourth National Bank and Trust Co., Wichita, Kan., told the banqueters that they could do a great deal to better conditions in the world.

It is our duty, he said, to learn to recognize dangerous philosophies, and not go along with them.

"We should assume personal responsibility to help others achieve a better life," he said.

Kennedy to Make Strong Pitch for Flights to Moon

In May 1961, President Kennedy pledged this country to race the Soviet Union to the moon. He predicted American astronauts would be on the lunar surface before 1970.

The enthusiasm which greeted his proposal has dimmed considerably Critics protest the estimated cost of between $20 and $40 billion dollars and claim the money could be used more effectively on earth.

Kennedy himself appeared to back down in a United Nations speech last september when he suggested a joint U.S.-Soviet moon expedition.

Since Kennedy's U.N. speech, administration officials have tried to emphasize that the lunar landing goal still stands.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev recently added to the confusion with a reported declaration that the Soviet Union no longer was in the moon race. A week later he said just the opposite.

CAPITOL STUFF

By JACK METCALFE

WASHINGTON, — News has been sparse this year about congressional junketing, in case you hadn't noticed. And, more's the pity, what reports there have been about legislators' perennial peripatetic activities have been downright dull.

This is sad indeed. The capital scene is all the drearier, and the nation is the poorer for not being treated to the annual junketeering circus.

In any normal autumn some of the season's noisiest, most entertaining bombast is sure to be fired off by those crusty foes of faraway travel at taxpayers expense. Equally diverting is the self-defense of the self-righteous junketeers.

Rep. Adam C. Powell

It often seems, in fact, that such opponents of governmental extravagance as Sen. John J. Williams (R-Del.) and Rep. H. R. Gross (R-Iowa) store up their most pointed barbs all year to let fly at junkets.

For their part, many footloose congressmen display an ingenuity and sophistry that are truly remarkable as they try to justify the compelling urgency that sent them off to inspect exotic problems overseas — the farher away and more exotic the better.

But in 1963 these voices are heard but faintly. Legislative acumen usually lavished on junkets has been channeled into legislating.

That is, it's supposed to be, since Congress is officially condemned to stay in session until next Jan. 3, presumably to pass some laws. And this selfless preoccupation with such measures as tax cuts and civil rights has wiped out the prime junketing season, those golden weeks of fall after Congress has adjourned which are doubly enticing in a year without any major elections.

It should not be thought, however, that no junketing is going on at all. Right now one congressional delegation is winding up a stay at that mecca of all junketeers — Paris. Happily for this handful of congressmen, the City of Light happened to be the site of the NATO Parliamentarians' Conference.

This meeting got into the news when it developed that the delegation had been accompanied by the headwaiter of the House restaurant. As a real junketing cause celebre, however, the incident was a flop. The waiter, it turned out, was on leave and had only hitched a ride home on the Air Force transport ferrying the delegation to France.

SURVEY OF MILITARY POSTS IN EUROPE

Another recent junket was the solo tour of Rep. Victor Wickersham (D-Okla.), who surveyed U. S. military outposts in Europe for two weeks. Among the discoveries he reported to Congress Wednesday was that "our defense system, including our early warning radar system, and military preparedness have never been stronger at any time in our history."

Wickersham was pleased with the morale of GIs who, he noted, are excellent good-will ambassadors. But all is not rosy, he found, for off-base housing is poor and costly.

Observations of this sort might well raise the question of whether such trips are worth the Congressmen's time and the taxpayers' money.

In fairness to traveling legislators, it should be noted, however, that they do acquire a wealth of first-hand information and impressions. Not that they always show it in voting. But at least they know what they are opposing, such as the current whipping-boy, foreign aid.

ALL THAT 'FUNNY MONEY' IS JUST WAITING

Foreign aid, incidentally, has proved to be the biggest spur to overseas junkets since the word crept into English via old northern French. (Its original English meaning was any really delectable goodie.)

Foreign aid's junket-inspiring role stems from the counterpart funds it generates. These are foreign currencies which the aided nation must deposit in exchange for U. S. assistance and are partly spent for U. S. purposes, including travel funds for visiting Congressmen.

Over the years some of the most fiery attacks on junketing have been inspired by alleged misuse of counterpart funds. These are, after all, blocked currencies, "funny money" just crying to be spent. Perhaps the loudest squawks of all came after Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D-N. Y.) and two women aids, one a former beauty contestant, lavishly toured European watering spots on counterpart funds in the summer of 1962.

Largely thanks to Powell, the House moved last winter — when New York newspapers were not publishing — to crack down on the overseas junketing abuses.

Only five committees were authorized to travel abroad. Their members were required for the first time to spend only the per diem allowed for government employes.

IF AT FIRST YOU DON'T SUCCEED

Nine other committees were restricted to operations inside the U. S. Their members were barred from spending counterpart funds if they traveled abroad. Significantly, Powell's Education and Labor Committee was one of the nine.

There's a way around this "purity code," however. All that's required is a House resolution waiving the restriction.

Powell tried to get such a waiver in May, was turned down but attended the International Labor Conference in Geneva anyway as a State Department guest. Rep. Roman Pucinski (D-Ill.) also was turned down last week when he tried to get authorization for himself and four other Congressmen to study scientific information centers in seven European countries, including Russia.

Pucinski hasn't given up, tho. He says he will try again to get his travel resolution passed.

U.S. Missed on Aid to Peru, Critics Charge

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

LIMA, Peru (AP)—The United States seems to have missed a good chance to help the poorest people of Peru because of red tape, plus what South Americans consider an overdeveloped "banker mentality" in Washington.

The $10-million incident is small by comparison with overall U.S. assistance to Peru, which in the past two years has amounted to about $150 million with more to come. But it is important because the new government of President Fernando Belaunde Terry seems determined to move fast on reform and development programs.

The question is whether the United States can move fast also.

A few weeks ago Belaunde asked the United States for a pick and shovel loan of $10 million. He said he wanted to buy simple hand tools for the million of Indian peasants in the mountainous interior. He laid out a plan to set up 144 tool lending centers—one in each county seat.

Everyone agrees these simple tools are the things the Indians need most—to dig ditches for water supply, to build roads, to cultivate the land. Most have only primitive wooden digging sticks and short-handled wooden hoes.

U.S. officials here hope Belaunde's goal of raising the living standards of the Indians can be realized. The Indians, about half Peru's 10 million population are illiterate and poverty-stricken.

Belaude first put his proposal before U.S. aid agency officials here. They pointed out that the United States already had approved a limited roadbuilding plan, including a supply of bulldozers and similar heavy machinery, which would serve as a pilot project for an expanded program.

It takes an average of about two years to get approval for a new proposal. Belaunde was asked to wait and see how the pilot project worked out.

Belaunde, a man in a hurry, turned to the Export - Import Bank. He felt that the roadbuilding machines would not serve his broader purposes of improving farm production and water supply through self-help methods. Also it would cover only about five of his 144 rural centers.

"The bank said it would finance the purchase of machinery but not of tools," Belaunde told The Associated Press.

Bank officials said shovels, picks, hoes and crowbars which could be lost or stolen did not constitute a good risk.

"We have now arranged for a $10 - million loan from Finland for the tools," Belaunde said, "and we plan to set up the 144 pools of farm implements which will be available to the peasants."

Complaints against the operation of the Alliance for Progress the label under which U.S. aid flows into Latin America, are common among government officials on the continent.

Some may be written off as self-serving efforts by greedy politicians. But men known to be sincere think the alliance is too slow, too burdened with red tape, and too much subject to dictation from Washington.

The reply given by U.S. officials is that Washington is using hard-earned taxpayers' money to help Latin countries solve problems which, in some instances, they could solve themselves if they were more efficient and politically more stable. In some countries graft has undoubtedly resulted in a serious division of public resources.

Nevertheless, the aid program exists, and the United States is committed to a maximum total U.S. expenditure of a billion dollars a year for 10 years. If the money is to be spent, the issue is how to spend it to do the most good.

U.S. officials stationed in the Latin countries privately agree that decision-making procedures are too slow and that congressional concern to protect the taxpayer's dollar sometimes results in rules that cause the dollar to be spent too late to do the most good.

Japanese Youth Wants To Go to Germany

NARA, Japan (AP) — An excited Japanese student carrying a fruit knife in his pocket jumped in front of West German President Heinrich Luebke today, shouting, "Take me back to Germany."

Japanese police grabbed the youth and he did not touch Luebke, who is on a state visit to Japan.

Police said the youth told them he planned to cut his own finger in a gesture of appeal to the president to help him get to Germany.

He was identified as Tsukasaka Hagihara, 21, of Tenri University.

The incident occurred as Luebke was shaking hands with students who welcomed him to the Todaiji Temple in Nara. The president took no notice of the disturbance.

Soviets Plagued by Personnel Turnover

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet planning official says that workers quitting one job and moving to another are costing the country 100 million working days and $6.6 billion a year.

Personnel turnover was running as high as 80 per cent a year in some plants and averaged 20 to 25 per cent in Siberia, said S. Batyshev of the State Committee for Professional-Technological Training in an article in the Literary Gazette.

Soviet workers were freed of rigid laws binding them to their jobs May 11, 1956.

Physician of Former Pope Dies in Rome

BOLOGNA, Italy (AP)—Prof. Antonio Gasbarrini of Bologna, who treated Pope John XXIII during his fatal illness, died today. He was 81.

Pope John named him his personal physician last November, and he was with the pontiff through the final four days of crisis that preceded his death June 3.

Premier Khrushchev hinted last year that new laws might have to be passed once again restricting workers' rights to change jobs if the situation worsened.

About 48 per cent of all apples produced in 1961 were processed, with approximately two-thirds of this amount being consumed.

CAPITOL STUFF

By JACK METCALFE

WASHINGTON, — News has been sparse this year about congressional junketing, in case you hadn't noticed. And, more's the pity, what reports there have been about legislators' perennial peripatetic activities have been downright dull.

This is sad indeed. The capital scene is all the drearier, and the nation is the poorer for not being treated to the annual junketeering circus.

In any normal autumn some of the season's noisiest, most

Rep. Adam C. Powell
Made a memorable junket.

entertaining bombast is sure to be fired off by those crusty foes of faraway travel at taxpayers expense. Equally diverting is the self-defense of the self-righteous junketeers.

It often seems, in fact, that such opponents of governmental extravagance as Sen. John J. Williams (R-Del.) and Rep. H. R. Gross (R-Iowa) store up their most pointed barbs all year to let fly at junkets.

For their part, many footloose congressmen display an ingenuity and sophistry that are truly remarkable as they try to justify the compelling urgency that sent them off to inspect exotic problems overseas — the farher away and more exotic the better.

But in 1963 these voices are heard but faintly. Legislative acumen usually lavished on junkets has been channeled into legislating.

That is, it's supposed to be, since Congress is officially condemned to stay in session until next Jan. 3, presumably to pass some laws. And this selfless preoccupation with such measures as tax cuts and civil rights has wiped out the prime junketing season, those golden weeks of fall after Congress has adjourned which are doubly enticing in a year without any major elections.

It should not be thought, however, that no junketing is going on at all. Right now one congressional delegation is winding up a stay at that mecca of all junketeers — Paris. Happily for this handful of congressmen, the City of Light happened to be the site of the NATO Parliamentarians' Conference.

This meeting got into the news when it developed that the delegation had been accompanied by the headwaiter of the House restaurant. As a real junketing cause celebre, however, the incident was a flop. The waiter, it turned out, was on leave and had only hitched a ride home on the Air Force transport ferrying the delegation to France.

SURVEY OF MILITARY POSTS IN EUROPE

Another recent junket was the solo tour of Rep. Victor Wickersham (D-Okla.), who surveyed U. S. military outposts in Europe for two weeks. Among the discoveries he reported to Congress Wednesday was that "our defense system, including our early warning radar system, and military preparedness have never been stronger at any time in our history."

Wickersham was pleased with the morale of GIs who, he noted, are excellent good-will ambassadors. But all is not rosy, he found, for off-base housing is poor and costly.

Observations of this sort might well raise the question of whether such trips are worth the Congressmen's time and the taxpayers' money.

In fairness to traveling legislators, it should be noted, however, that they do acquire a wealth of first-hand information and impressions. Not that they always show it in voting. But at least they know what they are opposing, such as the current whipping-boy, foreign aid.

ALL THAT 'FUNNY MONEY' IS JUST WAITING

Foreign aid, incidentally, has proved to be the biggest spur to overseas junkets since the word crept into English via old northern French. (Its original English meaning was any really delectable goodie.)

Foreign aid's junket-inspiring role stems from the counterpart funds it generates. These are foreign currencies which the aided nation must deposit in exchange for U. S. assistance and are partly spent for U. S. purposes, including travel funds for visiting Congressmen.

Over the years some of the most fiery attacks on junketing have been inspired by alleged misuse of counterpart funds. These are, after all, blocked currencies, "funny money" just crying to be spent. Perhaps the loudest squawks of all came after Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D-N. Y.) and two women aids, one a former beauty contestant, lavishly toured European watering spots on counterpart funds in the summer of 1962.

Largely thanks to Powell, the House moved last winter — when New York newspapers were not publishing — to crack down on the overseas junketing abuses.

Only five committees were authorized to travel abroad. Their members were required for the first time to spend only the per diem allowed for government employes.

IF AT FIRST YOU DON'T SUCCEED

Nine other committees were restricted to operations inside the U. S. Their members were barred from spending counterpart funds if they traveled abroad. Significantly, Powell's Education and Labor Committee was one of the nine.

There's a way around this "purity code," however. All that's required is a House resolution waiving the restriction.

Powell tried to get such a waiver in May, was turned down but attended the International Labor Conference in Geneva anyway as a State Department guest. Rep. Roman Pucinski (D-Ill.) also was turned down last week when he tried to get authorization for himself and four other Congressmen to study scientific information centers in seven European countries, including Russia.

Pucinski hasn't given up, tho. He says he will try again to get his travel resolution passed.

U.S. Missed on Aid to Peru, Critics Charge

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

LIMA, Peru (AP)—The United States seems to have missed a good chance to help the poorest people of Peru because of red tape, plus what South Americans consider an overdeveloped "banker mentality" in Washington.

The $10-million incident is small by comparison with overall U.S. assistance to Peru, which in the past two years has amounted to about $150 million with more to come. But it is important because the new government of President Fernando Belaunde Terry seems determined to move fast on reform and development programs.

The question is whether the United States can move fast also.

A few weeks ago Belaunde asked the United States for a pick and shovel loan of $10 million. He said he wanted to buy simple hand tools for the million of Indian peasants in the mountainous interior. He laid out a plan to set up 144 tool lending centers—one in each county seat.

Everyone agrees these simple tools are the things the Indians need most—to dig ditches for water supply, to build roads, to cultivate the land. Most have only primitive wooden digging sticks and short-handled wooden hoes.

U.S. officials here hope Belaunde's goal of raising the living standards of the Indians can be realized. The Indians, about half Peru's 10 million population are illiterate and poverty-stricken.

Belaude first put his proposal before U.S. aid agency officials here. They pointed out that the United States already had approved a limited roadbuilding plan, including a supply of bulldozers and similar heavy machinery, which would serve as a pilot project for an expanded program.

It takes an average of about two years to get approval for a new proposal. Belaunde was asked to wait and see how the pilot project worked out.

Belaunde, a man in a hurry, turned to the Export - Import Bank. He felt that the roadbuilding machines would not serve his broader purposes of improving farm production and water supply through self-help methods. Also it would cover only about five of his 144 rural centers.

"The bank said it would finance the purchase of machinery but not of tools," Belaunde told The Associated Press.

Bank officials said shovels, picks, hoes and crowbars which could be lost or stolen did not constitute a good risk.

"We have now arranged for a $10 - million loan from Finland for the tools," Belaunde said, "and we plan to set up the 144 pools of farm implements which will be available to the peasants."

Complaints against the operation of the Alliance for Progress the label under which U.S. aid flows into Latin America, are common among government officials on the continent.

Some may be written off as self-serving efforts by greedy politicians. But men known to be sincere think the alliance is too slow, too burdened with red tape, and too much subject to dictation from Washington.

The reply given by U.S. officials is that Washington is using hard-earned taxpayers' money to help Latin countries solve problems which, in some instances, they could solve themselves if they were more efficient and politically more stable. In some countries graft has undoubtedly resulted in a serious division of public resources.

Nevertheless, the aid program exists, and the United States is committed to a maximum total U.S. expenditure of a billion dollars a year for 10 years. If the money is to be spent, the issue is how to spend it to do the most good.

U.S. officials stationed in the Latin countries privately agree that decision-making procedures are too slow and that congressional concern to protect the taxpayer's dollar sometimes results in rules that cause the dollar to be spent too late to do the most good.

Japanese Youth Wants To Go to Germany

NARA, Japan (AP) — An excited Japanese student carrying a fruit knife in his pocket jumped in front of West German President Heinrich Luebke today, shouting, "Take me back to Germany."

Japanese police grabbed the youth and he did not touch Luebke, who is on a state visit to Japan.

Police said the youth told them he planned to cut his own finger in a gesture of appeal to the president to help him get to Germany.

He was identified as Tsukasaka Hagihara, 21, of Tenri University.

The incident occurred as Luebke was shaking hands with students who welcomed him to the Todaiji Temple in Nara. The president took no notice of the disturbance.

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Rights Considered As Claims

In yesterday's editorials we touched on two characteristics of what we call human rights: their universality and their source. We contrasted rights with privileges, showing that the two are not the same.

We come now to one of the more complex realizations to derive from an effort to understand the meaning of rights.

The Declaration of Independence says that "among these (rights) are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." It should be understood immediately that the listing of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness in no way constitutes a guarantee that every person will experience life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Life is not yours forever. You have it now but your days are numbered. Nor is there any guarantee that you will have liberty or even that you will pursue happiness, if that is what you seek. The idea of rights does not convey the idea of a guarantee.

What is intended is that you should realize that you have a RIGHT to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and this means only that no one may rightfully take these things from you. Many men may have the power to deprive you of your life, your liberty or your ability to try to gratify your desires. That is why we said at the beginning that the concept of human rights is a concept dealing with human relationships.

It tells us what we may and may not RIGHTFULLY do. But it does not tell us what we MUST do. It simply tells us what we may NOT do to or with others. You have a RIGHT to live. This guarantees only that you have NO right to interfere with the right of another to live. For all men have equal rights. And if there are such things as rights, then you may not interfere with another's right to live.

Putting it another way, the concept of rights means that you have a claim on your own life. You may choose to exercise that claim and, thus, to live. But you have no claim on any other person's life. Nor is there a guarantee that you will live. Nor is anyone else obligated to see to it that you do live. (We are speaking of adults. The child, who also has a right to live, comes into the world as the result of actions taken by his parents, who have assumed a responsibility for him and an obligation that he continue to live, until he is able to live as a result of his own energies expended.)

The same applies to liberty and the pursuit of happiness. You have a claim on liberty. It cannot be earned by others and thrust upon you. No one can provide it for you. Nor can you obtain it rightfully at the expense of others. Thus, your right to liberty is a right to make a claim for liberty.

And your right to pursue happiness is your right to make a claim for your happiness. These claims may not be imposed on others without their consent. No one can be free for you and no one can be happy for you.

These things, like life itself, are yours when you exercise your right of claim. None is automatic. None imposes on any other. And none compels you to make the claim. Your rights, as specified, are the rights all men have to make their own claims without your interference.

Another way of expressing this is to say that your rights are those things you may rightfully do without asking permission of anyone. And since all rights are both equal and universal, any right must be a two-way street.

The rights of others are the things they can do without asking your permission. And they may do these things rightfully.

There are other attributes to this highly complex concept and we will continue discussing these below.

Relief

Perhaps if we began to clear out the relief rolls, there might be a little more relief for the rest of us.

Unalienable Rights

What makes any discussion of human rights particularly challenging and difficult is that the concept is multi-dimensional and no one phase of it can be completely ignored. It must be considered as a whole for with any of its parts, facets or implications lacking, we are not thinking of the full meaning of human rights.

We have already shown that the idea of human rights relates fundamentally to a universal condition of relationship which is attributable to all men. This universality immediately leads to a recognition of the fact that rights are a natural endowment of man and not some special privilege or prerogative which some men may grant to others. So, these two concepts are inextricably linked together. If rights are universal, then they must derive from and be coincidental to the existence of man, himself. They relate to man as man, not to any particular group, race, age or kind of man.

Having recognized these two points, we now see that a right cannot be considered as a permanent guarantee. In fact, it is not a guarantee at all. Governments may be formed for the explicit purpose of guaranteeing our rights. But no government has ever managed to enforce such a guarantee.

There is no physcial attribute which man has which insures the practice of his rights. Therefore, while it can be said that a right is functional in that it relates to the manner in which physical man works, it cannot be said to be automatic for the fact is that men can and do interfere with each other's rights. A right is a concept and it is a concept affecting an individual's relationships with other men. A right is a clear statement of what each man may rightfully expect in the treatment others afford him. Equally, it is a clear statement of what every other man may rightfully expect in his treatment of them.

Thus, as pointed out above, a right is not only a concept, it is a claim. The right is not to be exercised automatically. It is a recognition that while a man has a right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, there is only stated here that the man has an open doorway before him wherein he can elect to live, to have liberty and to be happy. He may fail in each of these objectives. But he has the right to try for them so long as, by so trying, he does not interfere with a similar right to try, available to each and every other member of his own species.

What is important for emphasis at this juncture is that these three points, presently itemized, are unavoidably interlaced and tied together. To have the concept of rights at all, you must have all three of these factors. Take away any one of them and you lose touch with reality. Take away any one and the other two will fall.

However, this is only a beginning of our understanding. The Declaration of Independence additionally points out that each man is endowed by his Creator with certain UNALIENABLE rights. And as we consider the implications of this new factor, we must begin by seeing that it, too, is an escapable part of the whole. If we are to have universal rights and if they are to be equal, then they must be unalienable.

Provide a system wherein some persons have rights and others do not and you have a system of privilege and non-privilege. Provide a system wherein some men may abandon their rights, or lose them thru some type of conduct, and you will immediately lose the system of equal rights.

We cannot have a system in which all men have equal rights and at the same time have a system in which some men retain their rights and others lose theirs. If rights are equal and are an endowment of the Creator, then they are and must be unalienable. In short, what nature has bestowed, man may not alienate himself, either willfully or inadvertently.

No Lack of Facilities

From Life Lines

Ten years ago, citizens of Hopedale, Illinois, were told they were to lose their part-time doctor because he felt he was hampered by lack of facilities. They solved their problem the American way; they built a hospital and equipped it. Not only did they keep him, they attracted more doctors. Later, they established a home for the elderly and a nursing home. Today, their project has grown into a popular regional medical center.

Besides the medical and humanitarian benefits to the community, the payroll for the members of the staff has given a financial boost to the community.

The people of Hopedale solved a medical and hospitalization problem in a constructive way, without federal aid.

Americans are often blase about the many health benefits that have been provided by America's system of medicine. And when they do not consider these benefits, it is understandable why so few come to the defense of this system when forces seek to move against it.

For some time, the federal planners have been critical of our medical system because it has allegedly short changed the elderly and the destitute. They seek to finance medical care for the aged thru the Social Security program. This would be socialism. They deny this publicly, but there is a preponderance of evidence to the contrary. Socialism means federal control, and there is little dispute about it.

Socialized medical systems have lowered the quality of services wherever they have been instituted. There was a time when Europe was the medical center of the world. Gifted medical students went there for advanced work. In order to obtain the best in medical treatment, one had to go to Europe.

But no longer.

Today, the place to go for advanced medical study is the United States. The place to go for the best medical treatment is the United States. And the cause of this shift is socialism.

No country operating under a socialized plan of medicine can equal the quality or quantity of the services offered by the American medical system.

In 1948, when socialized medicine began in England, the estimated first year cost was 170 million pounds. In 12 years, annual costs were 820 million pounds, or nearly $2.5 billion.

British doctors prefer to have 1,500 patients each, but registration can go as high as 3,500 patients. Half of the doctors have more than 2,500 patients, and a third of them have more than 3,000. The average number of patients per doctor in the United States is 750.

In 1960, more doctors emigrated from England and Ireland to the United States than in the nine year period before socialized medicine began. Since the introduction of the system, the number of students going into medicine has dropped considerably, because the profession has become unattractive.

Allowing for differences in population and salaries, if the United States were to have this same kind of system, it would cost $22.5 billion dollars per year — equivalent to about half of our current nondefense budget.

The tax payment for a similar system operated under U.S. Social Security would cost a man making $5,200 about $585 a year. If there was another member of this family making $3,000 a year, an additional $337 would have to be paid. If both were to work from age 20 to 65, the total paid in would be more than $40,000. That is quite a difference from the cost of our competitive types of medical and hospitalization insurance plans.

"Foot-in-the-door" methods have always been used when the advocates cry "This is not socialism!" When an earlier medical plan for the aged was being prepared by Congress, an article in a U.S. socialist party magazine pointed out: "Once the Forand Bill is passed, this nation will be provided with a mechanism for socialized medicine, capable of indefinite expansion in every direction until it includes the entire population. And it is already evident that there will be massive pressures in favor of such expansion."

The medical system in the United States has never pretended to be perfect. However, no other system has ever excelled it. Operating in the competitive, free environment of our personal enterprise system, it has achieved a great record of progress. It excels in medical care as well as in progress thru research. Its accomplishments have been realized under a system of practice, competition, and research free of federal controls.

In a speech last fall, Dr. George M. Fister, past president of the American Medical Association, said the progress of medicine in this nation is one of the "most dramtic stories of the century." Then he listed a few achievements:

"Four and one-half million Americans are alive today who would be dead if the mortality rate of 25 years ago still prevailed. And these 4.5 million people earned almost $10.5 billion in 1960.

"For the first time in our history, life expectancy for Americans has exceeded . . . three score and ten years, and it now stands at 70.2 years.

"Eighty per cent of the drugs commonly prescribed today were unknown just 10 years ago.

"The United States has made more important drug discoveries in the last two decades than all the rest of the world combined, or seven times as many as the next leading country.

"In 1961 the prescription drug industry set a new record of $245 million in research, an investment triple that of the average industry.

"There is now a record number of hospital beds in the country — 1,670,000 — a increase of more than a quarter million beds since 1948.

"The average stay in the hospital is at its lowest in history.

"During the year infant mortality rates declined to the lowest in United States history, 25.3 deaths per 1,000 births.

"A record number of 7,168 new physicians graduated from United States' medical schools this year, and a record number of 31,078 students are enrolled in medical schools.

"In 13 years this nation built 763 new hospitals, increasing the total number of hospitals to almost 7,000.

"A record number of Americans, 136 million, is covered by voluntary health insurance and prepayment plans.

"These accomplishments did not 'just happen.' They came about because researchers, medical scientists and physicians have had an opportunity to work in an atmosphere of freedom.

"Achievement and freedom are not unrelated.

"Free men have had the opportunity to develop this medical care system under a government and a Constitution that encourage enterprise and industry. Men have been free to think, to work, to match their talents against the world.

"This progress in medicine is having an increasingly profound effect upon the life of every citizen, every business, and every institution in our country.

"We all know that a healthy nation is a strong nation and at no time in our history has it been more vital that our nation be strong."

These words by Dr. Fister state a clear case for the progress made in American medicine. The leadership of the medical profession will continue as a vital force only as long as the incentives and the freedom to solve problems remain. Likewise, citizens such as those of Hopedale, Illinois, will solve their own problems efficiently, and in their own interest, only as long as there is no intervention, aid or control from the federal planners.

When people talk of change and progress, let us remember that the American way, with its guarantees of freedom under the Constitution, is the best method for handling human problems. Federal involvement is the greatest deterrent to constructive progress whenever people can and want to solve problems for themselves.

Muffed Opportunities

In 1958 and 1959 the Chinese Communist Party decreed that the fields of China could produce twice as much food if close-sowing of seed were made the rule. But the Communist Party, out of the depths of its abysmal ignorance of farming, failed to provide the fertilizer that is necessary to support close-sowing. When a plague of locusts came along to add to the Chinese peasant's troubles, the result was famine.

In 1960 and 1961 Chiang Kai-shek would have liked to dare an intensified guerilla infiltration of the starving Chinese mainland from Formosa. But the U.S. State Department, out of its abysmal ignorance of good psycho-warfare and paramilitary opportunities, refused to encourage Chiang Kai-shek. Just recently the State Department has admitted that a good opportunity was muffed because of our unwillingness to take advantage of the great flop in China.

But do we ever really learn? Do we really want to stop Communism anywhere? We have opportunities now in Eastern Europe and in Cuba that have been presented to us on a platter by crop failures deriving from bad agricultural practices complicated by natural calamities. Instead of intensifying the pressures on the Communists in Eastern Europe and in Castroland, we feel sorry for our enemies. As was the case in 1960 and 1961 vis-a-vis a tottering Red China, we present a picture of "good heart, no brains."

FIGURES

In a letter to Senator Frank Lausche, Democrat of Ohio, Dr. Bela Fabian, the exiled Hungarian, has presented some extremely illuminating figures bearing on the failure of Khrushchev's attempt to turn desert into good wheatlands. Since 1954 more than ninety billion acres of virgin land have been put under the plow in the Soviet Union. By deporting "volunteers" to the dry reaches of Soviet Asia, Khrushchev tripled his "new lands" farmers. He also provided them with plenty of mechanical harvesters and tractors. But the farm machinery has, in many instances, been sabotaged, and the farm "volunteers" have indulged in slow-downs. Not only is Khrushchev unable to feed the Russians, he is also unable to feed Poland, Hungary, and Czechoslovakia.

In Cuba, Fidel Castro was having a hard time with his sugar, coffee and cocoa harvests. He had also managed to decimate Cuban cattle production. To get his sugar cane cut and his coffee beans picked, the bearded tyrant had to fall back on school children who were sent to the plantations on a "get out the harvest or else" basis. Then along came Hurricane Flora to play a disastrous role in Cuba comparable to the locust plague in China and the droughts in the Soviet Union.

From its network of Cuban sources, Daniel James' "Free Cuba News" has collected a mine of information bearing on what the hurricane had done to put Castro on the ropes. According to Mr. James, the three provinces affected most by the hurricane, Oriente, Camaguey, and Las Villas, contain 16,700,000 out of the total arable Cuban farmland of 22,400,000 acres. The winds of Flora, blowing at 120 and more miles per hour, brought rains and floods that ruined the standing crops on some 16,000,000 acres.

When Castro took stock of his farm situation after Flora had passed out to sea he found that his cocoa crop had been wiped out. Seventy per cent of the potential rice harvest had been ruined, sugar had been reduced fifty per cent, coffee expectations had been cut sixty-five per cent. In Oriente and Camaguey, sixty-one sugar mills had suffered heavy damage and, according to Dr. Tulio Diaz Rivera, president of the Cuban Economic Corporations in exile, "may very well be beyond repair since the Soviets cannot replace the destroyed parts."

If the U. S. and the rest of the west had only been prepared, they might have used the Russian crop failures as a lever to pry many concessions from Khrushchev. The wheat-surplus nations might have said: "Knock holes in the Berlin wall and we'll deliver our wheat thru the gaps." And if the Cuban exiles had really been permitted to reorganize after the Bay of Pigs, they would have been in position to follow Hurricane Flora into the eastern provinces of Camaguey and Oriente.

Well, opportunity knocks but once. But even if it knocked twice we'd never be ready anyway. For better or worse, we're like a heavyweight champ without a killer instinct.

Political Names

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, PhD

A few days ago a reader of the daily newspapers in which my column appears scolded me for my reluctance to mention the names of politicians. She wrote, "Why not name the names so I'll know which name to be made at?"

I'll try to answer that question because I believe it's important and because it is indicative of a frame of mind that got me into a lot of trouble.

After writing a political action column for a few years, I discovered something which amazed me. It makes no difference which politician violates what principle in which I believe. Then I began to understand why no politician really wants to reduce the size and cost and power of the government of which he is a part. At this point, I began to understand that every public office holder must be involved with some action which is designed to control me at my expense and for his support, and about that time I realized that every politician and public office holder is on one side of a fence and I am, inevitably, on the other. The name of the person who tries to control me at my expense and for his or her benefit and support, is of absolutely no consequence.

So, when I say I have instituted a personal and social and political boycott against every political figure, this obviously includes Goldwater and Rockefeller and Nixon and Kennedy, or anybody else who decides to try to become a part of government. There's no point in asking me if I think Joe would be a better president than Pete because I prefer to govern myself. I will not make a choice between chicken pox and measles because I prefer to remain healthy and must devote my energy towards that end. If you tell me I MUST make a choice between chicken pox and measles, I will suggest that you take a running jump at the moon, because I'm busy.

In the early months of 1960 I was completely involved in a political campaign. The candidate had discussed his political beliefs with me for a couple of years and we both wanted the size and cost and power of government drastically reduced. By the end of that campaign I realized we had selected the correct direction but that the method we were using was identical with the method being used by those we believed to be the absolute enemies of our freedom. This brought a vital point into sharp focus. For years I had inwardly cringed every time a political figure said, "Our side holds the balance of power. We must unite and exert this power for the good of all mankind." Yes, I cringed and I wrote violently against those who were plagued by a positive lust to hold power over me, BUT I wanted others to gain power over those whose power I feared. It just didn't make sense, nor does it!

So you see, Mrs. J.B.S., it does not matter which politican you name. If he seeks public office, he seeks power over others. If he does not seek public office, he cannot use the horrible force of government to achieve power over me. Sure, any human being afflicted by delusions of grandeur and a lust for power may attempt to control and enslave me but without the aggressive force of government backing that person up, I've got a chance.

No, Ma'am. The Constitution does not protect me. It has not protected me. Look at it for yourself. The Constitution provided a method of amending the Constitution. The 16th Amendment states: THE CONGRESS SHALL HAVE THE POWER TO LAY AND COLLECT TAXES ON INCOMES, FROM WHATEVER SOURCE DERIVED, WITHOUT APPORTIONMENT AMONG THE SEVERAL STATES AND WITHOUT REGARD TO ANY CENSUS OR ENUMERATION.

This amendment makes it possible for Congress to tax 100 per cent of my income regardless of the source from which my income may be derived, and do you know something else, Ma'am? I have no interest in the names of the power-hungry politicians who voted for the amendment because I fully understand that every politician must be hungry for power over others. But, let's go with this all the way; I do not seek power to control those who hold this power over my head. I just want to get them off my back. I'll not bother with their names.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

Question No. 365: "If my memory serves me right (and it often doesn't) GT principles, beliefs and policy as expressed in the editorial page masthead, at one time included the 'Original Bill of Rights.' Would you tell your readers what line of thought led to its deletion?"—Cecil V. Grove

Answer: If memory serves us right, the phrase "the original Bill of Rights" has not been expressed in our masthead.

AID DRAIN

To the Editor:

A propos of this chatter about foreign aid is an item I quote from "Human Events," that anathema of all liberals: "Another New Frontier myth about foreign aid — that most foreign aid dollars are spent in the United States, not abroad — was challenged last week. Dr. Lewis E. Lloyd, economist of the Dow Chemical Co., told a House committee that in fiscal 1962, about 84 per cent of total aid was spent outside the United States. He deemed it a big factor in our critical dollar drain."

USE OF FORCE

To the Editor:

Recently a writer reprimanded me for believing that a thinking adult should be a self-responsible individual reaping the rewards of his actions even when his rewards are the result of that which he has sown. The use of force against thy neighbor, even a property owner, is not to be desired.

I do not understand the thinking of a Christian when he advocates the use of force to gain his desires. When a Christian approves the use of force such action is not a good reputation among the non-Christian public.

If force is rectitude, if force is the golden rule, if Christ used force via a tax law, then for heaven's sake, Christian, let us use force to compel the non-Christian public to pay a tithe to the church. Force the Baptists to give to Methodists; force Catholics to give to Judaism.

It is true that that which is taken by force often brings limited benefits but the benefits which come by living the Golden Rule and Ten Commandments and abiding by the laws of nature are unlimited. Beauty? Freedom of choice is beauty. The beauty in the parable of the rich man is, he made his own choice.

Granting the other person the right to choose is showing a concern for the followers of Christ and it also shows a concern for those of the non-Christian world.

Apparently it has become a tradition among church people to use or advocate the use of force to gain what they believe (?) to be civic good, state good and world good. The first time, I remember entering a municinicipal park, the fee was one nickel. Since that day I have had civic pride.

It seems that that which was good among the early church is not to be desired today. I believe I read some scripture about the early churchmen and it read like: No room and board without paying for it, no idlers. Toil and drudge if need be. Work day and night rather than be a burden on society. The person who will not work shall not eat. No one shall mind everybody's business but their own. Work quietly. Use no force to compel another to do right. Be self-responsible.

LATVIAN PATRIOT

To the Editor:

With Veteran's Day at hand when we are supposed to remember and honor those who fought and died so that we may live in freedom, I also remember my native country, Latvia, and the way that freedom fighters were honored there. There was hardly a house without a flag. In Riga, capital of Latvia, there is a Brethren Cemetery like Arlington National Cemetery here. Several thousand patriots who gave their life during the struggle for independence lie there. During the times of free Latvia on November 11 solemn processions streamed to it and on the eve of Independence Day, November 18, a candle was lighted on every grave in gratitude of their sacrifice for freedom's sake.

After the occupation the Communists buried many Red Army soldiers there. But altho more than 23 years have passed since Stalin in cooperation with Hitler and the present rulers of Kremlin — Khrushchev and Mikoyan (as proven in documents and films) — liquidated the independence of Latvia and its neighbors Lithuania and Estonia, these nations have not forgotten the time of independence and the men who fought for it.

I have news that last fall during a gathering at the cemetery by the Communists who had gone to honor the enforcers of red slavery, suddenly there appeared a flag of free Latvia on a high tree behind the speaker's stand.

There are, under the red tyranny, people who know how to honor freedom: who risking their lives dare to raise the symbol of freedom — their flag. No amount of oppression and brainwashing has erased the desire for freedom from their hearts.

Here in free American flying of flags and honoring the dead is not a threat to life. It only takes a few moments of our time. Should not every house display a flag?

Your Freedom Newspaper
Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Rights Considered As Claims

In yesterday's editorials we touched on two characteristics of what we call human rights: their universality and their source. We contrasted rights with privileges, showing that the two are not the same.

We come now to one of the more complex realizations to derive from an effort to understand the meaning of rights.

The Declaration of Independence says that "among these (rights) are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." It should be understood immediately that the listing of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness in no way constitutes a guarantee that every person will experience life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Life is not yours forever. You have it now but your days are numbered. Nor is there any guarantee that you will have liberty or even that you will pursue happiness, if that is what you seek. The idea of rights does not convey the idea of a guarantee.

What is intended is that you should realize that you have a RIGHT to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and this means only that no one may rightfully take these things from you. Many men may have the power to deprive you of your life, your liberty or your ability to try to gratify your desires. That is why we said at the beginning that the concept of human rights is a concept dealing with human relationships.

It tells us what we may and may not RIGHTFULLY do. But it does not tell us what we MUST do. It simply tells us what we may NOT do to or with others. You have a RIGHT to live. This guarantees only that you have NO right to interfere with the right of another to live. For all men have equal rights. And if there are such things as rights, then you may not interfere with another's right to live.

Putting it another way, the concept of rights means that you have a claim on your own life. You may choose to exercise that claim and, thus, to live. But you have no claim on any other person's life. Nor is there a guarantee that you will live. Nor is anyone else obligated to see to it that you do live. (We are speaking of adults. The child, who also has a right to live, comes into the world as the result of actions taken by his parents, who have assumed a responsibility for him and an obligation that he continue to live, until he is able to live as a result of his own energies expended.)

The same applies to liberty and the pursuit of happiness. You have a claim on liberty. It cannot be earned by others and thrust upon you. No one can provide it for you. Nor can you obtain it rightfully at the expense of others. Thus, your right to liberty is a right to make a claim for liberty.

And your right to pursue happiness is your right to make a claim for your happiness. These claims may not be imposed on others without their consent. No one can be free for you and no one can be happy for you.

These things, like life itself, are yours when you exercise your right of claim. None is automatic. None imposes on any other. And none compels you to make the claim. Your rights, as specified, are the rights all men have to make their own claims without your interference.

Another way of expressing this is to say that your rights are those things you may rightfully do without asking permission of anyone. And since all rights are both equal and universal, any right must be a two-way street.

The rights of others are the things they can do without asking your permission. And they may do these things rightfully.

There are other attributes to this highly complex concept and we will continue discussing these below.

Relief

Perhaps if we began to clear out the relief rolls, there might be a little more relief for the rest of us.

Unalienable Rights

What makes any discussion of human rights particularly challenging and difficult is that the concept is multi-dimensional and no one phase of it can be completely ignored. It must be considered as a whole for with any of its parts, facets or implications lacking, we are not thinking of the full meaning of human rights.

We have already shown that the idea of human rights relates fundamentally to a universal condition of relationship which is attributable to all men. This universality immediately leads to a recognition of the fact that rights are a natural endowment of man and not some special privilege or prerogative which some men may grant to others. So, these two concepts are inextricably linked together. If rights are universal, then they must derive from and be coincidental to the existence of man, himself. They relate to man as man, not to any particular group, race, age or kind of man.

Having recognized these two points, we now see that a right cannot be considered as a permanent guarantee. In fact, it is not a guarantee at all. Governments may be formed for the explicit purpose of guaranteeing our rights. But no government has ever managed to enforce such a guarantee.

There is no physcial attribute which man has which insures the practice of his rights. Therefore, while it can be said that a right is functional in that it relates to the manner in which physical man works, it cannot be said to be automatic for the fact is that men can and do interfere with each other's rights. A right is a concept and it is a concept affecting an individual's relationships with other men. A right is a clear statement of what each man may rightfully expect in the treatment others afford him. Equally, it is a clear statement of what every other man may rightfully expect in his treatment of them.

Thus, as pointed out above, a right is not only a concept, it is a claim. The right is not to be exercised automatically. It is a recognition that while a man has a right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, there is only stated here that the man has an open doorway before him wherein he can elect to live, to have liberty and to be happy. He may fail in each of these objectives. But he has the right to try for them so long as, by so trying, he does not interfere with a similar right to try, available to each and every other member of his own species.

What is important for emphasis at this juncture is that these three points, presently itemized, are unavoidably interlaced and tied together. To have the concept of rights at all, you must have all three of these factors. Take away any one of them and you lose touch with reality. Take away any one and the other two will fall.

However, this is only a beginning of our understanding. The Declaration of Independence additionally points out that each man is endowed by his Creator with certain UNALIENABLE rights. And as we consider the implications of this new factor, we must begin by seeing that it, too, is an escapable part of the whole. If we are to have universal rights and if they are to be equal, then they must be unalienable.

Provide a system wherein some persons have rights and others do not and you have a system of privilege and non-privilege. Provide a system wherein some men may abandon their rights, or lose them thru some type of conduct, and you will immediately lose the system of equal rights.

We cannot have a system in which all men have equal rights and at the same time have a system in which some men retain their rights and others lose theirs. If rights are equal and are an endowment of the Creator, then they are and must be unalienable. In short, what nature has bestowed, man may not alienate himself, either willfully or inadvertently.

No Lack of Facilities

From Life Lines

Ten years ago, citizens of Hopedale, Illinois, were told they were to lose their part-time doctor because he felt he was hampered by lack of facilities. They solved their problem the American way; they built a hospital and equipped it. Not only did they keep him, they attracted more doctors. Later, they established a home for the elderly and a nursing home. Today, their project has grown into a popular regional medical center.

Besides the medical and humanitarian benefits to the community, the payroll for the members of the staff has given a financial boost to the community.

The people of Hopedale solved a medical and hospitalization problem in a constructive way, without federal aid.

Americans are often blase about the many health benefits that have been provided by America's system of medicine. And when they do not consider these benefits, it is understandable why so few come to the defense of this system when forces seek to move against it.

For some time, the federal planners have been critical of our medical system because it has allegedly short changed the elderly and the destitute. They seek to finance medical care for the aged thru the Social Security program. This would be socialism. They deny this publicly, but there is a preponderance of evidence to the contrary. Socialism means federal control, and there is little dispute about it.

Socialized medical systems have lowered the quality of services wherever they have been instituted. There was a time when Europe was the medical center of the world. Gifted medical students went there for advanced work. In order to obtain the best in medical treatment, one had to go to Europe.

But no longer.

Today, the place to go for advanced medical study is the United States. The place to go for the best medical treatment is the United States. And the cause of this shift is socialism.

No country operating under a socialized plan of medicine can equal the quality or quantity of the services offered by the American medical system.

In 1948, when socialized medicine began in England, the estimated first year cost was 170 million pounds. In 12 years, annual costs were 820 million pounds, or nearly $2.5 billion.

British doctors prefer to have 1,500 patients each, but registration can go as high as 3,500 patients. Half of the doctors have more than 2,500 patients, and a third of them have more than 3,000. The average number of patients per doctor in the United States is 750.

In 1960, more doctors emigrated from England and Ireland to the United States than in the nine year period before socialized medicine began. Since the introduction of the system, the number of students going into medicine has dropped considerably, because the profession has become unattractive.

Allowing for differences in population and salaries, if the United States were to have this same kind of system, it would cost $22.5 billion dollars per year — equivalent to about half of our current nondefense budget.

The tax payment for a similar system operated under U.S. Social Security would cost a man making $5,200 about $585 a year. If there was another member of this family making $3,000 a year, an additional $337 would have to be paid. If both were to work from age 20 to 65, the total paid in would be more than $40,000. That is quite a difference from the cost of our competitive types of medical and hospitalization insurance plans.

"Foot-in-the-door" methods have always been used when the advocates cry "This is not socialism!" When an earlier medical plan for the aged was being prepared by Congress, an article in a U.S. socialist party magazine pointed out: "Once the Forand Bill is passed, this nation will be provided with a mechanism for socialized medicine, capable of indefinite expansion in every direction until it includes the entire population. And it is already evident that there will be massive pressures in favor of such expansion."

The medical system in the United States has never pretended to be perfect. However, no other system has ever excelled it. Operating in the competitive, free environment of our personal enterprise system, it has achieved a great record of progress. It excels in medical care as well as in progress thru research. Its accomplishments have been realized under a system of practice, competition, and research free of federal controls.

In a speech last fall, Dr. George M. Fister, past president of the American Medical Association, said the progress of medicine in this nation is one of the "most dramtic stories of the century." Then he listed a few achievements:

"Four and one-half million Americans are alive today who would be dead if the mortality rate of 25 years ago still prevailed. And these 4.5 million people earned almost $10.5 billion in 1960.

"For the first time in our history, life expectancy for Americans has exceeded . . . three score and ten years, and it now stands at 70.2 years.

"Eighty per cent of the drugs commonly prescribed today were unknown just 10 years ago.

"The United States has made more important drug discoveries in the last two decades than all the rest of the world combined, or seven times as many as the next leading country.

"In 1961 the prescription drug industry set a new record of $245 million in research, an investment triple that of the average industry.

"There is now a record number of hospital beds in the country — 1,670,000 — a increase of more than a quarter million beds since 1948.

"The average stay in the hospital is at its lowest in history.

"During the year infant mortality rates declined to the lowest in United States history, 25.3 deaths per 1,000 births.

"A record number of 7,168 new physicians graduated from United States' medical schools this year, and a record number of 31,078 students are enrolled in medical schools.

"In 13 years this nation built 763 new hospitals, increasing the total number of hospitals to almost 7,000.

"A record number of Americans, 136 million, is covered by voluntary health insurance and prepayment plans.

"These accomplishments did not 'just happen.' They came about because researchers, medical scientists and physicians have had an opportunity to work in an atmosphere of freedom.

"Achievement and freedom are not unrelated.

"Free men have had the opportunity to develop this medical care system under a government and a Constitution that encourage enterprise and industry. Men have been free to think, to work, to match their talents against the world.

"This progress in medicine is having an increasingly profound effect upon the life of every citizen, every business, and every institution in our country.

"We all know that a healthy nation is a strong nation and at no time in our history has it been more vital that our nation be strong."

These words by Dr. Fister state a clear case for the progress made in American medicine. The leadership of the medical profession will continue as a vital force only as long as the incentives and the freedom to solve problems remain. Likewise, citizens such as those of Hopedale, Illinois, will solve their own problems efficiently, and in their own interest, only as long as there is no intervention, aid or control from the federal planners.

When people talk of change and progress, let us remember that the American way, with its guarantees of freedom under the Constitution, is the best method for handling human problems. Federal involvement is the greatest deterrent to constructive progress whenever people can and want to solve problems for themselves.

Muffed Opportunities

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

In 1958 and 1959 the Chinese Communist Party decreed that the fields of China could produce twice as much food if close-sowing of seed were made the rule. But the Communist Party, out of the depths of its abysmal ignorance of farming, failed to provide the fertilizer that is necessary to support close-sowing. When a plague of locusts came along to add to the Chinese peasant's troubles, the result was famine.

In 1960 and 1961 Chiang Kai-shek would have liked to dare an intensified guerilla infiltration of the starving Chinese mainland from Formosa. But the U.S. State Department, out of its abysmal ignorance of good psycho-warfare and paramilitary opportunities, refused to encourage Chiang Kai-shek. Just recently the State Department has admitted that a good opportunity was muffed because of our unwillingness to take advantage of the great flop in China.

But do we ever really learn? Do we really want to stop Communism anywhere? We have opportunities now in Eastern Europe and in Cuba that have been presented to us on a platter by crop failures deriving from bad agricultural practices complicated by natural calamities. Instead of intensifying the pressures on the Communists in Eastern Europe and in Castroland, we feel sorry for our enemies. As was the case in 1960 and 1961 vis-a-vis a tottering Red China, we present a picture of "good heart, no brains."

FIGURES

In a letter to Senator Frank Lausche, Democrat of Ohio, Dr. Bela Fabian, the exiled Hungarian, has presented some extremely illuminating figures bearing on the failure of Khrushchev's attempt to turn desert into good wheatlands. Since 1954 more than ninety billion acres of virgin land have been put under the plow in the Soviet Union. By deporting "volunteers" to the dry reaches of Soviet Asia, Khrushchev tripled his "new lands" farmers. He also provided them with plenty of mechanical harvesters and tractors. But the farm machinery has, in many instances, been sabotaged, and the farm "volunteers" have indulged in slow-downs. Not only is Khrushchev unable to feed the Russians, he is also unable to feed Poland, Hungary, and Czechoslovakia.

In Cuba, Fidel Castro was having a hard time with his sugar, coffee and cocoa harvests. He had also managed to decimate Cuban cattle production. To get his sugar cane cut and his coffee beans picked, the bearded tyrant had to fall back on school children who were sent to the plantations on a "get out the harvest or else" basis. Then along came Hurricane Flora to play a disastrous role in Cuba comparable to the locust plague in China and the droughts in the Soviet Union.

From its network of Cuban sources, Daniel James' "Free Cuba News" has collected a mine of information bearing on what the hurricane had done to put Castro on the ropes. According to Mr. James, the three provinces affected most by the hurricane, Oriente, Camaguey, and Las Villas, contain 16,700,000 out of the total arable Cuban farmland of 22,400,000 acres. The winds of Flora, blowing at 120 and more miles per hour, brought rains and floods that ruined the standing crops on some 16,000,000 acres.

When Castro took stock of his farm situation after Flora had passed out to sea he found that his cocoa crop had been wiped out. Seventy per cent of the potential rice harvest had been ruined, sugar had been reduced fifty per cent, coffee expectations had been cut sixty-five per cent. In Oriente and Camaguey, sixty-one sugar mills had suffered heavy damage and, according to Dr. Tulio Diaz Rivera, president of the Cuban Economic Corporations in exile, "may very well be beyond repair since the Soviets cannot replace the destroyed parts."

If the U. S. and the rest of the west had only been prepared, they might have used the Russian crop failures as a lever to pry many concessions from Khrushchev. The wheat-surplus nations might have said: "Knock holes in the Berlin wall and we'll deliver our wheat thru the gaps." And if the Cuban exiles had really been permitted to reorganize after the Bay of Pigs, they would have been in position to follow Hurricane Flora into the eastern provinces of Camaguey and Oriente.

Well, opportunity knocks but once. But even if it knocked twice we'd never be ready anyway. For better or worse, we're like a heavyweight champ without a killer instinct.

Political Names

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, PhD

A few days ago a reader of the daily newspapers in which my column appears scolded me for my reluctance to mention the names of politicians. She wrote, "Why not name the names so I'll know which name to be made at?"

I'll try to answer that question because I believe it's important and because it is indicative of a frame of mind that got me into a lot of trouble.

After writing a political action column for a few years, I discovered something which amazed me. It makes no difference which politician violates what principle in which I believe. Then I began to understand why no politician really wants to reduce the size and cost and power of the government of which he is a part. At this point, I began to understand that every public office holder must be involved with some action which is designed to control me at my expense and for his support, and about that time I realized that every politician and public office holder is on one side of a fence and I am, inevitably, on the other. The name of the person who tries to control me at my expense and for his or her benefit and support, is of absolutely no consequence.

So, when I say I have instituted a personal and social and political boycott against every political figure, this obviously includes Goldwater and Rockefeller and Nixon and Kennedy, or anybody else who decides to try to become a part of government. There's no point in asking me if I think Joe would be a better president than Pete because I prefer to govern myself. I will not make a choice between chicken pox and measles because I prefer to remain healthy and must devote my energy towards that end. If you tell me I MUST make a choice between chicken pox and measles, I will suggest that you take a running jump at the moon, because I'm busy.

In the early months of 1960 I was completely involved in a political campaign. The candidate had discussed his political beliefs with me for a couple of years and we both wanted the size and cost and power of government drastically reduced. By the end of that campaign I realized we had selected the correct direction but that the method we were using was identical with the method being used by those we believed to be the absolute enemies of our freedom. This brought a vital point into sharp focus. For years I had inwardly cringed every time a political figure said, "Our side holds the balance of power. We must unite and exert this power for the good of all mankind." Yes, I cringed and I wrote violently against those who were plagued by a positive lust to hold power over me, BUT I wanted others to gain power over those whose power I feared. It just didn't make sense, nor does it!

So you see, Mrs. J.B.S., it does not matter which politican you name. If he seeks public office, he seeks power over others. If he does not seek public office, he cannot use the horrible force of government to achieve power over me. Sure, any human being afflicted by delusions of grandeur and a lust for power may attempt to control and enslave me but without the aggressive force of government backing that person up, I've got a chance.

No, Ma'am. The Constitution does not protect me. It has not protected me. Look at it for yourself. The Constitution provided a method of amending the Constitution. The 16th Amendment states: THE CONGRESS SHALL HAVE THE POWER TO LAY AND COLLECT TAXES ON INCOMES, FROM WHATEVER SOURCE DERIVED, WITHOUT APPORTIONMENT AMONG THE SEVERAL STATES AND WITHOUT REGARD TO ANY CENSUS OR ENUMERATION.

This amendment makes it possible for Congress to tax 100 per cent of my income regardless of the source from which my income may be derived, and do you know something else, Ma'am? I have no interest in the names of the power-hungry politicians who voted for the amendment because I fully understand that every politician must be hungry for power over others. But, let's go with this all the way; I do not seek power to control those who hold this power over my head. I just want to get them off my back. I'll not bother with their names.

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

AID DRAIN

To the Editor:

A propos of this chatter about foreign aid is an item I quote from "Human Events," that anathema of all liberals: "Another New Frontier myth about foreign aid — that most foreign aid dollars are spent in the United States, not abroad — was challenged last week. Dr. Lewis E. Lloyd, economist of the Dow Chemical Co., told a House committee that in fiscal 1962, about 84 per cent of total aid was spent outside the United States. He deemed it a big factor in our critical dollar drain."

USE OF FORCE

To the Editor:

Recently a writer reprimanded me for believing that a thinking adult should be a self-responsible individual reaping the rewards of his actions even when his rewards are the result of that which he has sown. The use of force against thy neighbor, even a property owner, is not to be desired.

I do not understand the thinking of a Christian when he advocates the use of force to gain his desires. When a Christian approves the use of force such action is not a good reputation among the non-Christian public.

If force is rectitude, if force is the golden rule, if Christ used force via a tax law, then for heaven's sake, Christian, let us use force to compel the non-Christian public to pay a tithe to the church. Force the Baptists to give to Methodists; force Catholics to give to Judaism.

It is true that that which is taken by force often brings limited benefits but the benefits which come by living the Golden Rule and Ten Commandments and abiding by the laws of nature are unlimited. Beauty? Freedom of choice is beauty. The beauty in the parable of the rich man is, he made his own choice.

Granting the other person the right to choose is showing a concern for the followers of Christ and it also shows a concern for those of the non-Christian world.

Apparently it has become a tradition among church people to use or advocate the use of force to gain what they believe (?) to be civic good, state good and world good. The first time, I remember entering a municipal park, the fee was one nickel. Since that day I have had civic pride.

It seems that that which was good among the early church is not to be desired today. I believe I read some scripture about the early churchmen and it read like: No room and board without paying for it, no idlers. Toil and drudge if need be. Work day and night rather than be a burden on society. The person who will not work shall not eat. No one shall mind everybody's business but their own. Work quietly. Use no force to compel another to do right. Be self-responsible.

LATVIAN PATRIOT

To the Editor:

With Veteran's Day at hand when we are supposed to remember and honor those who fought and died so that we may live in freedom, I also remember my native country, Latvia, and the way that freedom fighters were honored there. There was hardly a house without a flag. In Riga, capital of Latvia, there is a Brethren Cemetery like Arlington National Cemetery here. Several thousand patriots who gave their life during the struggle for independence lie there. During the times of free Latvia on November 11 solemn processions streamed to it and on the eve of Independence Day, November 18, a candle was lighted on every grave in gratitude of their sacrifice for freedom's sake.

After the occupation the Communists buried many Red Army soldiers there. But altho more than 23 years have passed since Stalin in cooperation with Hitler and the present rulers of Kremlin — Khrushchev and Mikoyan (as proven in documents and films) — liquidated the independence of Latvia and its neighbors Lithuania and Estonia, these nations have not forgotten the time of independence and the men who fought for it.

I have news that last fall during a gathering at the cemetery by the Communists who had gone to honor the enforcers of red slavery, suddenly there appeared a flag of free Latvia on a high tree behind the speaker's stand.

There are, under the red tyranny, people who know how to honor freedom: who risking their lives dare to raise the symbol of freedom — their flag. No amount of oppression and brainwashing has erased the desire for freedom from their hearts.

Here in free American flying of flags and honoring the dead is not a threat to life. It only takes a few moments of our time. Should not every house display a flag?

Quicker Action Is Demanded for Foreign Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate leaders talked of cracking down today to spur the battered foreign aid bill toward passage by Thursday.

The measure's foes are getting "redundant and repetitious" and are "beating the devil around the same old stump, over and over again," declared Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen as debate lurched into its third week.

He promised to whip things along by moving to table a score of amendments as soon as they are proposed by an insurgent Democratic group led by Sens. Wayne Morse of Oregon and Ernest Gruening of Alaska.

"We are going to try to finish passage of this bill by Thursday, if we can," said Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota, the assistant Democratic leader.

Dirksen and Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield have bowed to demands of opponents by agreeing to cut the measure to $3,742,365,000. President Kennedy had requested $4,529,615,000.

The House voted to slash Kennedy's request by $1,027,540,000 to $3,502,075,000.

Morse said he will fight for further cuts and a series of other amendments aimed at further restricting the use of foreign aid money.

Whatever the Senate finally votes, it will be subject to more reduction when Senate and House conferees meet later to reconcile the differences in their two authorization bills.

Even sharper cutting is forecast in a subsequent appropriations bill to provide the actual money. The authorization bill simply sets ceilings for spending.

Pending is an amendment by Morse to ban further economic or military aid to any country the United Nations has classified as exceptions to the definition of economically less developed nations.

While it is aimed primarily at prosperous Western European nations, it is broad enough to cover Japan and other developed countries.

The administration showed its greatest strength Friday when the Senate voted to restore the President's authority to continue most-favored-nation treatment in trade relations with Poland and Yugoslavia.

The administration regards the provision as vital to its policy of trying to woo Poland and Yugoslavia away from economic control by Moscow.

The House struck the provision from its foreign aid bill. Even if its spokesmen should accept it in conference, it could lead to a fight on the House floor if it is included in a compromise amendment.

FAVORED CANDIDATE

To the Editor:

The Republican party has one solid issue on which it can win in 1964 and one Republican whose qualifications make him the best choice to win on this issue. The fiscal irresponsibility of President Kennedy and his advisers is the issue. Senator John J. Williams of Delaware is the man.

Over-spending is an indefensible weakness of the Kennedy Administration. Unlike controversial questions of foreign and domestic policy, there are no pitfalls in this issue for the Republicans. A candidate who promises honest tax cuts, earned by prudent controls on federal spending cannot be accused of risking war or infringing on the rights of any race or any state.

The President is vulnerable on over-spending now. He will be more so in 1964, for despite his vague promises toward future economies, spending will soar to absurd new heights. The debt ceiling has been raised four times since he took office. The dollar has sunk to an all-time low of 45.2 cents, based on 100 cents in 1939.

To win on the issue of fiscal integrity, the Republican nominee must show the voters that uncontrolled spending must stop, for if the economy goes nothing else will matter very much. He must emphasize the large bite that bureaucratic overhead takes out of every tax dollar and how high taxes prevent business from expanding and creating new jobs. For his words to carry conviction he must be able to back them up with his own record.

During three terms in the Senate, John J. Williams has consistently and often effectively opposed over-spending. As ranking Republican member of the Senate Finance Committee he knows where spending could be cut without damage to the safety and well-being of the country. As a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee he has inside knowledge of foreign problems, knows where foreign aid is needed and where it could be trimmed.

In a contest with Mr. Kennedy, the sharp contrasts in the traits of the two men would bring Senator Williams closer to most voters. The President has never known the need of earning his own living. Born on a farm, John Williams did his share of farm chores and has succeeded in business and politics thru his own efforts. Speaking in cultured accents, the President often evades unpleasant realities. Senator Williams dwells on facts and states his case in the short, quotable sentences of an able and experienced man.

In three winning campaigns for a Senate seat, John Williams has stressed the opportunities and freedom of the American way of life and the ability of the average American to do more for himself than the government can do for him. In a recent speech he criticized "the new philosophy . . . that there is virtue in a government's living beyond its income."

While Senator Williams could be depended upon to give first priority in campaigning to fiscal matters, he would be certain to take a sensible, hard-headed approach to all of the country's problems. By nominating him, the Republican party would be supporting the integrity and solvency of America.

BELGRADE BUTCHER

To the Editor:

Tito, "The Butcher of Belgrade" (born Josip Broz) joined the Russian army in 1934. After the war he returned to Jugoslavia a full-fledged communist and led the drive to set up communist cells. Arrested and imprisoned he was exiled after his term in the penitentiary in 1937 he returned to Jugoslavia and took charge of the Communist Party. Hitler invaded Jugoslavia in 1941. A Jugoslavian government in exile was set up and Col. Draja Mihailovich was asked to form a resistance army which he did and this army was known as the "Chetniks." This army and the government in exile were recognized by Britain as the responsible defenders of Jugoslavia's freedom.

Hitler and Stalin agreed to disagree and Hitler invaded Russia. This was a situation made to order for Tito, the Russian communist puppet. He renamed his communist goons "Partisans" and announced to the world that they were the Peoples National Democratic Party for the liberation and freedom of Jugoslavia. Actually they were a bunch of undisciplined guerrillas which he ordered to attack Col. Mihailovich in the rear. The colonel was having enough trouble with the Germans and the aid he received from the British was not sufficient to fight two wars—the Germans in his front and the Jugoslavic traitors in his rear. Meanwhile, to the British, the Russians had changed from dastards to darlings! As Tito was known to be a Russian Communist puppet he became the beneficiary of the British change of face. On December 8, 1943 Richard Law, Britain's minister of state, informed the House of Commons that henceforth Tito was to be favored. Churchill then withdrew all support from Col. Mihailovich and his freedom fighters. This was the beginning of the end, and the start of the weary road to Tito's firing squad for Mihailovich. It also paved the way for Tito's rape of church and state in Jugoslavia. The terrible brutality that ensued earned for the Russian puppet the epithet THE BUTCHER OF BELGRADE. Thousands of Jugoslavian patriots were summarily executed. Thousands of others were sent to the horror of prison labor camps.

Tito, whose name will go down in infamy, a dictator without honor, was honored with a 21-gun salute by Kennedy.

Tito, the Russian stooge who ordered the shooting down and killing of American flyers—this is the monster Kennedy dignified with an invitation to the White House.

SOCIAL CURE

To the Editor:

The continuing integration-segregation controversy cannot possibly be resolved by the introduction of additional force. The solution, in fact, lies in the opposite direction. The formula is simple: 1. Repeal all laws which either prohibit or compel human association. 2. Pass no others. 3. Free the people from third party coercion and, their earnings from predation. 4. Relax and give human nature, freed of force, a chance.

Do these things and the people, integrating and segregating at will, will build you a peaceful, moral, and prosperous society.

Such a society will even forgive, retrain, and provide the thus displaced bureaucratic hordes with productivity employment.

"God has given to men all that is necessary for them to accomplish their destinies. He has provided a social form as well as a human form. And these social organs of persons are so constituted that they will develop themselves harmoniously in the clean air of liberty. Away, then, with quacks and organizers! Away with their rings, chains, hooks, and pinchers! Away with their artificial systems! Away with the whims of governmental administrators, their social projects, their centralization, their tariffs, their government schools, their state religions, their free credit, their bank monopolies, their regulations, their restrictions, their equalization by taxation, and their pious moralizations!

"And now that the legislators and do-gooders have so futilely inflicted so many systems upon society, may they finally end where they should have begun: May they reject all systems and try liberty; for liberty is an acknowledgment of faith in God and His works." Escape Proves Too Much for Prisoner

SHEFFIELD, Ala. (AP) — A 40-foot leap to freedom Monday from the second floor of the city jail into a clump of bushes was too much for escapee Sherman Chappell, 40. He turned himself in Tuesday.

"Here I am, come and get me, and take me to a doctor," Chappell told officers. He could hardly move, police said.

The backsore Chappell, awaiting trial on charges of selling mortgaged property and obtaining money by false pretense, had asked someone to call police and report his whereabouts.

South Africa Fails in 'Clean Bread' Campaign

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A public campaign for more hygienic handling of bread in South Africa, the continent's most industrially advanced country, has failed.

Many people wanted all bread to be wrapped, but the minister of Agricultural Economics and Marketing, Dirk Uys, says compulsory hygienic wrapping of bread would entail an additional government subsidy equivalent to $16.80 million annually. The price would have to be increased by an amount equal to three cents (American) per loaf, which would push up the cost of living in a country where bread forms a large part of the regular diet.

Some bakers have been trying to help by "bikini" wrapping bread—just a scanty piece of thin paper round the middle of the loaf—but the "bikini" generally falls off before the customer has gone very far.

One official said the only way the public can be sure of eating clean bread is to cut off all the crusts.

training and affectionate understanding. Cathay Pacific Airways has most kindly offered to air-lift the choir at half fare. If we succeed in this trip we will tour the United States early next year under the sponsorship of the New Jersey State Commission for the Blind. This was arranged by Joseph Kler, M.D. of P.O. Box 431, New Brunswick, N.J., U.S.A.

Our big problem now is that the choir members need several changes of uniform, choir robes, the light air-travel luggage. These items run into around HK $1,000 — which we just do not have right now.

Whatever help or publicity you could give to this worthy cause would be deeply appreciated.

FAVORED CANDIDATE

To the Editor:

The Republican party has one solid issue on which it can win in 1964 and one Republican whose qualifications make him the best choice to win on this issue. The fiscal irresponsibility of President Kennedy and his advisers is the issue. Senator John J. Williams of Delaware is the man.

Over-spending is an indefensible weakness of the Kennedy Administration. Unlike controversial questions of foreign and domestic policy, there are no pitfalls in this issue for the Republicans. A candidate who promises honest tax cuts, earned by prudent controls on federal spending cannot be accused of risking war or infringing on the rights of any race or any state.

The President is vulnerable on over-spending now. He will be more so in 1964, for despite his vague promises toward future economies, spending will soar to absurd new heights. The debt ceiling has been raised four times since he took office. The dollar has sunk to an all-time low of 45.2 cents, based on 100 cents in 1939.

To win on the issue of fiscal integrity, the Republican nominee must show the voters that uncontrolled spending must stop, for if the economy goes nothing else will matter very much. He must emphasize the large bite that bureaucratic overhead takes out of every tax dollar and how high taxes prevent business from expanding and creating new jobs. For his words to carry conviction he must be able to back them up with his own record.

During three terms in the Senate, John J. Williams has consistently and often effectively opposed over-spending. As ranking Republican member of the Senate Finance Committee he knows where spending could be cut without damage to the safety and well-being of the country. As a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee he has inside knowledge of foreign problems, knows where foreign aid is needed and where it could be trimmed.

In a contest with Mr. Kennedy, the sharp contrasts in the traits of the two men would bring Senator Williams closer to most voters. The President has never known the need of earning his own living. Born on a farm, John Williams did his share of farm chores and has succeeded in business and politics thru his own efforts. Speaking in cultured accents, the President often evades unpleasant realities. Senator Williams dwells on facts and states his case in the short, quotable sentences of an able and experienced man.

In three winning campaigns for a Senate seat, John Williams has stressed the opportunities and freedom of the American way of life and the ability of the average American to do more for himself than the government can do for him. In a recent speech he criticized "the new philosophy . . . that there is virtue in a government's living beyond its income."

While Senator Williams could be depended upon to give first priority in campaigning to fiscal matters, he would be certain to take a sensible, hard-headed approach to all of the country's problems. By nominating him, the Republican party would be supporting the integrity and solvency of America.

BELGRADE BUTCHER

To the Editor:

Tito, "The Butcher of Belgrade" (born Josip Broz) joined the Russian army in 1934. After the war he returned to Jugoslavia a full-fledged communist and led the drive to set up communist cells. Arrested and imprisoned he was exiled after his term in the penitentiary in 1937 he returned to Jugoslavia and took charge of the Communist Party. Hitler invaded Jugoslavia in 1941. A Jugoslavian government in exile was set up and Col. Draja Mihailovich was asked to form a resistance army which he did and this army was known as the "Chetniks." This army and the government in exile were recognized by Britain as the responsible defenders of Jugoslavia's freedom.

Hitler and Stalin agreed to disagree and Hitler invaded Russia. This was a situation made to order for Tito, the Russian communist puppet. He renamed his communist goons "Partisans" and announced to the world that they were the Peoples National Democratic Party for the liberation and freedom of Jugoslavia. Actually they were a bunch of undisciplined guerrillas which he ordered to attack Col. Mihailovich in the rear. The colonel was having enough trouble with the Germans and the aid he received from the British was not sufficient to fight two wars—the Germans in his front and the Jugoslavic traitors in his rear. Meanwhile, to the British, the Russians had changed from dastards to darlings! As Tito was known to be a Russian Communist puppet he became the beneficiary of the British change of face. On December 8, 1943 Richard Law, Britain's minister of state, informed the House of Commons that henceforth Tito was to be favored. Churchill then withdrew all support from Col. Mihailovich and his freedom fighters. This was the beginning of the end, and the start of the weary road to Tito's firing squad for Mihailovich. It also paved the way for Tito's rape of church and state in Jugoslavia. The terrible brutality that ensued earned for the Russian puppet the epithet THE BUTCHER OF BELGRADE. Thousands of Jugoslavian patriots were summarily executed. Thousands of others were sent to the horror of prison labor camps.

Tito, whose name will go down in infamy, a dictator without honor, was honored with a 21-gun salute by Kennedy.

Tito, the Russian stooge who ordered the shooting down and killing of American flyers—this is the monster Kennedy dignified with an invitation to the White House.

SOCIAL CURE

To the Editor:

The continuing integration-segregation controversy cannot possibly be resolved by the introduction of additional force. The solution, in fact, lies in the opposite direction. The formula is simple: 1. Repeal all laws which either prohibit or compel human association. 2. Pass no others. 3. Free the people from third party coercion and, their earnings from predation. 4. Relax and give human nature, freed of force, a chance.

Do these things and the people, integrating and segregating at will, will build you a peaceful, moral, and prosperous society.

Such a society will even forgive, retrain, and provide the thus displaced bureaucratic hordes with productivity employment.

"God has given to men all that is necessary for them to accomplish their destinies. He has provided a social form as well as a human form. And these social organs of persons are so constituted that they will develop themselves harmoniously in the clean air of liberty. Away, then, with quacks and organizers! Away with their rings, chains, hooks, and pinchers! Away with their artificial systems! Away with the whims of governmental administrators, their social projects, their centralization, their tariffs, their government schools, their state religions, their free credit, their bank monopolies, their regulations, their restrictions, their equalization by taxation, and their pious moralizations!

"And now that the legislators and do-gooders have so futilely inflicted so many systems upon society, may they finally end where they should have begun: May they reject all systems and try liberty; for liberty is an acknowledgment of faith in God and His works." Escape Proves Too Much for Prisoner

SHEFFIELD, Ala. (AP) — A 40-foot leap to freedom Monday from the second floor of the city jail into a clump of bushes was too much for escapee Sherman Chappell, 40. He turned himself in Tuesday.

"Here I am, come and get me, and take me to a doctor," Chappell told officers. He could hardly move, police said.

The backsore Chappell, awaiting trial on charges of selling mortgaged property and obtaining money by false pretense, had asked someone to call police and report his whereabouts.

GETS EARLY START

Sorensen told the Women's National Democratic Club that Kennedy had "devoted more years to major elective office than the leading three Republican candidates combined." He listed Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Michigan Gov. George Romney.

South Africa Fails in 'Clean Bread' Campaign

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A public campaign for more hygienic handling of bread in South Africa, the continent's most industrially advanced country, has failed.

Many people wanted all bread to be wrapped, but the minister of Agricultural Economics and Marketing, Dirk Uys, says compulsory hygienic wrapping of bread would entail an additional government subsidy equivalent to $16.80 million annually. The price would have to be increased by an amount equal to three cents (American) per loaf, which would push up the cost of living in a country where bread forms a large part of the regular diet.

Some bakers have been trying to help by "bikini" wrapping bread—just a scanty piece of thin paper round the middle of the loaf—but the "bikini" generally falls off before the customer has gone very far.

One official said the only way the public can be sure of eating clean bread is to cut off all the crusts.

Supreme Court Plunges Into State Disputes

By PAUL M. YOST

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court plunges deeply today into the thicket of state legislative and congressional apportionments.

The tribunal has scheduled arguments in eight appeals that will be debated for more than 17 hours through this week's court sessions and winding up early next week.

The central theme in the cases is the allegation that metropolitan area voters are discriminated against by divisions favoring rural areas. Out of the group of cases is expected to come an understanding of what is necessary under the Constitution to provide fair represetation to all citizens.

Appeals to be heard this week, in this order, are from New York, Alabama (three cases), Maryland and Virginia. They involve legislative districting. Next week cases involving congressional apportionment in Georgia and New York will be heard. Still another legislative districting case, from Delaware, will be argued on Dec. 9.

Other requests for hearings are pending in cases from Michigan, Florida, Washington State, Ohio, Oklahoma, Colorado and New York City's Borough of Queens. Action on these requests may be deferred pending final decisions in the cases now up for argument.

On March 26, 1962 the Supreme Court in a Tennessee reapportionment case ruled for the first time that state legislative districting was subject to constitutional challenge in federal courts. The ruling gave no hint as to what degree of equality the Constitution requires.

With the door thus opened to apportionment suits, a flood of litigation developed in lower courts. Imbalances in districting have been attacked in suits in more than 30 states. Lower courts have given conflicting decisions that seem to require eventual resolution by the Supreme Court.

While all this litigation is under way, numerous states have changed or are in process of changing the representation of urban and suburban areas in their legislatures.

In the confused situation, a Justice Department "friend of the court" brief filed with the Supreme Court contended that population must be the basic standard for districting. It said gross inequalities exist that violate the equal protection guarantee of the Constitution's 14th Amendment.

The brief was signed by Solicitor General Archibald Cox, who will present the department's views during the arguments this week and next. The brief said any deviation from a population standard is unconstitutional unless the differentiation has a relevant and substantial justification. It added that the high court need not decide now what would be a substantial justification.

Cox suggested in the brief that the Supreme Court rule that legislative apportionments in New York, Alabama, Maryland and Virginia are unconstitutionally discriminatory.

The appeal to be argued today was filed by radio station WMCA of New York City. WMCA contends legislative apportionment of New York State systematically discriminates against urban voters. The station advocated that apportionment of both houses of the legislature be based on population.

Louis J. Lefkowitz, attorney general of New York State, in a preliminary reply brief said the state follows a formula which has been part of its fundamental law since 1894.

"This formula stresses per capita representation in both houses of the legislature, but also requires that certain other factors be taken into account. . . there is no crazy-quilt pattern or manifestly capricious discrimination. The apportionment is systematic and is kept reasonably current."

Big Patch of Lawn Suddenly Disappears

ALHAMBRA, Calif. (AP) — "We were sitting on the front porch when all of a sudden a big patch of lawn started to move, then dropped out of sight," a housewife declared.

Esther Baker, wife of a bank supervisor, said the hole appeared over the weekend. Police were summoned. "An officer looked into the hole, suggested we fill it up, then left," she said Monday.

"But then we discovered that the bottom of the hole apparently is the top of an old Indian or Spanish well. That means it could go down another 50 or 100 feet."

Amateur Ship Salvagers Refloat Yacht

By DIAL TORGERSON

REDONDO BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Leonard Wibberley, a writer of the adventurous sort, dived down for a look at the sunken 55-foot yawl he had just purchased for salvage.

"She was trying to sail, sitting there on the bottom, with the sea for a wind," said Wibberley. "She went down with all her sails set, and they were billowing out from the current.

"In a rage of sentiment, we said, 'Let's raise her.'"

Wibberley spoke squatting on the deck of the yawl Emerald as she floated proudly in King Harbor, the injuries that sank her patched, and the promise in the wind that she is soon to sail again.

How Wibberley and three other amateur ship salvagers bought a 55-foot yacht for $500—and raised and saved her—is a lesson for anyone who thinks sentiment a poor guide to investment.

But it probably surprised Wibberley less than anyone else. He has had his share of luck, and knows exactly how it is made.

Nine years ago he quit his job as a newspaperman and waited for his novel, "The Mouse That Roared," to sell. It was an improbable tale of a tiny European principality's war victory over the United States.

"I had been out of work about three months, and the neighbors, without my knowledge, were slipping groceries into the house," Wibberley recalled. "Then it sold for $20,000. We quickly called together all the neighbors and had a wonderful party."

Since then Wibberley has written more than 50 books, grown a luxuriant beard, expanded his family to six children, and bought two yachts.

On one, a 40-footer, he plans to sail with his family next year to the South Pacific. The other is the resurrected yawl, the Emerald.

She went down one Friday last June when a heavy surge pushed her into the King Harbor breakwater off Redondo Beach. The passengers stepped off onto the breakwater as the yawl slipped down in 50 feet of water.

The insurance company was anxious to sell her—for two reasons: anyone buying her would assume the responsibility for her; and professional salvagers thought it would cost most of the $20,000 for which she was insured to try and bring her up.

Wibberley and three skindiving friends, Bob and Bill Meistrell and Don Siverts, bought her for $500, on the bottom, and planned just to break her up for salvage until they went down and saw how pretty she looked.

The Emerald is a sturdily built old J. Murray Watts design laid down in San Francisco in 1924. She would cost $50,000,000 to reproduce today. $50,000 to reproduce today. Her teak topside and oak ribs weren't hurt by the water, but se had to be brought up quickly.

Wibberley, 48, is an amateur skindiver; his associates run a skindiving shop. It was Bill Meistrell who thought of a skindivers' solution: "Let's hang inner tubes on her," he said, "and fill them with air from scuba tanks."

They bought 140 used inner tubes for $1 each and spent three days diving down, using oxygen units for their own air, filling the tubes with air from similar tanks.

"It took 250 bottles of air," said Meistrell. "Then, the Tuesday after she sank, Bob and I were down on the deck, filling tubes, when it began to gradually get lighter. Suddenly the water disappeared and we were on the surface, looking at each other in amazement."

It cost them $4,700 for shipyard repairs to the damaged planking. They spent more on a 100 h.p. diesel engine, and will probably have $12,000 invested by the time the interior paneling is replaced. "We've already been offered $17,500 for her," said Meistrell.

Amateur Ship Salvagers Refloat Yacht

By DIAL TORGERSON

REDONDO BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Leonard Wibberley, a writer of the adventurous sort, dived down for a look at the sunken 55-foot yawl he had just purchased for salvage.

"She was trying to sail, sitting there on the bottom, with the sea for a wind," said Wibberley. "She went down with all her sails set, and they were billowing out from the current.

"In a rage of sentiment, we said, 'Let's raise her.'"

Wibberley spoke squatting on the deck of the yawl Emerald as she floated proudly in King Harbor, the injuries that sank her patched, and the promise in the wind that she is soon to sail again.

How Wibberley and three other amateur ship salvagers bought a 55-foot yacht for $500—and raised and saved her—is a lesson for anyone who thinks sentiment a poor guide to investment.

But it probably surprised Wibberley less than anyone else. He has had his share of luck, and knows exactly how it is made.

Nine years ago he quit his job as a newspaperman and waited for his novel, "The Mouse That Roared," to sell. It was an improbable tale of a tiny European principality's war victory over the United States.

"I had been out of work about three months, and the neighbors, without my knowledge, were slipping groceries into the house," Wibberley recalled. "Then it sold for $20,000. We quickly called together all the neighbors and had a wonderful party."

Four Accused Spies Executed by Castro

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro's government announced Monday night it executed four accused agents of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency. They were convicted of infiltrating Cuba for subversive activities.

The four, tried by a military court Monday, were identified as Antonio Cobelas Rodriguez, Orlando Sanchez Zaraza, Luis Millan Rodriguez and Jose Bolanos Morales.

A government announcement said their assignment was to "draft recruits for CIA activities and convince them to leave Cuba for the United States where they would be trained and infiltrated back into our country." It said they came to Cuba aboard a boat from Florida.

Last Friday, the government announced the execution of five men it accused of being CIA agents.

Bottle Cast Into Gulf Stream Found in Spain

By LYNN POOLE
The John Hopkins University

Today there is still a place for high adventure, daring-do and fantastic exploits of the kind recorded in Robinson Crusoe, Tom Sawyer and other glamorous books we read when we were young people!

Recent proof of the continuing existence of such excitement came to my attention last week. Only July 25, 1962, Wilbert E. Locklin, assistant to the president of Baltimore's John Hopkins University, was vacationing in the Caribbean on a chartered yacht. While in port at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., one night Kenneth, Locklin's 13 year old son, became buddies with Michael McHugh, another 13 year old from Montreal, Canada. Both boys have vivid imaginations, so the two teenagers decided to write their names and addresses on a piece of paper and invited another Canadian, Lyle McCoy, 10, to add his name. Kenneth and Michael sealed the paper inside an empty gallon jug and took it aboard the Locklins' yacht.

While cruising in the Gulf Stream Kenneth tossed the bottle overboard, midpoint of a direct line between Bimini and Miami Beach, Fla. With a sense of dramatic flair the teenagers performed the ceremony with great flourish and consigned the bottle to the sea hoping that it would bob its way across the ocean and eventually be found on some foreign shore.

Little did they know that on Aug. 19, 1963, when they had reached the age of 14, the gallon jug would be picked up on the shore of Spain by Manuel Rodriguez Casal, a 14 year old Spanish boy!

Manuel was wandering on the beach of a small river, saw a strange looking object covered with tiny barnacles. Something about the object stirred his curiosity. He picked it up, crashed it against a rock and found the note written by Kenneth Locklin and Michael McHugh in Fort Lauderdale a year before. Water vapor had entered the bottle as it was tossed by tides, winds and currents, and ploughed its way thru icy storms across the Atlantic, and followed the rock-bound coast of western Europe. The names of the boys were illegible but Michael's address in Montreal, Canada, could be easily read. On Aug. 25 a letter written in beautiful penmanship was received by Michael. Imagine the excitement when he read the letter, got on the telephone to Kenneth Locklin in Baltimore to report that their bottle had made a miraculous journey across the sea and had been found in Spain! The letter from a Spanish man read:

"Dear Sir: I have received a bottle which was put into the sea on an unknown date and arrived on Spanish soil on Aug. 19, 1963. It entered thru the entrance of the very busy Port of Cedeira which port is located between Capes Prior and Estaca de Bares. It must have had a difficult entry into the port but its final destination was even more difficult for the bottle. After entering the port with the rising tide, it proceeded up a river and was left on some field shore where it was found by a 13 year old kid named Manuel Rodriguez Casal, who handed it to me.

"It had inside three messages from which we could only understand the address in order to write to you. The messages were wet because of the vapor of the inside of the bottle; also it had on the cover approximately one kilogram of goose barnacles. You probably do not know what these are in your country. We call them 'percebes' which is an edible worm-like barnacle considered a delicacy in Spain but uncommon to the eastern United States.

"I cannot give you more information but would be grateful if you would reply to this letter and let me know the date on which the bottle was put into the sea.

"I greet you from Spain."
Sincerely,
Manuel Rodriguez Garcia
El Nivel, Cadeira
El Ferrol del Caudillo
La Coruna, Espana

Michael's father, Dr. Hollie McHugh of 564 Kenaston Ave. in Montreal wrote immediately to Senor Garcia giving him the date on which the bottle was thrown into the Caribbean.

Locklin, at the Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, contacted the Hopkins department of oceanography and with their assistance was able to plot the course taken by the castaway bottle during its lonely trip from the United States to Spain. Oceanographers tell Mr. Locklin that a rough estimate is that it traveled at the rate of one-half mile an hour for a distance of nearly 4,000 miles during the year. Oceanographic maps of currents, waves and weather plotted thruout the year indicate that the bottle traveled northward in the Gulf Stream, was carried northwest across the Newfoundland basin. At this point it entered the North Atlantic current. Several hundred miles south of the Faraday Seamount Group it split away from the North Atlantic current and was deflected southward into the west European basin and reached the Port of Cedeira north of El Ferrol del Caudillo.

Entering the harbor it miraculously escaped being shattered by small and large boats which enter and leave the harbor by the hundreds each day. Protected by some genie of the sea it proceeded up the small river, went ashore where it was found by 14 year old Manuel Rodriguez Casal!

The American and Spanish boys are now entering into a lively across-the-ocean correspondence. Their understandable excitement over this remarkable modern Odyssey stimulates the boys to say that "We have probably done more good for international relationships than all the United Nations put together." Having tasted the thrill of the successful arrival of their castaway bottle, both boys are now insisting that they be taken to Spain to meet their bottle-found friend, a teenager who obviously has their same buccaneering sense of curiosity and high adventure.

African Women Bullied By Own Tribal Youths

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) —Black nationalists' "bullying" of African women who adopt Western styles is condemned by the Johannesburg Star.

Latest example is reported from Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, where African youths cut to ribbons an African girl's short Western-style dress. They accused her of showing "disrespect for African custom."

In South Africa women who had their crinkly hair straightened had it slashed off by angry African youths. African women using Western cosmetics have been publicly abused.

"National and tribal traditions are important," comments the Star editorially. "But much more important is the ancient principle of the freedom of the individual to choose his own way of life within the law. Nobody is entitled to dictate what personal tastes shall be, least of all young hooligans who have not learned the elementary rules of good behavior. Strong-arm methods are not the way."

Actor Kills Himself After Wife Is Slain

LOGANDALE, Nev. (AP)—Actor Hugh D. Pryor, sought by police since his wife was slain six days ago in Pasadena, Calif. was found shot to death near a desert road Monday, sheriff's officers said. They said he apparently committed suicide.

Deputies said the body had been there three or four days. A bullet had pierced Pryor's chest and a .22-caliber pistol was found in his hand.

Officers said they also found a note but they did not divulge its contents. Pryor was identified by cards found on the body.

Pryor's wife, Jacqueline, 32, was shot last Tuesday night at the home of friends in Pasadena. Police said Pryor, 38, followed her there and became enraged when she would not leave with him.

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro's government announced Monday night it executed four accused agents of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency. They were convicted of infiltrating Cuba for subversive activities.

The four, tried by a military court Monday, were identified as Antonio Cobelas Rodriguez, Orlando Sanchez Zaraza, Luis Millan Rodriguez and Jose Bolanos Morales.

A government announcement said their assignment was to "draft recruits for CIA activities and convince them to leave Cuba for the United States where they would be trained and infiltrated back into our country." It said they came to Cuba aboard a boat from Florida.

Last Friday, the government announced the execution of five men it accused of being CIA agents.

By LYNN POOLE
The John Hopkins University

Today there is still a place for high adventure, daring-do and fantastic exploits of the kind recorded in Robinson Crusoe, Tom Sawyer and other glamorous books we read when we were young people!

Recent proof of the continuing existence of such excitement came to my attention last week. Only July 25, 1962, Wilbert E. Locklin, assistant to the president of Baltimore's John Hopkins University, was vacationing in the Caribbean on a chartered yacht. While in port at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., one night Kenneth, Locklin's 13 year old son, became buddies with Michael McHugh, another 13 year old from Montreal, Canada. Both boys have vivid imaginations, so the two teenagers decided to write their names and addresses on a piece of paper and invited another Canadian, Lyle McCoy, 10, to add his name. Kenneth and Michael sealed the paper inside an empty gallon jug and took it aboard the Locklins' yacht.

While cruising in the Gulf Stream Kenneth tossed the bottle overboard, midpoint of a direct line between Bimini and Miami Beach, Fla. With a sense of dramatic flair the teenagers performed the ceremony with great flourish and consigned the bottle to the sea hoping that it would bob its way across the ocean and eventually be found on some foreign shore.

Little did they know that on Aug. 19, 1963, when they had reached the age of 14, the gallon jug would be picked up on the shore of Spain by Manuel Rodriguez Casal, a 14 year old Spanish boy!

Manuel was wandering on the beach of a small river, saw a strange looking object covered with tiny barnacles. Something about the object stirred his curiosity. He picked it up, crashed it against a rock and found the note written by Kenneth Locklin and Michael McHugh in Fort Lauderdale a year before. Water vapor had entered the bottle as it was tossed by tides, winds and currents, and ploughed its way thru icy storms across the Atlantic, and followed the rock-bound coast of western Europe. The names of the boys were illegible but Michael's address in Montreal, Canada, could be easily read. On Aug. 25 a letter written in beautiful penmanship was received by Michael. Imagine the excitement when he read the letter, got on the telephone to Kenneth Locklin in Baltimore to report that their bottle had made a miraculous journey across the sea and had been found in Spain! The letter from a Spanish man read:

"Dear Sir: I have received a bottle which was put into the sea on an unknown date and arrived on Spanish soil on Aug. 19, 1963. It entered thru the entrance of the very busy Port of Cedeira which port is located between Capes Prior and Estaca de Bares. It must have had a difficult entry into the port but its final destination was even more difficult for the bottle. After entering the port with the rising tide, it proceeded up a river and was left on some field shore where it was found by a 13 year old kid named Manuel Rodriguez Casal, who handed it to me.

"It had inside three messages from which we could only understand the address in order to write to you. The messages were wet because of the vapor of the inside of the bottle; also it had on the cover approximately one kilogram of goose barnacles. You probably do not know what these are in your country. We call them 'percebes' which is an edible worm-like barnacle considered a delicacy in Spain but uncommon to the eastern United States.

"I cannot give you more information but would be grateful if you would reply to this letter and let me know the date on which the bottle was put into the sea.

"I greet you from Spain."

Sincerely,
Manuel Rodriguez Garcia

El Ferrol del Caudillo
La Coruna, Espana

Michael's father, Dr. Hollie McHugh of 564 Kenaston Ave. in Montreal wrote immediately to Senor Garcia giving him the date on which the bottle was thrown into the Caribbean.

Locklin, at the Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, contacted the Hopkins department of oceanography and with their assistance was able to plot the course taken by the castaway bottle during its lonely trip from the United States to Spain. Oceanographers tell Mr. Locklin that a rough estimate is that it traveled at the rate of one-half mile an hour for a distance of nearly 4,000 miles during the year. Oceanographic maps of currents, waves and weather plotted thruout the year indicate that the bottle traveled northward in the Gulf Stream, was carried northwest across the Newfoundland basin. At this point it entered the North Atlantic current. Several hundred miles south of the Faraday Seamount Group it split away from the North Atlantic current and was deflected southward into the west European basin and reached the Port of Cedeira north of El Ferrol del Caudillo.

Entering the harbor it miraculously escaped being shattered by small and large boats which enter and leave the harbor by the hundreds each day. Protected by some genie of the sea it proceeded up the small river, went ashore where it was found by 14 year old Manuel Rodriguez Casal!

The American and Spanish boys are now entering into a lively across-the-ocean correspondence. Their understandable excitement over this remarkable modern Odyssey stimulates the boys to say that "We have probably done more good for international relationships than all the United Nations put together." Having tasted the thrill of the successful arrival of their castaway bottle, both boys are now insisting that they be taken to Spain to meet their bottle-found friend, a teenager who obviously has their same buccaneering sense of curiosity and high adventure.

African Women Bullied By Own Tribal Youths

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) —Black nationalists' "bullying" of African women who adopt Western styles is condemned by the Johannesburg Star.

Latest example is reported from Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, where African youths cut to ribbons an African girl's short Western-style dress. They accused her of showing "disrespect for African custom."

In South Africa women who had their crinkly hair straightened had it slashed off by angry African youths. African women using Western cosmetics have been publicly abused.

"National and tribal traditions are important," comments the Star editorially. "But much more important is the ancient principle of the freedom of the individual to choose his own way of life within the law. Nobody is entitled to dictate what personal tastes shall be, least of all young hooligans who have not learned the elementary rules of good behavior. Strong-arm methods are not the way."

Actor Kills Himself After Wife Is Slain

LOGANDALE, Nev. (AP)—Actor Hugh D. Pryor, sought by police since his wife was slain six days ago in Pasadena, Calif. was found shot to death near a desert road Monday, sheriff's officers said. They said he apparently committed suicide.

Deputies said the body had been there three or four days. A bullet had pierced Pryor's chest and a .22-caliber pistol was found in his hand.

Officers said they also found a note but they did not divulge its contents. Pryor was identified by cards found on the body.

Pryor's wife, Jacqueline, 32, was shot last Tuesday night at the home of friends in Pasadena. Police said Pryor, 38, followed her there and became enraged when she would not leave with him.

Sports Car Race Request Is Denied

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Fairmount Park Commission was considering a request that sports car races be allowed in the park next summer.

Chairman Fredric R. Mann said a similar request was rejected in 1953 because the commission could find no economical way of protecting spectators.

Financier Albert M. Greenfield Sr., a commission member, asked: "how are you going to pay for this thing?"

"They (the applicants) have rich fathers, like you," Mann said.

"Frankly," Greenfield said, "I don't believe this is a good thing for the park. I don't think we should do it."

The request by Albert M. Greenfield Jr., treasurer of Road Races, Inc., was denied.

HILLBILLIES IS TOP SHOW IN ENGLAND, FAR EAST

HOLLYWOOD, — Buddy Ebsen is riding the crest and loving every second. Hillbillies is No. 1 in England, Australia, and Japan. Since he got thru his stunt on Bing Crosby's show, Buddy's agreed to sing and dance with Andy Williams and Danny Kaye: "I was scared. There I was with a 35-piece orchestra, dressed in my new tux (first one I ever had tailored), standin' next to Bing, and they said sing! Bing fathered six boys and a girl, you know, and I had six girls and Dusty."

Every time Buddy leaves for work, his 4-year-old son asks, "Why do you go into town every day?"

"I gotta get the money."

"O, you have enough," says Dusty.

"Every time we drive by a toy store you want everything in the window for Christmas. O. K., that's why I go to town."

After the golf match in Palm Springs, Frank and his gang will put on a show at the Riviera for those who came in for the tournament with Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Rosemary Clooney, Sammy Davis, Dean Martin, and Les Brown's band.

Deborah Kerr may linger longer in Mexico after "Iguana" to do "Viva Miss Brown." Her husband, Peter Viertel, is there finishing his novel.

Donna Reed returns to her home town, Dennison, Iowa, population 5,000, to help kick off the building fund for a new $8 million college. She'll speak in the high school from which she graduated, and her parents who still live in Dennison will be proud onlookers.

Carmella Flint writes from Chicago: "I took your advice and saw 'Lilies of the Field.' Spent the next day writing letters urging my friends to see it. Sidney Poitier's performance was unforgettable. I hope he wins the Oscar. I listened to the people as they left the theater. They were all happy and discussing how people communicate and relate to one another. I hope other producers will have courage to do more like it. It's picture making at its best."

Tony Richardson checked into town for three hours to discuss Evelyn Waugh's story "The Loved One" which he'll direct for Marty Ransohoff. Hope he had a better reception than the author after his book came out. There wasn't an English actor or writer working here who would speak to him.

Here's a horror. Somebody claims he'll buy rights to Albert Finney's stage hit "Luther" for Marlon Brando. That subject was taken care of beautifully on screen a few years ago by Louis de Rochemont.

Nunnally Johnson's girl, Christie, got herself a nice Swedish husband in Bjorn Axel Rolfsson Aspudd. Wonder how that Cornpone Nunnally will pronounce that.

The mayors across country are sure alert. Henry Loeb, kingpin of Memphis, wrote to set the record straight about his neglecting Elvis Presley in favor of George Hamilton: "Elvis had his day in 1961. Thanks for mentioning our city and outstanding citizen, Elvis."

Packaged A-War Aids American Air Defense

By DOUGLAS DILTZ

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — The United States, which has a genius of being able to package almost anything, has even managed to package simulated nuclear war.

The mock war creates the realistic illusion of an enemy missile and bomber attack on the U.S.

Of course, you won't find it in the supermarkets like most other packaged products. The simulated attack is highly classified and is available only to the military forces for training and testing the nation's military retaliatory strength.

The North American Air Defense (NORAD) center at Colorado Springs, Colo., uses the "Packaged Air Raids" to see how well all of its commands react to a make-believe nuclear war.

Because of the training provided by "Packaged Air Raids," military leaders say the U.S. now would be able to counter a missile-bomber attack on this nation with great swiftness and effectiveness—so as to be able to retaliate with a devastating blow against the enemy.

SDC produces electronic computer tapes, films and maps which recreate virtually every aspect of a possible nuclear-age battle.

When a command wants to simulate an attack, it runs a tape through a computer, triggering simulated full - scale war conditions. Maps, charts and films flash on screens and blips appear on radar scopes.

Operational personnel respond as if it were actual war—tracking, monitoring the tactical actions, engaging and destroying hostile air objects.

There are about 100 different simulated attacks on the U.S., including total attack.

In one such simulated full-scale attack, more than 2,000 officers and 8,000 enlisted men at 250 U.S. air defense sites took part. To produce the mock battle, scientists designed and produced 28,000 feet of display film, 33,600 feet of computer tape and more than 6 million square feet of machine -produced maps.

During the course of the attack some 5 billion calculations were made by the computers to simulate the millions of miles flown by the invading bomber force and U.S. interceptor planes.

Of more than 2,500 species of wasps in North America, only about 50 are troublesome to man.

Donna Reed returns to her home town, Dennison, Iowa, population 5,000, to help kick off the building fund for a new $8 million college. She'll speak in the high school from which she graduated, and her parents who still live in Dennison will be proud onlookers.

Carmella Flint writes from Chicago: "I took your advice and saw 'Lilies of the Field.' Spent the next day writing letters urging my friends to see it. Sidney Poitier's performance was unforgettable. I hope he wins the Oscar. I listened to the people as they left the theater. They were all happy and discussing how people communicate and relate to one another. I hope other producers will have courage to do more like it. It's picture making at its best."

Tony Richardson checked into town for three hours to discuss Evelyn Waugh's story "The Loved One" which he'll direct for Marty Ransohoff. Hope he had a better reception than the author after his book came out. There wasn't an English actor or writer working here who would speak to him.

Here's a horror. Somebody claims he'll buy rights to Albert Finney's stage hit "Luther" for Marlon Brando. That subject was taken care of beautifully on screen a few years ago by Louis de Rochemont.

Nunnally Johnson's girl, Christie, got herself a nice Swedish husband in Bjorn Axel Rolfsson Aspudd. Wonder how that Cornpone Nunnally will pronounce that.

The mayors across country are sure alert. Henry Loeb, kingpin of Memphis, wrote to set the record straight about his neglecting Elvis Presley in favor of George Hamilton: "Elvis had his day in 1961. Thanks for mentioning our city and outstanding citizen, Elvis."

Packaged A-War Aids American Air Defense

By DOUGLAS DILTZ

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — The United States, which has a genius of being able to package almost anything, has even managed to package simulated nuclear war.

The mock war creates the realistic illusion of an enemy missile and bomber attack on the U.S.

Of course, you won't find it in the supermarkets like most other packaged products. The simulated attack is highly classified and is available only to the military forces for training and testing the nation's military retaliatory strength.

The North American Air Defense (NORAD) center at Colorado Springs, Colo., uses the "Packaged Air Raids" to see how well all of its commands react to a make-believe nuclear war.

Because of the training provided by "Packaged Air Raids," military leaders say the U.S. now would be able to counter a missile-bomber attack on this nation with great swiftness and effectiveness—so as to be able to retaliate with a devastating blow against the enemy.

SDC produces electronic computer tapes, films and maps which recreate virtually every aspect of a possible nuclear-age battle.

When a command wants to simulate an attack, it runs a tape through a computer, triggering simulated full-scale war conditions. Maps, charts and films flash on screens and blips appear on radar scopes.

Information includes such things as weather, weapons, missile trajectories, speed of enemy aircraft.

Operational personnel respond as if it were actual war—tracking, monitoring the tactical actions, engaging and destroying hostile air objects.

There are about 100 different simulated attacks on the U.S., including total attack.

In one such simulated full-scale attack, more than 2,000 officers and 8,000 enlisted men at 250 U.S. air defense sites took part. To produce the mock battle, scientists designed and produced 28,000 feet of display film, 33,600 feet of computer tape and more than 6 million square feet of machine-produced maps.

During the course of the attack some 5 billion calculations were made by the computers to simulate the millions of miles flown by the invading bomber force and U.S. interceptor planes.

Of more than 2,500 species of wasps in North America, only about 50 are troublesome to man.

Canada Described as Last Frontier by Club Speaker

Canada was described as the "last frontier" Tuesday by Fred Norman, officer for the Canadian Government Imigration Service.

Norman spoke to members of the Monument-Palmer Lake Kiwanis Club and said his country has more than seven million acres of undeveloped agricultural land and immigrants from the U. S. are settling in Canada at the rate of 11,000 per year.

He said that immigration traffic between the U. S. and Canada is heavy and that for every one person from the U. S. who takes permanent residence in Canada, there are four Canadians who move to this country.

"We like for citizens of the U. S. to be our neighbors, visitors, investors — but above all, we want them to be friends," Norman said.

"It is unfortunate that we have some anti-Americanism in our country — but basically and usually it is a political issue. Our two countries are united by tradition and geography and it is vital that our ties remain fast," said the immigration officer.

Norman said the standards of the two capitalistic countries are equal to no other economic system in the world and it is a special responsibility for the U. S. and Canada to work together to achieve improved standards elsewhere in the world.

"Our inter-country unity has existed since 1814," said Norman, "and we must expand to include all nations in similar unity."

Norman said Canada is now on the threshhold of industrial development and conditions there today are those that existed in the U. S. economic system in the late 19th century.

He spoke briefly on the fundamental political difference of the two countries and said that while the U. S. implementation of democracy dates to 1776, Canada has followed the democratic form of government only since the 1800's.

"Therefore," Norman said, "our system of electing a prime minister and the cabinet members is a result of studying other democratic systems and not one of experiment."

Norman urged further unity of the two countries thru changing our terminology to refer to the "North American way of life" rather than the U. S. or Canadian way.

He commended Kiwanis Club members for their work in fostering friendship between the two nations and noted that the first Kiwanis Club in Canada was formed in 1916 in Toronto — just one year after the first club was formed in this country in Detroit, Mich.

Norman has been affiliated with the Canadian Immigration Service Office in Denver since June '62 and said his only complaint is the fact that his Canadian pay check is shrunk by eight cents per dollar in the United States.

Armed Forces News

By STEVE TILLMAN

WASHINGTON. (Special to the Gazette Telegraph) new military pay increase, to be effective October 1964, is expected to be presented to Congress by the Pentagon early in 1964. Preliminary word is that the pay increase per grade will be approximately 5 per cent.

Estimates are that the next pay increase for retirees will be in 1965 in the form of a cost of living increase. Thus the new pay proposal for active duty personnel may be approximately the same.

The officer primarily responsible for the 1964 pay study is Air Force Brig. Gen. Julian H Bowman who has since retired and is now with Ling-Temco-Vought, Inc., Dallas, Tex., as cooperate manager of customer relations. Big question here is will he be available as consultant for the new pay program?

The Prssident has signed the military construction program bill.

Congressional members are worried over the heavy mail protesting any government employe salary raise this year. Failure to act on the pending measure means no $10,000 salary increase for senators and congressmen which is very disheartening. Much of the opposition mentioned in their letters negative views gained from press items on shennanigans that have been going on in Washington.

Marine Corps to level are not happy over the report just made to Congress by the general accounting office saying that faulty combat equipment of third Marine Division in Okinawa kept the division far from being combat ready last year.

Maine Sen. Margaret Chase Smith is expected to confirm our previous tip that she will be the Republican vice presidential candidate, December 5, when she speaks to the Women's National Press Club here.

Congressional action is expected soon on a pending bill to create four-year tour for chiefs of services; but if Congress does pass it, the White House is expected to veto it.

Six brigadier generals have been nominated for a second star. They are Robert H. York, Harry W. O. Kinnard, Charles E. Johnson, third, George P. Sampson, William C. Garrison, and John G. Zierdt. Of the nominees two are permanent colonels (York and Zierdt) and one (Kinnard) is a regular lieutenant colonel.

Ten colonels have been nominated for their first star. They are: Harry G. Woodbury Jr., Paul A. Feyereisen, Byron L. Steger, Robert M. Williams, George B. Pickett Jr., Richard G. Ciccolella, Charles A. Corcoran, Livingston N. Taylor Jr., John K. Boles Jr., and Joseph S. Hardin.

Ciccolella, a regular lieutenant colonel, is now Chief of Plans and Operations of Office DC-S for Unit Training and Readiness, CONARC, Ft. Monroe.

Comments reaching Washington from press members who "made the trip" with BIG LIFT, indicate that the fine staff work and terrific cooperation demonstrated by the Army and Air Force was dimmed by sterile public relations handling on other side. The claim was made that resultant hassle over whether we would or would not withdraw units was traced to the uncoordinated press handling.

Press and "wires" references to a "retired Army major general," Julius Klein, as highly paid agent operating in Washington in behalf of West German interests are misleading to the general public and are resented by career officers. Klein is a retired reserve officer not a retired regular. This identity is overlooked in press items.

A congressional hassle may be in the making over the Defense Secretary's decision not to go for an atomic carrier at this time. One congressional committee feels that it was slighted in the Pentagon briefing. Other congressional sources intimating that the President was not given "all of the facts" when he supported the decision made by McNamara.

On Veterans Day, members of various veteran organizations here in Washington placed a wreath of poppies flown in from Flanders Field, France, to honor the memory of the great Gen. John J. Pershing. The action revived recollection that so far, the Army has failed to give Pershing's name to any military installation.

The military is in for more disappointment. The word right now here in Washington is that no Congressional approval is expected on the proposed tax cut.

Nineteen planes of the B-47 jet bomber force in Great Britain are to be withdrawn by midsummer, 1964. In addition, the Pentagon is returning to the States a squadron of 22 KB-50 tanker aircraft used for air refueling; they are no longer being required for Air Force operations in Europe. Two bases in Great Britain are to be returned to the RAF. The 420th Air Refueling Squadron stationed in Norfolk, England, is to be deactivated.

Just about every third and fourth star army General has been mentioned by Pentagon supporters as the next Army Chief of Staff, all of which has been duly reported in this column. Personally our selection is Lt. Gen. William Child Westmoreland, Former Superintendent of West Point, now stationed at Ft. Bragg.

Westmoreland, born March 26, 1914, in South Carolina, is a 1936 graduate of West Point. He was a field artillery officer, as was Gen. Maxwell Taylor after he had served four years with the Corps of Engineers. Westmoreland has had tour at Pentagon as secretary to the Army General Staff, which gives unusual superior "know how" to any Chief of Staff.

Democratic Congressman from Oklahoma Victor Wickersham, in reporting on his recent trip to Europe said that in general, off-base housing for military personnel is poor and the cost of rent and utilities is very high compared with the quality received. He also said that overseas pay should be returned to those stationed in areas where living costs are higher than usual. He also called for reconsideration of policy taking away proficiency pay. The Congressman is a member of the House Armed Services Committee but said nothing anent any formal action he may seek to take care of these points.

More delay ahead for official action on the well-known Bolte recommendations. One unanswered Army question: will the approval of the program take officers the present privilege of retirement in a ROPA grade, higher than active duty grade, without requirement of any active duty in the ROPA grade?

Very few active duty Reserve officers remain who have had any notable Reserve time. Most have already retired. This gives the Reservist an extra 25 per cent in retired pay for 10 years of non-active duty time. Regular officers must serve two years in grade before becoming eligible for retired pay of such grade.

Satisfied with the performance of the AR-15 rifle in Vietnam, the Army is expected to re-tag it the M-16 and issue it to airborne, air assault, and Special Forces units.

To give support to the pending Congressional bill for the ROTC, the Reserve Officers Association points out that the Army spends $4,000 per graduate of ROTC in contrast with $45,000 for the average graduate of West Point. No breakdown of these reputed costs has been made public by ROA; nor did it make any mention of the quality of the product or retention percentage of the two categories. This is very important.

Other sources say that if the costs were made on the basis of the time that each is actually under military control the cost of the ROTC cadet would be greater than $4,000. The ROTC program basically is intended as a "feeder" for officers into Reserve and National Guard programs.

The Air Force is planning to return many rated officers now assigned to non-flying jobs back to full time flying, the Air Force is facing rather acute pilot shortage.

Some 5,500 primary zone Captains and 175 from secondary zone, are under consideration by the Air Force for promotion to fill 3,450 higher grade vacancies.

CC Receives Sears, Roebuck Education Grant

The Colorado College is among nearly 500 private colleges and universities in the country to receive grants under Sears, Roebuck and Co.'s 1963 aid-to-education program, it was announced today.

G. A. Cheney, manager of Sears store here, said the grant is one of 66 being made this year to private schools located within Sears Southwest territory.

First approved by the firm's board of directors last year, Sears, aid-to-higher education program has, since its inception, distributed $1,400,000 to private colleges and universities across the country, Cheney said.

All the grants have been unrestricted, he added, enabling these schools to use their funds for purposes they consider most vital.

"We at Sears believe business firms should, whenever possible, help private institutions of higher learning meet their financial needs. We view aid to private higher education not as philanthropy, but as an investment in the nation's future," Cheney said.

During the same two-year period in which Sears aid-to-higher education program has been in effect, an additional $1,300,000 has been given to institutions of higher learning by The Sears-Roebuck Foundation, the non-profit corporation endowed by Sears to carry on charitable, scientific, and educational programs.

Two defendants were each fined $200 and costs by Justice of the Peace H. C. McShane Tuesday for driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

Thiel also cited Robert John Suntrum, 31, of 3941 Stanton Dr. as he was driving at 40 miles per hour in a 30 zone on North Hancock Avenue Oct. 27. A $10 fine and costs was imposed.

State Patrolman Carl Drake gave a ticket to Blanche Roxie Medlock, 65, of 204 S. Hancock Ave. for careless driving. The violation happened Nov. 6 on Colorado Highway 115 and a $5 fine and costs was paid.

Michael Gallowat Mitchener, 15, of 135 S. Black Forest Rd. was charged with driving without a valid operator's license in the Black Forest area Oct. 29 and fined $5 and costs. Deahl was the officer.

Special Phone Lines Set for K-O Polio Drive

The Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph Co. has set aside three lines for K-O Polio Sunday to help residents learn the answers to specific questions not available thru the series of news releases published almost daily on the Sabin vaccination program. The number is 636-3738.

Anticipating the questions of many residents, Dr. William Stone, chairman of the public health committee of the El Paso County Medical Society said today, "anyone over three months of age should take the Sabin oral vaccine. Maybe you have a cold or a headache. . . If you are well enough to get to a clinic, you are well enough to receive the vaccine.

A baby three months of age will receive the vaccine by dropper in the mouth; everyone else will receive it on a sugar cube. One cube of sugar is not enough to cause trouble to a diabetic, however, if a patient is advised by his physician not to have the sugar cube then the vaccine can be administered without it."

Many residents wonder why they should receive Sabin vaccine when they have already had four or five or more Salk injections. According to Dr. Stone the reasons are two-fold. First the live vaccine provides permanent protection. With Salk shots, boosters are continually needed. Second, the Sabin serum will eliminate the virus in healthy carriers. Thus a successful Sabin vaccination program involving all of El Paso and Teller Counties can truly knock out polio by eliminating the virus from the community.

"In the future, with only routine vaccination of infants, polio could easily become a disease of the past. This is why it is so important that everyone come to a nearby public grade school and receive the Sabin vaccine," he added.

Residents will be charged 25 cents to offset the costs of the program. Anyone who cannot afford the fee will receive the vaccine free of charge.

Polio type II and III will be administered on January 5 and February 16 respectively. All three types of vaccine are needed for complete protection.

City Sues In Platte Zone Hassle

A complaint which says the defendants had "malevolent intent of injuring and depraving" a neighborhood, was filed in District Court Tuesday by the City of Colorado Springs against Jess and Martha Frame.

According to the suit, the defendants own two lots at the south east corner of Platte and Hancock Avenues which they bought from Alfred E. Rupp, Sept. 14, 1961.

Rupp, it is stated, petitioned the city for zone changes which were denied, and that "for the sole purpose of revenge and spite, and with a view to compelling the city and residents of the area to submit to spot zoning, and to change the area from a residential area to a commercial or industrial area, Rupp placed three delapitated and unsightly dwellings on the lot."

On Sept. 14, the complaint alleges, the defendants "with full knowledge of the malicious purpose for which Rupp placed the houses on the lots' purchased lots from him, "with malevolent intent of injuring and depraving said neighborhood." It is further alleged the defendants wished to continue "the nuisance so as to compel the city to re-zone the lots."

It is petitioned that the buildings be determined a public nuisance and that the defendants be compelled to remove them.

City Approves Shopping Center Traffic Plan

City Council gave its stamp of approval Tuesday to a traffic plan which would ease congestion on Union Boulevard anticipated by the proposed 20-acre Conover shopping center.

The plan provides for "deceleration lanes" at DePaul and LeLaray Streets to expedite right turns off Union Boulevard to the center, immediately south of the Rock Island Railroad tracks.

Parking on Union Boulevard will be prohibited in the area, according to the plan designed by Jay R. Myers, assistant city traffic engineer, and M. R. Pearce, director of public works.

In accepting the traffic plan, City Council also okayed the preliminary plat of the 60-acre Conover Subdivision No. 3 being developed by Everett Conover.

Conover and his brother, Paul, plan development of a 30-unit apartment complex overlooking the Patty Jewett Golf Course which will eventually house 400 persons.

The council also accepted the final plat of a 1.92-acre tract on the northeast part of the Conover property.

In the traffic study, Myers and Pearce noted that present traffic volume on Union Boulevard runs well over 13,000 cars a day. The 1975 volume is predicted at 23,000.

Construction of the four-lane roadway is expected to begin immediately.

City Council also cleared the way for construction of a service station and apartments at Pikes Peak Avenue and South Circle Drive by giving final approval on a zone change for William Wiley. The southeast corner of the property was reclassified from R-2 (single family residential) to C-5 (intermediate business) and R-5 (multi-family residential).

Council gave approval for vacation of an alley between Boulder Street and Platte Avenue, midway between Union Boulevard and Meade Ave., so that construction can get started on an office building for Security Savings and Loan Association.

The association and Crossroads Corporation plan development of a business center on the block just south of Ent Air Force Base.

By STEVE TILLMAN

WASHINGTON (Special to Gazette Telegraph) new military pay increase, to be effective October 1964, is expected to be presented to Congress by the Pentagon early in 1964. Preliminary word is that the pay increase per grade will be approximately 5 per cent.

Estimates are that the next pay increase for retirees will be in 1965 in the form of a cost of living increase. Thus the new pay proposal for active duty personnel may be approximately the same.

The officer primarily responsible for the 1964 pay study is Air Force Brig. Gen. Julian H. Bowman who has since retired and is now with Ling-Temco-Vought, Inc., Dallas, Tex., as cooperate manager of customer relations. Big question here is will he be available as consultant for the new pay program?

The Prssident has signed the military construction program bill.

Congressional members are worried over the heavy mail protesting any government employe salary raise this year. Failure to act on the pending measure means no $10,000 salary increase for senators and congressmen which is very disheartening. Much of the opposition mentioned in their letters negative views gained from press items on shennanigans that have been going on in Washington.

Marine Corps to level are not happy over the report just made to Congress by the general accounting office saying that faulty combat equipment of third Marine Division in Okinawa kept the division far from being combat ready last year.

Maine Sen. Margaret Chase Smith is expected to confirm our previous tip that she will be the Republican vice presidential candidate, December 5, when she speaks to the Women's National Press Club here.

Congressional action is expected soon on a pending bill to create four-year tour for chiefs of services; but if Congress does pass it, the White House is expected to veto it.

Six brigadier generals have been nominated for a second star. They are Robert H. York, Harry W. O. Kinnard, Charles E. Johnson, third, George P. Sampson, William C. Garrison, and John G. Zierdt. Of the nominees two are permanent colonels (York and Zierdt) and one (Kinnard) is a regular lieutenant colonel.

Ten colonels have been nominated for their first star. They are: Harry G. Woodbury Jr., Paul A. Feyereisen, Byron L. Steger, Robert M. Williams, George B. Pickett Jr., Richard G. Ciccolella, Charles A. Corcoran, Livingston N. Taylor Jr., John K. Boles Jr., and Joseph S. Hardin.

Ciccolella, a regular lieutenant colonel, is now Chief of Plans and Operations of Office DC-S for Unit Training and Readiness, CONARC, Ft. Monroe.

Comments reaching Washington from press members who "made the trip" with BIG LIFT, indicate that the fine staff work and terrific cooperation demonstrated by the Army and Air Force was dimmed by sterile public relations handling on other side. The claim was made that resultant hassle over whether we would or would not withdraw units was traced to the uncoordinated press handling.

Press and "wires" references to a "retired Army major general," Julius Klein, as highly paid agent operating in Washington in behalf of West German interests are misleading to the general public and are resented by career officers. Klein is a retired reserve officer not a retired regular. This identity is overlooked in press items.

A congressional hassle may be in the making over the Defense Secretary's decision not to go for an atomic carrier at this time. One congressional committee feels that it was slighted in the Pentagon briefing. Other congressional sources intimating that the President was not given "all of the facts" when he supported the decision made by McNamara.

On Veterans Day, members of various veteran organizations here in Washington placed a wreath of poppies flown in from Flanders Field, France, to honor the memory of the great Gen. John J. Pershing. The action revived recollection that so far, the Army has failed to give Pershing's name to any military installation.

The military is in for more disappointment. The word right now here in Washington is that no Congressional approval is expected on the proposed tax cut.

Nineteen planes of the B-47 jet bomber force in Great Britain are to be withdrawn by midsummer, 1964. In addition, the Pentagon is returning to the States a squadron of 22 KB-50 tanker aircraft used for air refueling; they are no longer being required for Air Force operations in Europe. Two bases in Great Britain are to be returned to the RAF. The 420th Air Refueling Squadron stationed in Norfolk, England, is to be deactivated.

Just about every third and fourth star army General has been mentioned by Pentagon supporters as the next Army Chief of Staff, all of which has been duly reported in this column. Personally our selection is Lt. Gen. William Child Westmoreland, Former Superintendent of West Point, now stationed at Ft. Bragg.

Westmoreland, born March 26, 1914, in South Carolina, is a 1936 graduate of West Point. He was a field artillery officer, as was Gen. Maxwell Taylor after he had served four years with the Corps of Engineers. Westmoreland has had tour at Pentagon as secretary to the Army General Staff, which gives unusual superior "know how" to any Chief of Staff.

Democratic Congressman from Oklahoma Victor Wickersham, in reporting on his recent trip to Europe said that in general, off-base housing for military personnel is poor and the cost of rent and utilities is very high compared with the quality received. He also said that overseas pay should be returned to those stationed in areas where living costs are higher than usual. He also called for reconsideration of policy taking away proficiency pay. The Congressman is a member of the House Armed Services Committee but said nothing anent any formal action he may seek to take care of these points.

More delay ahead for official action on the well-known Bolte recommendations. One unanswered Army question: will the approval of the program take away from active duty Reserve officers the present privilege of retirement in a ROPA grade, higher than active duty grade, without requirement of any active duty in the ROPA grade?

Very few active duty Reserve officers remain who have had any notable Reserve time. Most have already retired. This gives the Reservist an extra 25 per cent in retired pay for 10 years of non-active duty time. Regular officers must serve two years in grade before becoming eligible for retired pay of such grade.

Satisfied with the performance of the AR-15 rifle in Vietnam, the Army is expected to re-tag it the M-16 and issue it to airborne, air assault, and Special Forces units.

To give support to the pending Congressional bill for the ROTC, the Reserve Officers Association points out that the Army spends $4,000 per graduate of ROTC in contrast with $45,000 for the average graduate of West Point. No breakdown of these reputed costs has been made public by ROA; nor did it make any mention of the quality of the product or retention percentage of the two categories. This is very important.

Other sources say that if the costs were made on the basis of the time that each is actually under military control the cost of the ROTC cadet would be greater than $4,000. The ROTC program basically is intended as a "feeder" for officers into Reserve and National Guard programs.

The Air Force is planning to return many rated officers now assigned to non-flying jobs back to full time flying, the Air Force is facing rather acute pilot shortage.

Some 5,500 primary zone Captains and 175 from secondary zone, are under consideration by the Air Force for promotion to fill 3,450 higher grade vacancies.

CC Receives Sears, Roebuck Education Grant

The Colorado College is among nearly 500 private colleges and universities in the country to receive grants under Sears, Roebuck and Co.'s 1963 aid-to-education program, it was announced today.

G. A. Cheney, manager of Sears store here, said the grant is one of 66 being made this year to private schools located within Sears Southwest territory.

First approved by the firm's board of directors last year, Sears, aid-to-higher education program has, since its inception, distributed $1,400,000 to private colleges and universities across the country, Cheney said.

All the grants have been unrestricted, he added, enabling these schools to use their funds for purposes they consider most vital.

"We at Sears believe business firms should, whenever possible, help private institutions of higher learning meet their financial needs. We view aid to private higher education not as philanthropy, but as an investment in the nation's future," Cheney said.

During the same two-year period in which Sears aid-to-higher education program has been in effect, an additional $1,300,000 has been given to institutions of higher learning by The Sears-Roebuck Foundation, the non-profit corporation endowed by Sears to carry on charitable, scientific, and educational programs.

Canada Described as Last Frontier by Club Speaker

Canada was described as the "last frontier" Tuesday by Fred Norman, officer for the Canadian Government Imigration Service.

Norman spoke to members of the Monument-Palmer Lake Kiwanis Club and said his country has more than seven million acres of undeveloped agricultural land and immigrants from the U. S. are settling in Canada at the rate of 11,000 per year.

He said that immigration traffic between the U. S. and Canada is heavy and that for every one person from the U. S. who takes permanent residence in Canada, there are four Canadians who move to this country.

"We like for citizens of the U. S. to be our neighbors, visitors, investors — but above all, we want them to be friends," Norman said.

"It is unfortunate that we have some anti-Americanism in our country — but basically and usually it is a political issue. Our two countries are united by tradition and geography and it is vital that our ties remain fast," said the immigration officer.

Norman said the standards of the two capitalistic countries are equal to no other economic system in the world and it is a special responsibility for the U. S. and Canada to work together to achieve improved standards elsewhere in the world.

"Our inter-country unity has existed since 1814," said Norman, "and we must expand to include all nations in similar unity."

Norman said Canada is now on the threshhold of industrial development and conditions there today are those that existed in the U. S. economic system in the late 19th century.

He spoke briefly on the fundamental political difference of the two countries and said that while the U. S. implementation of democracy dates to 1776, Canada has followed the democratic form of government only since the 1800's.

"Therefore," Norman said, "our system of electing a prime minister and the cabinet members is a result of studying other democratic systems and not one of experiment."

Norman urged further unity of the two countries thru changing our terminology to refer to the "North American way of life" rather than the U. S. or Canadian way.

He commended Kiwanis Club members for their work in fostering friendship between the two nations and noted that the first Kiwanis Club in Canada was formed in 1916 in Toronto — just one year after the first club was formed in this country in Detroit, Mich.

Norman has been affiliated with the Canadian Immigration Service Office in Denver since June '62 and said his only complaint is the fact that his Canadian pay check is shrunk by eight cents per dollar in the United States.

The council also accepted the final plat of a 1.92-acre tract on the northeast part of the Conover property.

In the traffic study, Myers and Pearce noted that present traffic volume on Union Boulevard runs well over 13,000 cars a day. The 1975 volume is predicted at 23,000.

Construction of the four-lane roadway is expected to begin immediately.

City Council also cleared the way for construction of a service station and apartments at Pikes Peak Avenue and South Circle Drive by giving final approval on a zone change for William Wiley. The southeast corner of the property was reclassified from R-2 (single family residential) to C-5 (intermediate business) and R-5 (multi-family residential).

Council gave approval for vacation of an alley between Boulder Street and Platte Avenue, midway between Union Boulevard and Meade Ave., so that construction can get started on an office building for Security Savings and Loan Association.

The association and Crossroads Corporation plan development of a business center on the block just south of Ent Air Force Base.

Jail Sentence Imposed On Assault Charge

John Caulder received a suspended sentence of 30 days in county jail plus a $25 fine and $8.60 costs from Justice of the Peace James F. Quine Tuesday after he pleaded guilty to assault and battery.

Caulder, 27, of 128 E. Navajo St. was at the Navajo night club Thursday and after insulting Sarah Berce, the waitress, struck her several times and dragged her around the room by her hair.

LEMONS WON'T CURE ARTHRITIS

P. W. writes: "Is it true that drinking lots of lemon juice will cure arthritis? I've had these pains for several years." No, but groves of lemons are sold every day for this and other ailments. The same can be said of other minerals, and combinations of these nutritional substances.

"Diet plays a role in that everyone, including arthritics, should eat a well balanced diet. The obese with painful knees, ankles, and hips are helped by reducing weight. The gouty get along better by limiting the intake of certain proteins. But, beyond this, the connection between fruit juices and the joints is not strong.

Why are so many silly remedies proposed and why do people spend hundreds of millions of dollars on quack cures? Because we lack a specific effective treatment for the disease. Many persons live in fear of being crippled by arthritis, not realizing that this can be avoided with adequate care, including the use of the corticosteroids and physical therapy.

Back to the silly cures. Careful studies have shown that half of all victims of rheumatoid arthritis improve with or without treatment. This was demonstrated in a large arthritis clinic where every other patient was given an inert tablet containing starch or sugar (placebo). The other received established anti-arthritis remedies. At the end of a year, just as many were cured in the placebo as in the treated group.

If lemon juice had been used instead of sugar tablets, a certain number could expect spontaneous relief and we could count on their believing the sun rises and sets on lemon juice. This group did not include osteoarthritis that tends to come and go, depending upon the weather and activity.

But this is not all. Not every ache and pain in and near a joint is arthritis. As a result, many persons are taking medicine for conditions that mimic arthritis: spriins, bursitis, torn cartilages, or infections. Most of these disorders get well in time but credit is given to the last drug, vitamin, or food that was taken.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

BED IS BETTER

R. G. writes: Is it true that sleeping on the ground is better than using a bed? I'm a student and am thinking of using the living room floor.

REPLY

Take your choice. As for me, I'm not a bear for punishment and like a nice warm bed with a firm mattress. It is not where, but how you sleep that is important from the health point of view.

TINGLING ARM

L. E. writes: Is a tingling sensation in one hand and arm a sign of old age? (I'm 70.)

REPLY

No. It indicates pressure on nerves leading to the involved arm. Tingling also may stem from other neurological conditions, poor circulation, oranemia.

TOO LITTLE IRON

P. L. G. writes: What is hypochromic anemia?

REPLY

Hypo means a deficiency and chromic refers to color. This adds up to a deficiency of hemoglobin, or coloring matter in the red cells (anemia).

MULTIPLE SCLEROSIS

S. M. writes: What is the current theory on the treatment of multiple sclerosis?

D.C. WASH

By G. VAN DER HEUVEL

CLARE WILLIAMS

WASHINGTON — Of all people, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith's feminine colleagues are the ones who are throwing cold water off her possible GOP presidential nomination venture.

Two astute women politicans, former heads of women's activities for the Democratic and Republican National Committees, think the Senator from Maine has an insurmountable obstacle — her sex. This is in spite of the fact that there are some 5 million more women than men voters.

Democrat Katie Louchheim, now a deputy assistant secretary of state, says: "The plain truth is that women don't support other women in politics."

Republican Clare Williams was more specific in pointing out that the New England Senator has everything going for her politicaly but her sex.

REAL AIM IS SHOT A TVICE PRESIDENCY

Mrs. Smith herself realizes for the same reason that it would be silly to aim as high as the Presidency, so her contemplated entry into several GOP Presidential primaries would be in the hope that a good showing would give her a chance at second place.

While Mrs. Smith herself has still to make up her feminine mind, we asked Mrs. Williams whether she thought the Senator as a Vice Presidential choice would help or hinder the ticket.

"Mrs. Smith's capacities would certainly be of assistance to the ticket," she said, "but the overall consideration is: should a woman be Vice President?

"When you talk of running a person for Vice President, you are not talking just of the Vice Presidency; you are talking of the Presidency. Three times in this century the Vice President was succeeded to the Presidency. Therefore, consideration of a Vice President is of the gravest concern."

POINTS OUT FEELING OF OTHER NATIONS

She carefully pointed out the international significance of the U. S. top officeholder.

"He not only heads this government as the commander-in-chief as well as the President, but he has the most important single position in the world. Not all our allies and the emerging nations are ready to consider a woman in that spot. Many places still consider women inferior beings — chattels. In Italy, for instance, there was a great hue and cry against the appointment of Clare Booth Luce as ambassador."

All of which shows that the room at the top has a "men only" sign on it.

This week's politest conversation (at a Soviet Embassy reception):

U. S. diplomat (to Russia's Tass representative, Mike Sagatelyan): "Congratulations on your astronaut wedding in Moscow."

Sagatelyan: "Thank you. And congratulations on your coup in Viet Nam."

The announcement of Mrs. Kennedy's plans to accompany the President to Texas Nov. 21 and 22 has Democratic politicos grinning from here to there. This is the first real political trip Jackie has made since her husband became President, and they're hoping it means she'll be making other political trips between now and next year's election. No matter how the polls go up and down on the President, the Kennedy Democrats think Jackie's popularity across the country remains constant.

Could it be that there are other ringers among the vaunted historic furnishings in the newly redone White House? The suspicion was raised this week during a morning tour of the President's mansion by the usual horde of sightseers.

One visitor, a Cuban, suddenly grabbed a metal urn displayed in the Red Room and hurled it at a mirror, billed as a relic of Andrew Jackson's Presidency. The missile shattered the glass, the culprit was hauled off to a hospital mental ward and red-faced White House police picked up the fragments. Then it developed that no real damage had been done. The fram was intact. The mirror glass was pure 20th Century, and so never had reflected Andrew Jackson's countenance.

But will breaking it bring sombody seven years' bad luck?

Reciprocity — During last week's blockade of American troops on the Berlin autobahn, a Soviet diplomat came into the State Department here with a batch of traffic tickes the embassy had acquired. Assisant Secretary for Public Affairs Robert J. Manning agreed to accord them the usual diplomatic immunity — but "only on the condition that you will all dismount and be counted."

New facets of the Bobby Baker fiasco keep the former Senate Majority secretary the No. 1 topic of capital conversation. Longtime hill associates say that Baker, who parlayed a $19,600-a-year job into a million dollar financial operation, began tieing too many tails to his kite when Lyndon Johnson left the Senate Majority leadership.

"Johnson worked the devil out of him," one Senate aid said. "Bobby never left the Capital while Lyndon was running the Senate. When (Sen. Mike) Mansfield took over, he practically ignored Baker. Bobby had time on his hands.

A politician from way back, Baker knew where every vote was on every bill. His judgment was respected by Senators from both sides of the aisle.

However, he had a vast amount of arogance that hardly endeared him to the second echelon on the Hill. He sent more than one administrative assistant packing with a curt: "if the Senator wants to know how the leadership feels about this bill, he can see me himself or see Lyndon. I haven't time to talk to you about it."

And the Senator usually did.

Rep. Tom Steed (D-Okla.), who created his own stir in the midst of the Senate's Profumo-on-the-Potomac scandal, now says he didn't mean his celebrated charge that one unnamed Senator had two call girls on hs payroll. What he really meant, he now says, is that a Senator had two girls on his payroll on call.

In today's hand, there was a silver lining in the dark cloud of declarer's unfortunate trump break. For South managed to convert his trump loser into an asset employing it as a means of saddling his opponent with the lead in the end play.

West opened the king of diamonds against the final contract and continued the suit as South ruffed the third round. The ace-king of trumps were cashed and, when East discarded a heart on the second spade, West was revealed to have a sure trick in the suit.

Declarer could see that if he led hearts himself he would have to lose the setting trick. The only way he could induce the opponents to open the suit for him was to deprive them of all other exit cards, so he proceeded to strip out the hand.

The ace, king, and queen of clubs were played, and on the queen South carefully threw a heart from the dummy, so he would be able to ruff another diamond subsequently. The last club was trumped by North as West followed suit.

A diamond was led and ruffed by South. Although West had no more diamonds, he refrained from overruffing, but he was merely postponing the fatal moment. Declarer had completed the preliminaries and he now exited with his last trump to throw West into the lead.

West returned the nine of hearts and South was confronted with a guess as to the location of the king of hearts. Since West had already shown up with all the missing strength in the other suits, declarer decided to play East for the heart king. He therefore played the five of hearts from dummy and East was helpless to prevent South from winning the last two tricks.

DEAR ABBY: Two years ago I loaned a friend $200 to help her out of a jam with a finance company. Her husband didn't know anything about it and she was afraid to tell him. For Kaffeklatch

For a quick kaffeeklatch cake special try this. Add ¼ cup of uncooked chopped prunes, ½ teaspoon of grated orange rind, 1 egg and ½ cup of milk to a package (10½ ounces) of coffee cake mix. Mix and bake as the label directs. Cut and serve warm. Serves 8.

During the past year program grants from World Fellowship Funds contributed by members of the YWCAs of the USA aided YWCAs in 18 countries overseas to strengthen their programs and to start new projects to help meet human needs.

Perking Up

NEW YORK (UPI)—Chances are that virtually every cup of coffee you have ever consumed has been brewed from a blend of several or many coffees.

The Coffee Brewing Institute reports that a coffee blend is a flavor harmony of various coffees chosen for specific qualities and combined to form a congenial whole.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

Anyone who has children knows that peanut butter and jelly sandwiches are in demand . . .

But the worst thing about it, is that the jelly drips no matter how you make the sandwich.

One day I decided to mix the peanut butter and jelly together and cream it into a beautiful paste. I mixed and blended until it was completely smooth. I found this so successful that I now mix a jar at a time and the children can make their own sandwiches without any more worries of drippy jelly down the front of their clothes. —Mrs. Leo Fairchild Jr.

Now, if you aren't an angel to think of a non-drip method for jelly. Think of the mothers who are going to love you. Bless you for telling us. —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

To remove oily and greasy spots from my garments I use liquid shampoo. Any kind of shampoo one happens to have on hand will do, although I get better results from concentrated shampoo.

Rub the shampoo directly into the oily or greasy spots on the garment then drop the garment in your clothes hamper until laundry day. (It may be washed out immediately if so desired.) This method has saved several grease spattered garments for me.

Shampoo is also wonderful to rub around the neckline of a dress, or the collar of a man's shirt, especially if the wearer has the type of oily skin that always leaves a discoloration. The shampoo restores the "like-new" look and does not require the hard rubbing that causes those areas to fray and wear out too soon.

Modern shampoos are made to cut oil and greasy-type film, and seem to be extraordinarily gentle. None of my garments has retained a spot or a trace of a stain after using shampoo in this manner. —Mrs. M. A. Helm

Dear Heloise:

If you anchor a towel bar on the inside wall of a closet where brooms, mops or even ironing boards are kept . . . slip the handles under the bar, they will never topple out when you open that closet door.—M. Salerno.

Dear Heloise:

Quite by accident I found a way to get tomato stains off a rubber spatula.

One night I made a pizza and left the spatula covered with sauce overnight. You can imagine how stained it was. It would not come off.

Another night I left my spatula in my shortening pan and by morning the stain was completely gone.

Now when I stain my spatula I cover it with shortening, set it aside and leave overnight. —Pat Karlbom

Dear Heloise:

Please tell your mothers who are on a budget not to waste that leftover pancake batter.

I dip slices of fruit such as bananas, pineapple, etc. into the leftover batter and fry it.

Can anyone tell me how to remove the rings on glasses?

No matter how hard I wash, or how much I try, I cannot get this white ring off.

I will appreciate any answer. —Gladys E. Kinny

Does anyone have the answer to this? If so pick up that pencil and drop us a note. Write to Heloise in care of this paper. —Heloise

TROUBLESOME MINORITY

NEW YORK (UPI) — A recent 11-city survey of teen-age drivers and their motoring habits showed that 27 per cent of the 6.5 million high school drivers cause all of the age group's accidents.

Union Carbide's consumer division, sponsor of the survey, also found that high school driver education is a major force in preventing accidents. An estimated 60 per cent fewer accidents were noted among those who had taken the course than among untrained teen-age drivers.

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — The Prince of Wales, heir to the British throne, will be 15 Thursday.

He is definitely on the short side, but he has one of the longest names and titles going.

In full it is: His Royal Highness Prince Charles Philip Arthur George, knight of the Garter, Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester, Duke of Cornwall, Duke of Rothesay, Earl of Carrick, Lord of Renfew, Lord of the Isles, the Great Steward of Scotland.

Schoolmates and family call him Charles.

The closest anyone has come to officially calling him Charlie was when his mother, Queen Elizabeth II, announced her first-born would be known as Charles.

To this, Princess Margaret is reported to have quipped: "From now on I suppose I'll be known as Charlie's aunt."

The Prince of Wales may be shorter than the average boy of 15, but he is growing fast at the tough Scottish school, Gordonstoun, where he is a sophomore.

Gordonstoun students learn among other things to sail, navigate and rough it. It's no institution for effete young men.

For a while it appeared the future king was more interested in the arts than in rougher, more masculine pursuits.

At that period Charles excelled in painting, drawing and music. He even took an interest in cooking and baked several cakes.

That was about the time when plans to send Charles to Eton were shelved, and Gordonstoun was selected instead.

The prince is a good horseman, an excellent sailor and a fine shot with a gun.

Last June, he hit the headlines when he was caught knocking back a cherry brandy in the bar of the Crown Hotel at Stornoway on the bleak Scottish island of Lewis. The incident received nationwide attention, and the majority of Britons probably smiled in sneaking approval.

Wherever he goes he is recognized, and people often wave to him. Invariably he waves back.

Charles is going to be a handsome young man.

He has a great shock of hair. His eyes are as blue as a jay bird's back. His longer than average eyelashes contribute to his good looks.

At 15, the present Prince of Wales is not lost in the company of young ladies. But royal circles say there is definitely no one particular girl in his young life.

He is avidly interested in photography and cars. He is too young to qualify for a driving license, but his parents let him drive within the royal grounds at Windsor and Balmoral castles.

He also is reported to have a growing desire to play the drums.

To older generations this should bring back nostalgic smiles. The last Prince of Wales doing the night clubs as a young man, liked to sit in with jazz bands. On the drums too.

Collie Is Delivered To Humane Society

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — Mollie the collie may have her moments of folly, but bright she jolly well is.

Patrons at a suburban shopping center called police to report a collie pup had been hit by a car. A squad was dispatched to the scene, but the dog had gone.

By the time the officers gave up looking for the dog, there was another call at headquarters. An attendant at St. Luke's Hospital—two miles from the shopping center—said that a collie pup was sitting outside the hospital door, clearly requesting admission. Seemed to have been hit by a car, he said.

The squad car proceeded to St. Luke's, and convinced Mollie to transfer to the Humane Society, where she's reported to be doing well.

Death's Aftermath

By Mrs. Muriel Lawrence
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Dear Mrs. Lawrence: Seven months ago my dear husband passed away. We were soon to celebrate our 39th anniversary. I am only now beginning to recover the weight I lost after his death. This is due to the kindness of my son and his wife from whose home I am writing this letter. They want me to put up my house for sale and move into a small apartment nearer to them. Everything in the house was chosen by my dear husband and me, but I suppose that at 58, possessions should not matter any more and I should be sensible and sell . . .

ANSWER: Take time for this decision. When we have experienced the most important loss of all, we can too readily yield to less important losses. As our grief moves us past the time of protest into the time of submissiveness, we can become too submissive, too doubtful of our power to hold on to anything important.

We may, for example, too quickly agree to release the home we love to strangers. Not because we want to, but because the terrible discipline of death, by depriving us of the human being we loved, still holds us in thrall to the idea of surrender.

Our children do not understand this. Loving us but still concerned with their own interests, they will push at us at this most vulnerable time of our grief to sell our homes, restrict our lives, give up our independence and otherwise serve their convenience. In our own good time we may choose to do all the things they promote as "sensible."

But until we have moved past our submissive time of grief, we are really not capable of choice, still so susceptible as we are to the idea of surrender.

You are, you say, recovering weight.

That's one recovery of loss, isn't it? Try and see this recovery of weight as a stand you have taken against more deprivation. If you do, you may be encouraged to take another one—and refuse to surrender this home you love until you can lose it through real decision instead of through weakened will and hope.

I am not belittling your children's kindness to you by suggesting that they want to make their responsibility for you as untroublesome as possible. With their own busy lives to live, this is a reasonable desire. I'm simply reminding you that other people's concern for us is always mixed with concern for themselves—a fact that has to be held to when they try to push us into decisions before we are ready to make them.

A man charged with parking a garbage truck in an area not zoned for such purpose had his case continued Tuesday in Municipal Court when Deputy City Attorney Bob Isaac was granted additional time to investigate the matter.

Attorney Paul V. Evans was granted a continuance until Dec. 3 on a case involving Jack Stephens, 29, 2753 Wren Dr., who is charged with reckless and careless driving and injury to city property.

Judge Asher found Jimmie Hart, 18, 325 S. 11th St., guilty of a careless driving charge and levied a $15 fine. In the companion case, he found Mrs. Bobbie Beason, 42, 13 May St., not guilty of a similar charge.

Attorney Gerald Tolley represented James Dillon, 20, Chicago, and requested a vagrancy charge be dismissed against the youth.

Tolley explained that Dillon was on probation from District Court on a charge of conspiracy to commit a confidence game, and arrangements had been made to return him to his family in Illinois.

He said the youth had spent one night in a local bus depot but was now working full time, adding he felt no purpose would be served by a guilty finding on the vagrancy charge "since living under a probation is almost impossible."

Judge Asher disagreed with Tolley's opinion, pointing out that Dillon no doubt needed some discipline and self-control, but agreed to dismiss the charge.

Judge Asher placed Archie Cherry, 40, Ent Air Force Base, on a 90-day probation and ordered him to appear again in court on Feb. 11. Cherry pleaded guilty to a drunk charge but the confusion surrounding the charge led the judge to continue disposition.

Eli Youngblood, 57, Acacia Hotel, failed to appear in court on two drunk charges and his bonds totaling $50 were ordered forfeited. Bonds were also ordered forfeited by John Calder, 27, 216 E. Las Vegas St., and George McGaffin, 39, Ent Air Force Base, who failed to appear in court. Calder was charged with drunkenness and McGaffin with disorderly conduct.

Sleeping Pills Kill British Scandal Girl

By LAWRENCE MALKIN

LONDON (AP)—Sleeping pills killed the "baby doll" girl of Britain's newest sex sensation, and police are investigating her double life to find out why.

A pathologist testified Tuesday at a stormy inquest into the death of Julie Molley, sultry center of a blackmail ring, that barbiturate poisoning caused her death 11 days ago. She was found sprawled across a four-poster bed in a country mansion just as guests were arriving for a party.

Coroner Ralph Inchbald startled the inquest by disclosing that police had received threats while pursuing blackmailers reportedly involved with Miss Molley.

He said a letter received by police boiled down to "a stupid and clumsy attempt to interfere with and intimidate officers in the execution of their duty."

Police have disclosed that some highly placed people may be involved as blackmail victims.

Nothing indicates they are as highly placed as those in the Profumo scandal, which reached into the government and the peerage. But police said Julie's victims included civil servants, army officers, businessmen and show business people.

By day the 24-year-old Italian-born girl was a dentist's assistant. By night she frequented fashionable West End spots.

Police said she placed advertisements in newspapers for a certain type of raincoat. The brand name was a tipoff to people with strange sexual tastes.

Police said they found more than 3,000 pictures of Julie with men in compromising situations. They also found a detailed diary.

Coroner Inchbald adjourned the inquest to Dec. 10 after hearing evidence from the pathologist.

He angrily denied that he had been pressured to postpone the inquest because of the letter.

"Her Majesty's coroners do not agree to an adjournment," he said. "They order it. Coroners are not open to suggestions from anybody."

Financial Firms Show Healthy Growth in State

BOULDER — Finance, insurance and real estate firms in Colorado have shown a healthy growth during the last 13 years, according to a University of Colorado report.

The current issue of the Colorado Business Review, published by the CU Bureau of Business Research, reports 414 new financial firms have organized, total bank deposits have increased 114 per cent, life insurance sales have jumped 334 per cent and mortgage loans rose 60.8 per cent in a little over a decade.

Most of the increase in financial firms has been in the establishment of 188 loan companies. Ninety-two new credit unions have been formed, and 84 new consumer finance offices have opened.

Total deposits in banks with state and national charters have increased from $1.1 billion in January 1950 to $2.4 billion in January 1963.

Life insurance sales in the state rose from $179.5 million in 1950 to $779.7 million in 1962. The average rate of growth in life insurance sales has been more than 13 per cent. The highest percentage increase for any one year was the 28.5 per cent gain in 1955 over 1954.

The number of insurance companies of all types increased from 633 in 1949 to 773 in 1961, the report said.

The number of mortgage loans in Adams, Arapahoe, Denver and Jefferson Counties increased from 27,579, valued at $189 million, in 1950 to 44,357, valued at $727 million, in 1962.

Employment in these areas has increased from 14,700 in 1950 to 27,600 in 1962, or 87.8 per cent. Total nonagricultural employment during this same period rose 53.2 per cent. Finance and insurance firms accounted for most of the employment increase. There were 9,900 employed in these areas in 1950 and 22,200 employed in 1962.

U.S. Business Faces Troubles In Foreign Marts

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Troubles pile up for American businessmen dealing with foreign competition in domestic and world markets.

But both exports and imports are pushing to new highs.

Neither cold wars nor chicken wars nor a rise in isolation has overcome the basic impulse—prosperous times here and in many other parts of the world creating demand for more goods.

U.S. imports dropped in September. But few expect this to be anything but temporary. For the first nine months of the year imports were up 4 per cent over the same period in 1962. Exports were up 3 per cent and still topping imports by a neat margin of nearly $5 billion.

The big gain in world trade leaves plenty of headaches.

American steelmen are bemoaning a rise in steel imports this year from Europe and Japan, with the recent increase in prices here on some products perhaps helping to widen the market for foreign steel. At the same time the United States is protesting a move in the European Common Market to raise its tariffs on U. S. exports of some other steel products.

Thus steel takes its place along with frozen chickens on the list of American discontent with the Common Market tariff trends. American poultrymen contend they've lost a better than $40 million annual market by raising of European levies on their products.

American businessmen also are taking their licks in parts of Latin America. Argentina is moving to cancel U. S. oil contracts there, with a potential loss of millions to American companies who have invested in the development of that nation's oil industry.

The whole American policy of trade with the Communist bloc in Europe is up for reappraisal as a result of Canadian wheat deals and American negotiations for grain shipments.

In the January through September period imports ran at an annual rate of $17 billion. And federal officials think the demand will go on expanding.

U.S. exports hit an annual rate of $21.9 billion in the same period. And prosperity abroad, plus record holdings there of dollars and gold, should keep the market for Yankee goods and materials healthy.

National Western Stockholders Approve Merger

DENVER — Shareholders of National Western Life Insurance Co. met here Tuesday to approve their firm's acquisition of Security National Life Insurance Co., of Austin, Tex. Shareholders of the Texas company approved the merger on Oct. 29.

The merged firm will be one of the fastest growing life insurance companies in America, writing new life business at a current rate of $6 million per month with operations conducted in 14 Western states, according to Doyle H. Baird, president of National Western Life, who will remain as president of the merged company.

"In addition to raising National Western's admitted assets to $17.5 million," Mr. Baird noted, "the acquisition increases out capital and unassigned surplus above the $3.8 million level and boosts insurance in force to more than $200 million."

Harold E. Riley, president of Security National, who will become chairman of National Western's board, said the merger includes the transfer to National Western of the life interest of Robert L. Moody in the famous Libbie Shearn Moody trust of Galveston, Texas, valued at over $14.8 million. Mr. Moody is board chairman of Security National Life Insurance Co. and the Moody Foundation of Galveston, one of the nation's largest foundations. He also holds a seat on the board of directors of the American National Insurance Co. of Galveston, as well as being a director of the new National Western Life Insurance Co.

Charles Boyer Is Praised in New Show

By WILLIAM GLOVER

Associated Press Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP)—In "Man and Boy" there is only Charles Boyer to admire.

Since he's in fine fettle with a deft blend of humor and hardness, the show which arrived at Broadway's Atkinson Playhouse Tuesday night may be around for quite a spell.

As a financial hotshot, Boyer injects a lot of theatrical fascination into a splintered and unconvincing script by Terence Rattigan. A book by Robert Shaplen about Ivar Kreuger, onetime Swedish match king, is credited as a source.

The charade brings Boyer and his rebel son—played with Oxford-thick accent by Barry Justice—together after five years of hostility just as dad is engaged in a frantic final effort to salvage his paper empire.

Two-thirds of the evening is devoted to developing a study of paternal perfidy. The sire, among other things, uses the lad as bait for a rival tycoon's deviate yearnings. Then the show shies off from that focus, to resolve ultimately in sheer melodrama.

Some characters and some scenes are incisive. The facade of the central character is brilliantly drawn; how and why he got that way is regrettably omitted.

Michael Benthall directs efficiently. There are savory supporting performances by Geoffrey Keen and Jane Down.

"Man and Boy" is up to you alone, M. Boyer.

Silk culture has been a major industry of China for more than 4,000 years.

A man charged with parking a garbage truck in an area not zoned for such purpose had his case continued Tuesday in Municipal Court when Deputy City Attorney Bob Isaac was granted additional time to investigate the matter.

Attorney Paul V. Evans was granted a continuance until Dec. 3 on a case involving Jack Stephens, 29, 2753 Wren Dr., who is charged with reckless and careless driving and injury to city property.

Judge Asher found Jimmie Hart, 18, 325 S. 11th St., guilty of a careless driving charge and levied a $15 fine. In the companion case, he found Mrs. Bobbie Beason, 42, 13 May St., not guilty of a similar charge.

Attorney Gerald Tolley represented James Dillon, 20, Chicago, and requested a vagrancy charge be dismissed against the youth.

Tolley explained that Dillon was on probation from District Court on a charge of conspiracy to commit a confidence game, and arrangements had been made to return him to his family in Illinois.

He said the youth had spent one night in a local bus depot but was now working full time, adding he felt no purpose would be served by a guilty finding on the vagrancy charge "since living under a probation is almost impossible."

Judge Asher disagreed with Tolley's opinion, pointing out that Dillon no doubt needed some discipline and self-control, but agreed to dismiss the charge.

Judge Asher placed Archie Cherry, 40, Ent Air Force Base, on a 90-day probation and ordered him to appear again in court on Feb. 11. Cherry pleaded guilty to a drunk charge but the confusion surrounding the charge led the judge to continue disposition.

Eli Youngblood, 57, Acacia Hotel, failed to appear in court on two drunk charges and his bonds totaling $50 were ordered forfeited. Bonds were also ordered forfeited by John Calder, 27, 216 E. Las Vegas St., and George McGaffin, 39, Ent Air Force Base, who failed to appear in court. Calder was charged with drunkenness and McGaffin with disorderly conduct.

Sleeping Pills Kill British Scandal Girl

By LAWRENCE MALKIN

LONDON (AP)—Sleeping pills killed the "baby doll" girl of Britain's newest sex sensation, and police are investigating her double life to find out why.

A pathologist testified Tuesday at a stormy inquest into the death of Julie Molley, sultry center of a blackmail ring, that barbiturate poisoning caused her death 11 days ago. She was found sprawled across a four-poster bed in a country mansion just as guests were arriving for a party.

Coroner Ralph Inchbald startled the inquest by disclosing that police had received threats while pursuing blackmailers reportedly involved with Miss Molley.

He said a letter received by police boiled down to "a stupid and clumsy attempt to interfere with and intimidate officers in the execution of their duty."

Police have disclosed that some highly placed people may be involved as blackmail victims.

Nothing indicates they are as highly placed as those in the Profumo scandal, which reached into the government and the peerage. But police said Julie's victims included civil servants, army officers, businessmen and show business people.

By day the 24-year-old Italian-born girl was a dentist's assistant. By night she frequented fashionable West End spots.

Police said she placed advertisements in newspapers for a certain type of raincoat. The brand name was a tipoff to people with strange sexual tastes.

Police said they found more than 3,000 pictures of Julie with men in compromising situations. They also found a detailed diary.

Coroner Inchbald adjourned the inquest to Dec. 10 after hearing evidence from the pathologist.

He angrily denied that he had been pressured to postpone the inquest because of the letter.

"Her Majesty's coroners do not agree to an adjournment," he said. "They order it. Coroners are not open to suggestions from anybody."

Financial Firms Show Healthy Growth in State

BOULDER — Finance, insurance and real estate firms in Colorado have shown a healthy growth during the last 13 years, according to a University of Colorado report.

The current issue of the Colorado Business Review, published by the CU Bureau of Business Research, reports 414 new financial firms have organized, total bank deposits have increased 114 per cent, life insurance sales have jumped 334 per cent and mortgage loans rose 60.8 per cent in a little over a decade.

Most of the increase in financial firms has been in the establishment of 188 loan companies. Ninety-two new credit unions have been formed, and 84 new consumer finance offices have opened.

Total deposits in banks with state and national charters have increased from $1.1 billion in January 1950 to $2.4 billion in January 1963.

Life insurance sales in the state rose from $179.5 million in 1950 to $779.7 million in 1962. The average rate of growth in life insurance sales has been more than 13 per cent. The highest percentage increase for any one year was the 28.5 per cent gain in 1955 over 1954.

The number of insurance companies of all types increased from 633 in 1949 to 773 in 1961, the report said.

The number of mortgage loans in Adams, Arapahoe, Denver and Jefferson Counties increased from 27,579, valued at $189 million, in 1950 to 44,357, valued at $727 million, in 1962.

Employment in these areas has increased from 14,700 in 1950 to 27,600 in 1962, or 87.8 per cent. Total nonagricultural employment during this same period rose 53.2 per cent. Finance and insurance firms accounted for most of the employment increase. There were 9,900 employed in these areas in 1950 and 22,200 employed in 1962.

U.S. Business Faces Troubles In Foreign Marts

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — Troubles pile up for American businessmen dealing with foreign competition in domestic and world markets.

But both exports and imports are pushing to new highs.

Neither cold wars nor chicken wars nor a rise in isolation has overcome the basic impulse —prosperous times here and in many other parts of the world creating demand for more goods.

U.S. imports dropped in September. But few expect this to be anything but temporary. For the first nine months of the year imports were up 4 per cent over the same period in 1962. Exports were up 3 per cent and still topping imports by a neat margin of nearly $5 billion.

The big gain in world trade leaves plenty of headaches.

American steelmen are bemoaning a rise in steel imports this year from Europe and Japan, with the recent increase in prices here on some products perhaps helping to widen the market for foreign steel. At the same time the United States is protesting a move in the European Common Market to raise its tariffs on U. S. exports of some other steel products.

Thus steel takes its place along with frozen chickens on the list of American discontent with the Common Market tariff trends. American poultrymen contend they've lost a better than $40 million annual market by raising of European levies on their products.

American businessmen also are taking their licks in parts of Latin America. Argentina is moving to cancel U. S. oil contracts there, with a potential loss of millions to American companies who have invested in the development of that nation's oil industry.

The whole American policy of trade with the Communist bloc in Europe is up for reappraisal as a result of Canadian wheat deals and American negotiations for grain shipments.

In the January through September period imports ran at an annual rate of $17 billion. And federal officials think the demand will go on expanding.

U.S. exports hit an annual rate of $21.9 billion in the same period. And prosperity abroad, plus record holdings there of dollars and gold, should keep the market for Yankee goods and materials healthy.

National Western Stockholders Approve Merger

DENVER — Shareholders of National Western Life Insurance Co. met here Tuesday to approve their firm's acquisition of Security National Life Insurance Co., of Austin, Tex. Shareholders of the Texas company approved the merger on Oct. 29.

The merged firm will be one of the fastest growing life insurance companies in America, writing new life business at a current rate of $6 million per month with operations conducted in 14 Western states, according to Doyle H. Baird, president of National Western Life, who will remain as president of the merged company.

"In addition to raising National Western's admitted assets to $17.5 million," Mr. Baird noted, "the acquisition increases out capital and unassigned surplus above the $3.8 million level and boosts insurance in force to more than $200 million."

Harold E. Riley, president of Security National, who will become chairman of National Western's board, said the merger includes the transfer to National Western of the life interest of Robert L. Moody in the famous Libbie Shearn Moody trust of Galveston, Texas, valued at over $14.8 million. Mr. Moody is board chairman of Security National Life Insurance Co. and the Moody Foundation of Galveston, one of the nation's largest foundations. He also holds a seat on the board of directors of the American National Insurance Co. of Galveston, as well as being a director of the new National Western Life Insurance Co.

Charles Boyer Is Praised in New Show

By WILLIAM GLOVER
Associated Press Drama Critic

NEW YORK (AP)—In "Man and Boy" there is only Charles Boyer to admire.

Since he's in fine fettle with a deft blend of humor and hardness, the show which arrived at Broadway's Atkinson Playhouse Tuesday night may be around for quite a spell.

As a financial hotshot, Boyer injects a lot of theatrical fascination into a splintered and unconvincing script by Terence Rattigan. A book by Robert Shaplen about Ivar Kreuger, onetime Swedish match king, is credited as a source.

The charade brings Boyer and his rebel son—played with Oxford-thick accent by Barry Justice—together after five years of hostility just as dad is engaged in a frantic final effort to salvage his paper empire.

Two-thirds of the evening is devoted to developing a study of paternal perfidy. The sire, among other things, uses the lad as bait for a rival tycoon's deviate yearnings. Then the show shies off from that focus, to resolve ultimately in sheer melodrama.

Some characters and some scenes are incisive. The facade of the central character is brilliantly drawn; how and why he got that way is regrettably omitted.

Michael Benthall directs efficiently. There are savory supporting performances by Geoffrey Keen and Jane Down.

"Man and Boy" is up to you alone, M. Boyer.

Silk culture has been a major industry of China for more than 4,000 years.

ATHENS, Greece (UPI)—The Greek royal court formally announced Monday night that Crown Prince Constantine and Princess Anna Maria of Denmark will wed "after Aug. 30, 1964." That is the princess' 18th birthday.

The engagement was announced earlier this year. The sovereigns of the two countries will jointly announce the wedding date later.

Rapid Movie Shots Become Fashion Again

By BOB THOMAS

What made Sam worried? The master of the quickie was shooting an Elvis Presley picture for $1,700,000.

"A lot of money," he said, shaking his bald head. "Elvis himself costs $500,000, plus $100,000 studio overhead on his salary—don't ask me why. Then you've got $300,000 to $4000.00 overhead on production costs, which means I got to make the picture for $700,000. Listen, I can do it."

Sam was sitting hard by the set of "Kissin' Cousins."

"I'm here from the first shot in the morning until the last one at night," he explained. "Got to keep things moving along. Okay, let's shoot it!"

He shouted the last suggestion to the film crew, and director Gene Nelson lined up a shot of Elvis—playing a dual role in a blonde wig—and a flock of curvy mountain girls.

"See that forest scene," said Sam. "Most producers would have shot it on location, where they'd run into bad weather and sit around all day. Me, I shoot a week at Lake Arrowhead and the rest here at the studio, where I can control things."

"We've been shooting four and a half weeks and we finish tomorrow," the producer explained. "We're two hours behind schedule, and I'm worried. Let's get moving!"

Katzman gave some hints of his operation between verbal nudges to the film crew.

"I keep an eye on all the record charts, hunting for the latest rage," he said. "Rock 'n' roll, the twist — that's my meat. 'Rock Around the Clock' was a good one; made it for $300,000 and it grossed $4 million.

"I had a script all ready for the bossa nova—put $15,000 in it. Still, I held back; it didn't seem right to me. So I took the same script and changed it to a hootenanny.

"MGM called me up and said we want you to do a folk music picture. I told them I just happened to have a script on my desk. I made 'Hootenanny Hoot' in nine days for $325,000 and it is going to do $2 million worldwide."

The studio was so impressed that he was given the Presley opus. That put Sam in the unfamiliar area of a million-plus picture. For 20 years he had made action or exploitation films at Columbia, filming the at rock - bottom prices for inevitable profits. Now the Columbia bosses yearn for his return.

"There's overhead on everything," he groaned. "You use a piece of stationery and it's charged to your picture. Even at lunch you're supposed to eat in a special area where they put tablecloths on the table and charge you 25 cents extra. I fool 'em. I eat where there are no tablecloths.

"But the picture will be all right. Elvis is worth what he gets; no Presley picture has earned less than $4 million. I don't mind paying actors what they're worth."

His worried look returned as 10 minutes had gone by without the camera turning. "What are we waiting for?" he shouted. "Shoot it!"

New Type Cereal Introduced in U.S.

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Bulgur sounds vulgar. But it's really good stuff.

Bulgur is a cereal product made from wheat, popular in the Middle East but now to be offered to Minnesota welfare families.

Curtis Johnson, director of the state's welfare food program, says his wife and home economists have tried the stuff and found it delicious in a variety of dishes.

Welfare clients will be given bulgur cookies in hopes they'll like the idea and ask for the wheat product themselves.

Firemen's Test For Eligibility Reset Nov. 25

The city civil service examination to create an eligibility list for the Colorado Springs fire department has been moved ahead two days, it has been announced by C. L. Heitman Jr., city personnel director.

The written examination will now be held at 7 p.m. Nov. 25 instead of on the 27th as originally announced. Tests will be given in the main arena of the City Auditorium.

Because of the earlier date, Heitman urged applicants to waste no time filing applications. These must be filed at the office of the city manager on or before 5 p.m. Nov. 22. Application blanks can be obtained at that office.

Heitman said 13 fireman will be hired Feb. 1 at a pay that starts at $370 a month but will increase automatically so that it will be $510 a month to start the fourth year.

Candidates must be not less than 5 feet 8 inches tall, weigh at least 140 pounds and be between the ages of 21 and 30.

Applicants must also submit a copy of their birth certificates show they have had at least two years of high school and a military discharge, if any. All these papers will be returned to applicants.

Those who successfully pass the written test will then have to take oral and physical tests later.

Heitman said 12 men will be needed to man the city's new fire station, now under construction at Palmer Park and Academy Boulevards.

Many Marks Fall

Teague Topped T-Birds In Record-Setting Year

Coach Gib Funk has called the 1963 Wasson Thunderbirds the finest all-around offensive team in the school's five year history and final figures on the just-completed campaign bear him out.

The T-Birds, who concluded the season with a 12-7 victory over Pueblo East last Friday, sport an 8-2 record, the finest percentage-wise that a Thunderbird team has compiled. Last fall's conference champions also had an 8-2 mark for the regular season but lost in the first round of the state playoffs and thus finished 8-3.

Funk is not one for elaboration, but the Wasson mentor credits much of the team's success this fall to the ability of the offense to control the ball, thereby giving the opposition limited chances to score.

Just how well this was done is pointed out by the final statistics. This year's squad scored only 141 points in 10 games, in comparison to 225 tallied by the championship team last fall. Yet, in the majority of offensive departments, the 1963 T - Birds surpassed their predecessors, altho playing one less game.

The 1963 squad had a record 146 first downs to 141 for the 1962 team; likewise this team gained a net of 2567 yards to 2551 for last year's and compiled 595 yards passing to 547 for that of the squad a year ago. All of these figures are even more impressive considering that the '63 squad played one less game.

Ringleader of this offensive devastation was fullback Mike Teague who will graduate this spring with the knowledge that no previous back in Wasson history has run more frequently or with greater effect. Teague wipped out virtually every rushing record on the books, with the exception of per-carry average.

This fall he set standards for most yards in a single game (144 against Pueblo East to break the old record of 141 by Doug Dienelt); most yards in a season (1,032 to break the old mark of 869 by Dienelt); and most rushing yardage in a high school career (1,870 to break the old record of 1,019 by Dienelt). To lend further luster to Teague's accomplishments in 1963, the Wasson fullback's 1,032 yards were more in one season than any previous Wasson back had gained in a career.

In addition to his rushing marks, Teague also set a new career scoring record. The 56 points he carried across the goal this fall raised his total to 128 for two seasons, easily outdistancing the mark of 90 set by Dienelt.

Other records going on the books in 1963 feature the kicking of quarterback Clay Chambers who became the first Thunderbird to boot two field goals in one game. Chambers also set the mark for most extra points in a single contest, five against Arvada West, and tied the record for most consecutive extra points, five.

Chambers did not set any passing records this season, altho he came close, and is considered by Funk as the finest of his quarterbacks at Wasson. The T-Birds' good right arm concluded his work with a record of 40 completions in 94 attempts for 559 yards and a 42.6 completion average.

Top receiver was Ron Nighswonger, a fine offensive end, who caught 12 for 210 yards. End Hal Meller picked off 11 for 83 yards and halfback Jim Smith caught eight for 183 yards and a fine average of 22.9

Smith, one of the few juniors among the top stars, also was the second leading ground-gainer with 460 yards and a 4.7 average per carry, which equals that of Teague. Chambers was the second best scorer with 31 points followed by Smith and John Scales with 12 each and Meller was the top punter with a 36.8 average on 13 kicks.

For anyone who might dispute the T-Birds' ability to control the ball, punting was another excellent clue. Wasson kicked only 15 times in 10 games this year.

Which means, it would seem, that the Thunderbirds got a great deal of footage out of that offense which Gib Funk has been talking about.

Armijo Tops SCL Scoring

Centennial flash, Bob Armijo, scored four touchdowns in his team's 48-0 victory over Pueblo South last Friday to easily win the South Central League scoring championship for 1963.

The swift Armijo, who had 36 points going into the final week, picked up two-thirds of that total in his last contest to conclude the regular campaign with 60 points. That far outdistanced Mike Teague of Wasson who was second with 37. Teague added one touchdown to his total in the Thunderbirds' 12-7 win over Pueblo East.

Changes in the top five saw Bill Chapparo of Central move into third with 30 points after scoring a pair of T.D.s. Palmer's Alan Snyder wound up fourth with 24 points after a two touchdown performance. Jim Toupal of Trinidad was fifth with 21 and Clay Chambers of Wasson sixth with 20.

Isaacson Ranks 3rd In Nation

Terry Isaacson, the Air Force Academy's ace quarterback, now ranks third nationally in total offense, according to the latest NCAA football statistics released today.

Ahead of Isaacson is Baylor's Don Trull with 1,647 yards in seven games, and Navy's Roger Staubach with 1,544 yards in eight games. Isaacson has gained 1,370 yards in running and passing in eight games.

The Air Force triple-threat back will be in action this Saturday at Albuquerque, N. M., against the University of New Mexico. In Tuesday's drills, he spent considerable time passing to a bevy of Falcon receivers from both the regular T formation and the new shotgun spread, used by the AFA against UCLA last weekend.

Meanwhile at Albuquerque, New Mexico spent most of its two-hour practice Tuesday working on offensive plays against the Air Force defense. A 30-minute contract scrimmage featured both running and passing against the UNM freshmen.

Coach Bill Weeks warned his Lobos that the Air Force would probably be the toughest defensive team New Mexico has played.

"The Air Force has strong, fast defensive ends," Weeks said, "and a pair of fine linebackers. Out offense must be perfect if we hope to move against them."

New Mexico, which defeated the AFA in 1959 and 1961, the last two times the teams met, has a 4-3 record for the season after defeating Wyoming last week, 17-6.

Czarnota Key to Falcons Offense

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

At the start of this football season, around the Air Force Academy it looked like it would be the year of the halfbacks. Coach Ben Martin had four outstanding lettermen returning from warfare of a year ago, plus a couple of fine prospects up from the freshman class.

Even the Falcons versatile quarterback, Terry Isaacson, was a convert from halfback where he had led the team in rushing as a sophomore. And from all indications, the AFA would be "off and running" in more ways than one.

Altho the Falcons lost the services of one of their chief threats even before the first game of the season in letterman Darryl Bloodworth as unfortunately the 160-pound scatback was injured in practice and never responded to treatment, it still turned out that the Air Force had depth at the important running positions.

Out of this corps of fine athletes, tho, one of the Cadets has shown just at edge ahead of the others. He's junior Dick Czarnota from the fertile football area of Detroit, Mich.

Early this season Zot — as his teammates call him — reported to practice slight overweight. He had spent last summer with his Polish family and some of mama's rich food had made him even bigger than before.

But soon, under the strenuous training at the Academy and on the football drill field, Czarnota was down to his normal playing weight of 205 pounds, and he was running like always.

As a sophomore and playing with the offensive specialist Cossacks unit, under the old substitution system, Zot had made a fast start on his grid career at the Academy. He ran with the ball 40 times, picking up 162 yards and a four-yard average. In addition, he caught seven passes good for another 109 yards, and had scored four touchdowns for the Falcons.

The extra weight slowed him down slightly at the start of the season, so he was forced to alternate with a couple others from this good crop of halfbacks. But gradually as the season progressed, Czarnota was called on more and more.

Just last Saturday against the Bruins of UCLA was probably the best all-around performance for Czarnota this season. He carried the ball nine times, second only to Isaacson in the 48-21 victory, and tacked another 48 yards on this season's rushing total. That brought him into third place in the team's figures, behind Isaacson and fullback Larry Tollstam, with 196 yards and a dandy 4.7 average.

Zot, tho, is considered the finest receiver on the team. And in each game Isaacson has been looking for his number 27 a little more to bring his year's catches to 10 and 160 yards. That's second only to sophomore end Fritz Greenlee, who has one more catch and 270 yards on the long bombs sent his way.

Czarnota, however, isn't one to stand by when someone else gets the chance to run. His violent blocking was seen thruout the game against UCLA as time and again he knocked down the corner defenders to make the wide sweeps of the Falcons go for considerable gainers.

He was definitely a key man in making the new "shotgun" formation move against the Bruins. As Isaacson took the direct snap from center in the tailback position, Czarnota was used repeatedly as the lead blocker that paved the way.

"I like blocking," Zot said after the game. "I guess I get a kick out of just hitting someone. On most of our plays I figure I'm the third guard on the team."

With two games left now on the AFA's schedule, it appears that Czarnota will be seen more than ever. He'll get his next chance this Saturday at Albuquerque when the Falcons take on the resurgent Lobos from the University of New Mexico.

The Lobos have won their last three games and indications are that they'll be more than ready for the AFA invsaion. The entire town has been going all out for this game, and the school has saved this date for its Homecoming celebration.

For the first time this season, a sell-out crowd of over 30,000 has been assured, including those Air Force personnel attending from several surrounding bases and nearly 1,000 cadets who will make the trip by train at their own expense.

COMING HEAD-ON — Air Force Academy's hard-charging halfback Dick (Zot) Czarnota (27) at right, lowers his head and runs straight at UCLA defender halfback Byron Nelson (46) in last Saturday's game against the Bruins at Falcon Stadium. It was on runs like this that Czarnota picked up 48 yards rushing, as well as catching three of quarterback Terry Isaacson's passes for another 42 yards to play an important role in the AFA's 48-21 victory.

New Mexico's Stokes Lineman of the Week

By JIM IRWIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) —"I hope he doesn't win this honor too often or we won't even see him out at practice."

That was University of New Mexico Coach Bill Weeks talking about center Eddie Stokes who was named Associated Press Lineman of the Week Tuesday.

Weeks and the mechanical engineering department have an equal - time agreement with Stokes.

The 189-pound Phillips, Tex., native misses the Monday and Friday football practices and half of the Wednesday workouts because of mechanical engineering labs.

Stokes was selected for his outstanding play in New Mexico's 17-6 upset victory over Wyoming.

"I'm really thrilled about this because they told me I wasn't big enough for a college lineman," Stokes said as he walked with reporters to what was left of Tuesday's practice.

The "they" referred to Texas Tech and Oklahoma State—Eddie's first two college choices.

"They told me at Texas Tech and Oklahoma State that I couldn't play in a college line. I just weighed 160 pounds so I came here," he said.

Stokes was the defensive captain who called the signals that limited Wyoming to 181 yards—its lowest total offense of the season — made five unassisted tackles and helped on 10.

In the first quarter he chased down the receiver on a swing pass and pounced on an ensuing fumble on the Wyoming 10. It resulted in New Mexico's first touchdown.

On offense Stokes opened up the middle of the burly Wyoming line permitting fullback Bucky Stallings and tailback Hoe Harris to ramble between the tackles for 162 yards.

Other outstanding nominees including Harvard guard Bill Southmayd, who recovered a fumble to kill Princeton's chance for a tie.

Cheyenne Prepares for State Semi-Final Playoff

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Still hindered by a seige of injuries Eldon Helm's Indians—undefeated winners of the 1963 Pikes Peak League — are preparing for their State Class AA semi-final game against Durango across the Western Slope this Saturday at 2 p.m.

The Demons, perennial power in the Southwestern League, won the league crown and a berth in the semi-finals Monday when the Durango aggregation toppled Cortez, 25-13. The winner of the Cheyenne-Durango playoff contest will host the state championship the following Saturday, Nov. 23 against the victor of the Lamar-Thornton game (also slated this Saturday).

Helm's scouting reports point out that the Demons are perhaps the strongest of the four semi-finalists. Against Cortez, Durango completed seven of 19 aerial bombardments including three touchdown passes. The win was spearheaded by quarterback Randy Blackman who pitched two TD passes against Cortez.

The Durango line will have an edge in weight as the Demons starting linemen all tip the scales at nearly 195 pounds. In addition, the Demon backfield almost outweighs the line. They also possess three lads that can fire the pigskin, and don't hesitate to pass at any stage of the game. Against Cortez they launched an aerial bomb the first play from scrimmage.

Helm' offensive starting backfield works around ramrod-fullback Greg Cramblit, who was sidelined the last two outings because of a cleet spike infection in the shin. Cramblit was hospitalized last week, and was discharged last Sunday. Tuesday was the first day the 182-pound hard-charging fullback was able to participate in a practice session in nearly two weeks.

The Tribe's offensive charge lacked explosive power that Cramblit would normally supply last Saturday as the Cheyenne team rallied in the second half to deadlock rival St. Mary's, 20-20, in a non-league encounter. Prior to that game, the Indians only yielded four points per game to their eight PPL opponents. But without Cramblit, and only using speedster Bob Richardson and halfback Chuck McGee sparingly, the Tribe couldn't move the ball with the same authority.

Helm reports that McGee is a doubtful starter because of an elbow injury. In addition to his running chores, McGee backs the Indians' defense at one of the corner safety slots along with triple-threat quarterback Gary Graham. Helm indicated that McGee may possibly see some limited action against Durango.

Richardson is still nursing a hip pointer, but the Cheyenenne mentor thought the fleet-footed halfback — who runs the 100 yard dash in 10 seconds flat—would be ready to start Saturday. It was Richardson's breakaway speed, and the sure running of McGee coupled with Graham's superb performance as field general and ball hawking on defense, which enabled the Tribe to rally in the second half against St. Mary's.

But the Indians will go into Saturday's semi-final game full strength in the line. Several key linemen were ailing for last week's game, but Helm reports that his linemen are back on the active list.

Lonnie Mayo Top PPL Scorer

Harrison's talented halfback, Lonnie Mayo, finished out his career on a sterling note when the Panther speedster scored 26 points against Leadville last Saturday to snatch the Pikes Peak League individual scoring race. Mayo compiled 117 points in eight PPL campaigns via 17 touchdowns, and 15 PAT conversions.

In addition, Mayo broke the total rushing yardage record established last year by former Widefield star, Rusty Henninger (1300 yards). The fleet-footed Panther back accumulated a whopping 1,519 yards in 10 games.

Rodney Coates, Widfield's hard-charging fullback, was the runner-up in the scoring race with 94 points for 14 six-pointers and 10 conversions. Gary Graham, who directed the Cheyenne Mountain Indians to their first PPL championship in five years, finished in the third position after leading the race thruout the season with 93 points.

The 182-pound fullback, who averaged 100-yards per game was sidelined in the Tribe's finale against Florence two weeks ago. Claude Burke of Widefield finished fifth with 77 points followed by Roger Karolick, Academy High, (61 points); Ed Ehmke, Salida, (46 points); Rob Stockhouse, Academy High and Danny Giech, Harrison, (37 points); and Terry Stevens of Florence grabbed the 10th spot with 36 points.

Palmer Concludes Slate Third Place in SCL

The finest football season since the split of old Colorado Springs' High School into Palmer and Wasson has ended for Palmer's Terrors. It was certainly a season of ups and downs for Coach Bill Westbay's team, but the ending turned out happy for those who remained loyal.

The Terrors finished in undisputed possession of third place in the tough Souh Central League final standings with a 4-3 record. The 21-13 conquest of Pueblo Central last weekend assured the Tribe its best finish since enlargement of the league.

Counting only the past five seasons, it was a record-setting season for the Terrors. Since the school took the name of Palmer, no team has scored as often, won so many games, or run up such a commanding difference in statistics as did this squad.

Overall, only the three defeats in league play blemished the Palmer ledger. Those losses were to the champion and runnerup, Pueblo Centennial (7-6) and Wasson (27-0), and to Trinidad's always tough Miners (7-0) in a leftover letdown from the cross-town rivalry with the Thunderbirds.

However, the Terrors staged a fine comeback in shaking off two straight scoreless games in last week's win over Central. In typical fashion of this often explosive team, quarterback Walt Hylton and halfback Alan Snyder combined on pass plays that covered 88 and 61 yards, and then Hylton capped one of his finest games of the season with the final touchdown run to seal the victory.

The finale was a productive finish for Snyder, a gutty little 141-pound senior, as he jumped to second in scoring and third in rushing in the final team figures.

Jim Glaskin, who was hampered thruout the last few games with a cracked rib, still managed to capture scoring honors with 48 points. Snyder was next with 36, followed closely be Hylton on 32 and workhorse fullback Ray Cool with 31 points.

Cool, building an early lead and then showing great determination in the latter games by playing despite a painful knee injury, easily walked off with rushing laurals as the hard running 177-pound senior finised up with 587 yards and a nifty 4.7 average for 124 carries. Glaskin was next with 451 yards and a 5.9 average.

Altho opponents threw nearly twice as many passes as did the Terrors this fall, Hylton's performance at times was outstanding. He compelted 26 of 61 attempts for a 42.7 percentage and five touchdowns. Oddly enough, opponents threw against the Terrors 104 times—but failed to make a single TD thru the air.

Snyder was the favorite target for Hylton's passing as the slick open field runner snagged 10 aerials and averaged 32 yards per catch. Two of his four touchdowns thru receiving came in the final game against Central.

Also outstanding for Palmer this season was the punting by Bobby Joe Williams and in the last part of the slate, after Williams injured his leg, by Claud Spears, a junior. Spears averaged a fine 40.2 yards and Williams 36.4 yards

One of the big key games in the season was the one-point loss to eventual SCL titlist Centennial. The Terrors had edge in

AF Cadets To Make N.M. Trip

Nearly half of the cadets at the Air Force Academy will be making the trip to Albuquerque, N. M., this weekend for the Falcons' football game against the University of New Mexico.

There will be approximately 900 cadets, plus Academy officials and boosters from the AFA, going at their own expense on a 17-car special Santa Fe train.

The train is scheduled to leave the Colorado Springs area at 8 p.m. Friday and arrive at Albuquerque at 7 a.m. Saturday. The cadets will then be taken to nearby Kirtland AFB where they will view a special air show in their honor, featuring the famed Thunderbird jet team.

From Kirtland they will be transported to the game ,which is already a sell-out of over 30,000. The cadets will leave Albuquerque at midnight Saturday and be back at the Academy at 11:30 Sunday morning.

They will be met at the train by Miss Air Force of New Mexico, Miss Susan Rundles, 20, of Albuquerque, plus the chairman of the City Commission, Chamber of Commerce officials and others.

Czarnota Key to Falcons Offense

Many Marks Fall

Teague Topped T-Birds In Record-Setting Year

Coach Gib Funk has called the 1963 Wasson Thunderbirds the finest all-around offensive team in the school's five year history and final figures on the just-completed campaign bear him out.

The T-Birds, who concluded the season with a 12-7 victory over Pueblo East last Friday, sport an 8-2 record, the finest percentage-wise that a Thunderbird team has compiled. Last fall's conference champions also had an 8-2 mark for the regular season but lost in the first round of the state playoffs and thus finished 8-3.

Funk is not one for elaboration, but the Wasson mentor credits much of the team's success this fall to the ability of the offense to control the ball, thereby giving the opposition limited chances to score.

Just how well this was done is pointed out by the final statistics. This year's squad scored only 141 points in 10 games, in comparison to 225 tallied by the championship team last fall. Yet, in the majority of offensive departments, the 1963 T - Birds surpassed their predecessors, altho playing one less game.

The 1963 squad had a record 146 first downs to 141 for the 1962 team; likewise this team gained a net of 2567 yards to 2551 for last year's and compiled 595 yards passing to 547 for that of the squad a year ago. All of these figures are even more impressive considering that the '63 squad played one less game.

Ringleader of this offensive devastation was fullback Mike Teague who will graduate this spring with the knowledge that no previous back in Wasson history has run more frequently or with greater effect. Teague wipped out virtually every rushing record on the books, with the exception of per-carry average.

This fall he set standards for most yards in a single game (144 against Pueblo East to break the old record of 141 by Doug Dienelt); most yards in a season (1,032 to break the old mark of 869 by Dienelt); and most rushing yardage in a high school career (1,870 to break the old record of 1,019 by Dienelt). To lend further luster to Teague's accomplishments in 1963, the Wasson fullback's 1,032 yards were more in one season than any previous Wasson back had gained in a career.

In addition to his rushing marks, Teague also set a new career scoring record. The 56 points he carried across the goal this fall raised his total to 128 for two seasons, easily outdistancing the mark of 90 set by Dienelt.

Other records going on the books in 1963 feature the kicking of quarterback Clay Chambers who became the first Thunderbird to boot two field goals in one game. Chambers also set the mark for most extra points in a single contest, five against Arvada West, and tied the record for most consecutive extra points, five.

Chambers did not set any passing records this season, altho he came close, and is considered by Funk as the finest of his quarterbacks at Wasson. The T-Birds' good right arm concluded his work with a record of 40 completions in 94 attempts for 559 yards and a 42.6 completion average.

Top receiver was Ron Nighswonger, a fine offensive end, who caught 12 for 210 yards. End Hal Meller picked off 11 for 83 yards and halfback Jim Smith caught eight for 183 yards and a fine average of 22.9

Smith, one of the few juniors among the top stars, also was the second leading ground-gainer with 460 yards and a 4.7 average per carry, which equals that of Teague. Chambers was the second best scorer with 31 points followed by Smith and John Scales with 12 each and Meller was the top punter with a 36.8 average on 13 kicks.

For anyone who might dispute the T-Birds' ability to control the ball, punting was another excellent clue. Wasson kicked only 15 times in 10 games this year.

Which means, it would seem, that the Thunderbirds got a great deal of footage out of that offense which Gib Funk has been talking about.

Armijo Tops SCL Scoring

Centennial flash, Bob Armijo, scored four touchdowns in his team's 48-0 victory over Pueblo South last Friday to easily win the South Central League scoring championship for 1963.

The swift Armijo, who had 36 points going into the final week, picked up two-thirds of that total in his last contest to conclude the regular campaign with 60 points. That far outdistanced Mike Teague of Wasson who was second with 37. Teague added one touchdown to his total in the Thunderbirds' 12-7 win over Pueblo East.

Changes in the top five saw Bill Chapparo of Central move into third with 30 points after scoring a pair of T.D.s. Palmer's Alan Snyder wound up fourth with 24 points after a two touchdown performance. Jim Toupal of Trinidad was fifth with 21 and Clay Chambers of Wasson sixth with 20.

At the start of this football season, around the Air Force Academy it looked like it would be the year of the halfbacks. Coach Ben Martin had four outstanding lettermen returning from warfare of a year ago, plus a couple of fine prospects up from the freshman class.

Even the Falcons versatile quarterback, Terry Isaacson, was a convert from halfback where he had led the team in rushing as a sophomore. And from all indications, the AFA would be "off and running" in more ways than one.

Altho the Falcons lost the services of one of their chief threats even before the first game of the season in letterman Darryl Bloodworth as unfortunately the 160-pound scatback was injured in practice and never responded to treatment, it still turned out that the Air Force had depth at the important running positions.

Out of this corps of fine athletes, tho, one of the Cadets has shown just at edge ahead of the others. He's junior Dick Czarnota from the fertile football area of Detroit, Mich.

Early this season Zot — as his teammates call him — reported to practice slight overweight. He had spent last summer with his Polish family and some of mama's rich food had made him even bigger than before.

But soon, under the strenuous training at the Academy and on the football drill field, Czarnota was down to his normal playing weight of 205 pounds, and he was running like always.

As a sophomore and playing with the offensive specialist Cossacks unit, under the old substitution system, Zot had made a fast start on his grid career at the Academy. He ran with the ball 40 times, picking up 162 yards and a four-yard average. In addition, he caught seven passes good for another 109 yards, and had scored four touchdowns for the Falcons.

The extra weight slowed him down slightly at the start of the season, so he was forced to alternate with a couple others from this good crop of halfbacks. But gradually as the season progressed, Czarnota was called on more and more.

Just last Saturday against the Bruins of UCLA was probably the best all-around performance for Czarnota this season. He carried the ball nine times, second only to Isaacson in the 48-21 victory, and tacked another 48 yards on this season's rushing total. That brought him into third place in the team's figures, behind Isaacson and fullback Larry Tollstam, with 196 yards and a dandy 4.7 average.

Zot, tho, is considered the finest receiver on the team. And in each game Isaacson has been looking for his number 27 a little more to bring his year's catches to 10 and 160 yards. That's second only to sophomore end Fritz Greenlee, who has one more catch and 270 yards on the long bombs sent his way.

Czarnota, however, isn't one to stand by when someone else gets the chance to run. His violent blocking was seen thruout the game against UCLA as time and again he knocked down the corner defenders to make the wide sweeps of the Falcons go for considerable gainers.

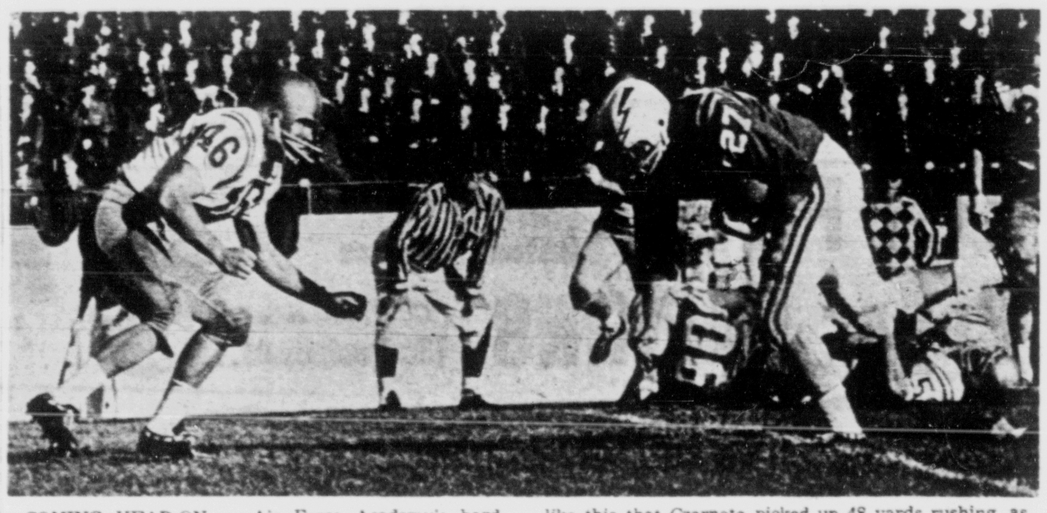
He was definitely a key man in making the new "shotgun" formation move against the Bruins. As Isaacson took the direct snap from center in the tailback position, Czarnota was used repeatedly as the lead blocker that paved the way.

"I like blocking," Zot said after the game. "I guess I get a kick out of just hitting someone. On most of our plays I figure I'm the third guard on the team."

With two games left now on the AFA's schedule, it appears that Czarnota will be seen more than ever. He'll get his next chance this Saturday at Albuquerque when the Falcons take on the resurgent Lobos from the University of New Mexico.

The Lobos have won their last three games and indications are that they'll be more than ready for the AFA invsaion. The entire town has been going all out for this game, and the school has saved this date for its Homecoming celebration.

For the first time this season, a sell-out crowd of over 30,000 has been assured, including those Air Force personnel attending from several surrounding bases and nearly 1,000 cadets who will make the trip by train at their own expense.



COMING HEAD-ON — Air Force Academy's hard-charging halfback Dick (Zot) Czarnota (27) at right, lowers his head and runs straight at UCLA defender halfback Byron Nelson (46) in last Saturday's game against the Bruins at Falcon Stadium. It was on runs like this that Czarnota picked up 48 yards rushing, as well as catching three of quarterback Terry Isaacson's passes for another 42 yards to play an important role in the AFA's 48-21 victory.

New Mexico's Stokes Lineman of the Week

By JIM IRWIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) —"I hope he doesn't win this honor too often or we won't even see him out at practice."

That was University of New Mexico Coach Bill Weeks talking about center Eddie Stokes who was named Associated Press Lineman of the Week Tuesday.

Weeks and the mechanical engineering department have an equal - time agreement with Stokes.

The 189-pound Phillips, Tex., native misses the Monday and Friday football practices and half of the Wednesday workouts because of mechanical engineering labs.

Stokes was selected for his outstanding play in New Mexico's 17-6 upset victory over Wyoming.

"I'm really thrilled about this because they told me I wasn't big enough for a college lineman," Stokes said as he walked with reporters to what was left of Tuesday's practice.

The "they" referred to Texas Tech and Oklahoma State—Eddie's first two college choices.

"They told me at Texas Tech and Oklahoma State that I couldn't play in a college line. I just weighed 160 pounds so I came here," he said.

Stokes was the defensive captain who called the signals that limited Wyoming to 181 yards—its lowest total offense of the season — made five unassisted tackles and helped on 10.

In the first quarter he chased down the receiver on a swing pass and pounced on an ensuing fumble on the Wyoming 10. It resulted in New Mexico's first touchdown.

On offense Stokes opened up the middle of the burly Wyoming line permitting fullback Bucky Stallings and tailback Hoe Harris to ramble between the tackles for 162 yards.

Other outstanding nominees including Harvard guard Bill Southmayd, who recovered a fumble to kill Princeton's chance for a tie.

Isaacson Ranks 3rd In Nation

Terry Isaacson, the Air Force Academy's ace quarterback, now ranks third nationally in total offense, according to the latest NCAA football statistics released today.

Ahead of Isaacson is Baylor's Don Trull with 1,647 yards in seven games, and Navy's Roger Staubach with 1,544 yards in eight games. Isaacson has gained 1,370 yards in running and passing in eight games.

The Air Force triple-threat back will be in action this Saturday at Albuquerque, N. M., against the University of New Mexico. In Tuesday's drills, he spent considerable time passing to a bevy of Falcon receivers from both the regular T formation and the new shotgun spread, used by the AFA against UCLA last weekend.

Meanwhile at Albuquerque, New Mexico spent most of its two-hour practice Tuesday working on offensive plays against the Air Force defense. A 30-minute contract scrimmage featured both running and passing against the UNM freshmen.

Coach Bill Weeks warned his Lobos that the Air Force would probably be the toughest defensive team New Mexico has played.

"The Air Force has strong, fast defensive ends," Weeks said, "and a pair of fine linebackers. Out offense must be perfect if we hope to move against them."

New Mexico, which defeated the AFA in 1959 and 1961, the last two times the teams met, has a 4-3 record for the season after defeating Wyoming last week, 17-6.

Cheyenne Prepares for State Semi-Final Playoff

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Still hindered by a seige of injuries Eldon Helm's Indians—undefeated winners of the 1963 Pikes Peak League — are preparing for their State Class AA semi-final game against Durango across the Western Slope this Saturday at 2 p.m.

The Demons, perennial power in the Southwestern League, won the league crown and a berth in the semi-finals Monday when the Durango aggregation toppled Cortez, 25-13. The winner of the Cheyenne-Durango playoff contest will host the state championship the following Saturday, Nov. 23 against the victor of the Lamar-Thornton game (also slated this Saturday).

Helm's scouting reports point out that the Demons are perhaps the strongest of the four semi-finalists. Against Cortez, Durango completed seven of 19 aerial bombardments including three touchdown passes. The win was spearheaded by quarterback Randy Blackman who pitched two TD passes against Cortez.

The Durango line will have an edge in weight as the Demons starting linemen all tip the scales at nearly 195 pounds. In addition, the Demon backfield almost outweighs the line. They also possess three lads that can fire the pigskin, and don't hesitate to pass at any stage of the game. Against Cortez they launched an aerial bomb the first play from scrimmage.

Helm' offensive starting backfield works around ramrod-fullback Greg Cramblit, who was sidelined the last two outings because of a cleet spike infection in the shin. Cramblit was hospitalized last week, and was discharged last Sunday. Tuesday was the first day the 182-pound hard-charging fullback was able to participate in a practice session in nearly two weeks.

The Tribe's offensive charge lacked explosive power that Cramblit would normally supply last Saturday as the Cheyenne team rallied in the second half to deadlock rival St. Mary's, 20-20, in a non-league encounter. Prior to that game, the Indians only yielded four points per game to their eight PPL opponents. But without Cramblit, and only using speedster Bob Richardson and halfback Chuck McGee sparingly, the Tribe couldn't move the ball with the same authority.

Helm reports that McGee is a doubtful starter because of an elbow injury. In addition to his running chores, McGee backs the Indians' defense at one of the corner safety slots along with triple-threat quarterback Gary Graham. Helm indicated that McGee may possibly see some limited action against Durango.

Richardson is still nursing a hip pointer, but the Cheyenenne mentor thought the fleet-footed halfback — who runs the 100 yard dash in 10 seconds flat—would be ready to start Saturday. It was Richardson's breakaway speed, and the sure running of McGee coupled with Graham's superb performance as field general and ball hawking on defense, which enabled the Tribe to rally in the second half against St. Mary's.

But the Indians will go into Saturday's semi-final game full strength in the line. Several key linemen were ailing for last week's game, but Helm reports that his linemen are back on the active list.

Lonnie Mayo Top PPL Scorer

Harrison's talented halfback, Lonnie Mayo, finished out his career on a sterling note when the Panther speedster scored 26 points against Leadville last Saturday to snatch the Pikes Peak League individual scoring race. Mayo compiled 117 points in eight PPL campaigns via 17 touchdowns, and 15 PAT conversions.

In addition, Mayo broke the total rushing yardage record established last year by former Widefield star, Rusty Henninger (1300 yards). The fleet-footed Panther back accumulated a whopping 1,519 yards in 10 games.

Rodney Coates, Widfield's hard-charging fullback, was the runner-up in the scoring race with 94 points for 14 six-pointers and 10 conversions. Gary Graham, who directed the Cheyenne Mountain Indians to their first PPL championship in five years, finished in the third position after leading the race thruout the season with 93 points.

The 182-pound fullback, who averaged 100-yards per game was sidelined in the Tribe's finale against Florence two weeks ago. Claude Burke of Widefield finished fifth with 77 points followed by Roger Karolick, Academy High, (61 points); Ed Ehmke, Salida, (46 points); Rob Stockhouse, Academy High and Danny Giech, Harrison, (37 points); and Terry Stevens of Florence grabbed the 10th spot with 36 points.

Palmer Concludes Slate Third Place in SCL

The finest football season since the split of old Colorado Springs' High School into Palmer and Wasson has ended for Palmer's Terrors. It was certainly a season of ups and downs for Coach Bill Westbay's team, but the ending turned out happy for those who remained loyal.

The Terrors finished in undisputed possession of third place in the tough Souh Central League final standings with a 4-3 record. The 21-13 conquest of Pueblo Central last weekend assured the Tribe its best finish since enlargement of the league.

Counting only the past five seasons, it was a record-setting season for the Terrors. Since the school took the name of Palmer, no team has scored as often, won so many games, or run up such a commanding difference in statistics as did this squad.

Overall, only the three defeats in league play blemished the Palmer ledger. Those losses were to the champion and runnerup, Pueblo Centennial (7-6) and Wasson (27-0), and to Trinidad's always tough Miners (7-0) in a leftover letdown from the cross-town rivalry with the Thunderbirds.

However, the Terrors staged a fine comeback in shaking off two straight scoreless games in last week's win over Central. In typical fashion of this often explosive team, quarterback Walt Hylton and halfback Alan Snyder combined on pass plays that covered 88 and 61 yards, and then Hylton capped one of his finest games of the season with the final touchdown run to seal the victory.

The finale was a productive finish for Snyder, a gutty little 141-pound senior, as he jumped to second in scoring and third in rushing in the final team figures.

Jim Glaskin, who was hampered thruout the last few games with a cracked rib, still managed to capture scoring honors with 48 points. Snyder was next with 36, followed closely be Hylton on 32 and workhorse fullback Ray Cool with 31 points.

Cool, building an early lead and then showing great determination in the latter games by playing despite a painful knee injury, easily walked off with rushing laurals as the hard running 177-pound senior finished up with 587 yards and a nifty 4.7 average for 124 carries. Glaskin was next with 451 yards and a 5.9 average.

Altho opponents threw nearly twice as many passes as did the Terrors this fall, Hylton's performance at times was outstanding. He compelted 26 of 61 attempts for a 42.7 percentage and five touchdowns. Oddly enough, opponents threw against the Terrors 104 times—but failed to make a single TD thru the air.

Snyder was the favorite target for Hylton's passing as the slick open field runner snagged 10 aerials and averaged 32 yards per catch. Two of his four touchdowns thru receiving came in the final game against Central.

Also outstanding for Palmer this season was the punting by Bobby Joe Williams and in the last part of the slate, after Williams injured his leg, by Claud Spears, a junior. Spears averaged a fine 40.2 yards and Williams 36.4 yards

One of the big key games in the season was the one-point loss to eventual SCL titlist Centennial. The Terrors had edge in total offense over the usually high-scoring Bulldogs and they contained the champs from Pueblo as no other team did. However, a late scoring threat by Palmer failed to go all the way and they lost by the margin of a conversion.

By far the largest margin of defeat came the next week against runnerup Wasson in a game witnessed by some 11,000 fans. The 27 points scored by the T-Birds was more than previous seven opponents had accomplished, but even in that game the always scrappy Terrors were still in the thick of things until two fourth period touchdowns went across their goal.

Perhaps the most disappointing thing about the entire season was the way many of the Terrors backers deserted the team in the final two games. Even most of the students failed to watch Palmer against Trinidad as the contest was played before a crowd of less than 1,000—by far the smallest of the season. It came on the heels of the Wasson-Palmer match, and undoubtedly just when the team needed support in the worst way.

The Terrors were also in the midst of strangers when they came thru with the fine finish in Pueblo last weekend.

Westbay will lose the services of 17 seniors from this squad, but will have at least a half-dozen regulars back after graduation in the spring. The entire usual starting backfield of Cool, Glaskin, Hylton and Snyder will graduate, as will most of the line including ends Williams and tackles Ron Moon and Phil Calkins, guard and co-captain Don Breeding and center Roderick Ross. Even on the alternate unit the Terrors were dominated by seniors in end Pete Freeman, tackle John Lieberherr, guard Dave Frankforter, and halfback Ron Cheek.

Regulars back will be tackle John Rudd and guard John Van Druff from the starters and off the alternates are tackles Ken Lancaster and Gary Stockdale, center Ron Smith, quarterback Doug Jones, fullback Mike Tracy and halfback Wardell Patterson. Patterson ran regularily with the starters at the end of the season and finished as the fifth best rusher.

Oddsmakers See Top Four Teams Having Easy Time This Weekend

NEW YORK (UPI)—There'll be no holding the nation's four top-ranked teams this weekend according to the college football oddsmakers.

Texas, Navy, Mississippi, and Michigan State — the power elite of the major college set—all have been installed two-touchdown or better favorites for Saturday's games, as has been ninth-ranked Nebraska.

The rest of the nation's top 10 are expected to have their hands full with tough opponents, especially Illinois (No. 8) which is a three-point underdog to Big Ten rival Wisconsin.

Top ranked Texas, with only two teams standing between them and the Southwest Conference title, a Cotton Bowl bid, and the national championship, risks its perfect record against Texas Christian (3-3-1). The Longhorns, the only major college outfit with a spotless slate, are 12½ point choices.

Roger Staubach's sensational passing has made Navy (No. 2) a solid 12-point favorite over a 20-20 Duke team, although the Blue Devils are presently in a three-way tie for the Atlantic Coast Conference title.

Third ranked Mississippi, skipping merrily to another Southeastern Conference championship, rates 15½ points better than erratic Tennessee; punch-drunk Notre Dame, battered and bruised by Navy and Pittsburgh in its last two games, is unlikely to get any sympathy from Michigan State (No. 4) which rates a 13½-point selection on the strength of its Big Ten leadership; and Nebraska are 16 points stronger than Oklahoma State.

Pitt (No. 5), Oklahoma (No. 6), and Alabama (No. 7) all rate one-touchdown favorites over ranked opponents. The Panthers are 7-point picks over Army (No. 12) in the East's feature game; the Sooners are favored by 6½ over Big Eight rival Missouri (No. 15) and 'Bama is given the same spread over 13th-ranked Georgia Tech with versatile Billy Lothridge.

Georgia, paced by passer Larry Rakestraw, is a six-point underdog, to 10th-ranked Auburn's ground forces, led by Jimmy Sidle.

In a pair of Friday night games, Southern California is a 12½ point favorite over Oregon State in a West Coast clash, and Xavier is an eight-point choice over Detroit.

In other Saturday games:

East: Harvard is favored by 5½ over Brown; Princeton 8 over Yale; Columbia 11 over Pennsylvania; Boston College 12½ over Virginia; Dartmouth 12½ over Cornell; Syracuse 20 over Richmond; Penn State 26 over Holy Cross.

South: West Virginia 1 over Virginia Tech; Tulane 1½ over Vanderbilt; Mississippi State 2 over Louisiana State; North Carolina 2 ½over Miami (Fla.); Florida State 3 over North Carolina State; Clemson 9 over Maryland; South Carolina 17 over Wake Forest.

Midwest: Ohio vs. Bowling Green, even money; Wichita vs Cincinnati, even; Michigan 2 over Iowa; Ohio State 5 over Northwestern; Purdue 6 over Minnesota; Miami (Ohio) 8½ over Dayton.

Southwest: Arkansas 4 over Southern Methodist; Arizona State 6 over Wyoming; Houston 7 over Tulsa; Rice 12 over Texas A&M; Air Force 12 over New Mexico; Baylor 12½ over Kentucky; Kansas 13½ over Colorado.

West: California 3 over Utah; Oregon 6 over Indiana; Stanford 12 over Washington State; Washington 13 over UCLA.

In professional football:

National League: Baltimore 3 over Minnesota; Green Bay 3½ over Chicago; Dallas 5 over Philadelphia; Pittsburgh 6½ over Washington; Cleveland 8 over St. Louis; Detroit 10 over Los Angeles; New York 17 over San Francisco.

American League: San Diego 1½ over Buffalo; Denver 5 over New York; Boston 6½ over Kansas City.

Local Campaign Underway For Olympic Hockey Team

Colorado Springs residents will have an opportunity to participate in sending the United States Hockey team to the 1964 Olympic Games in Innsbruck, Austria, according to Andy Gambucci, fund chairman for the Colorado Springs area.

The goal for the state is set at $10,000 and will be gained by donations. An Olympic Games souvenir book will be given to those who pledge $25 or more; $10 donators receive an Olympic plaque; $1, an Olympic pin or window decal. Cannisters for this purpose will be displayed thruout Colorado Springs business houses.

An Olympic Fund Week is planned for the last week in November, when the United States team will be in Colorado Springs to play a two-game series with Colorado College, Nov. 26 and 30, in the Broadmoor World Arena. Civic leaders will officialize the week and players, coaches and managers of the team will be available for appearances at service clubs or similar organizations.

Alumni hockey players from Denver University and Colorado College will put on an exhibition game in December, at the Broadmoor World Arena, for the purpose of raising funds.

The entire sum needed to send the U. S. team is $65,000. Thayer Tutt, president of the Broadmoor, is national chairman of fund raising. This amount will be used for transportation, training, equipment and other affiliated expenses.

FILTERED THROUGH A "MOUNTAIN" OF CHARCOAL

Smirnoff is filtered and refined through 7 tons of activated charcoal, literally a "mountain" of charcoal. This "black magic" removes most of the congeners. No wonder Smirnoff is the world's finest liquor, smooth and flawless. It blends perfectly with fruit juices or soft drinks. Try breathless Smirnoff on-the-rocks or in a Martini and find out why.

It leaves you breathless

BACK

Mike Teague, 156-pound senior fullback of the Wasson Thunderbirds, has been selected as Back of the Week for the final week of the season by the sports staff of the Gazette-Telegraph for his record-setting performance in the T-Birds' 12-7 win over Pueblo East last Friday.

Teague, capping a brilliant high school career, rushed for 144 yards to establish a new one-game record for Wasson players and also raised his season's record total to 1,032 yards. It was the seventh time this season that he had topped 100 yards in a single game. In addition, he scored Wasson's first touchdown of the contest to finish in second place among South Central League scorers.

Other given mention this week are Dave Adamson and Sam Zavatti of St. Mary's, Bob Richardson and Gary Graham of Cheyenne Mountain, Roger Korolick and Rob Stockhouse of Academy High, Lonnie Mayo of Harrison, Jim Smith and Clay Chambers of Wasson, and Walt Hylton and Alan Snyder of Palmer.

RODERICK ROSS
Defensive Demon
LINEMAN

Roderick Ross, 179-pound center of the Palmer Terrors, has been selected as Lineman of the Week for the final week of the season by the sports staff of the Gazette-Telegraph for his outstanding performance in the Terrors 21-13 win over Pueblo Central last Saturday.

Ross, an outstanding two-way performer for the Terrors for the past two seasons, had one of his finest games against the Wildcats. He played well offensively and was a virtual demon defensively where he either made, or was in on, the majority of the tackles during the evening. Like Teague, the Back of the Week, this is the second time this season Ross has been honored.

Others considered in making the pick this week were David Grantz and Dale Schendzielos of St. Mary's, Jack O'Brien of Cheyenne Mountain, Doug Sharpe of Harrison, Bill Culver of Academy High, Bobby Joe Williams and Don Breeding of Palmer, Ron Nighswonger and Charlie Green of Wasson.

Green Bay-Chicago NFL Tilt May Hinge on Place Kickers

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The big battle between the Green Bay Packers and Chicago Bears at Wrigley Field in Chicago Sunday could develop into a duel between two field goal kickers —Jerry Kramer of the Packers and Roger Leclerc of the Bears.

The Bears' offense has been sputtering in recent weeks. They couldn't break through for a touchdown Sunday against the Los Angeles Rams and had to settle for victory on two field goals by Leclerc. In their last five games the Bears have scored more than 17 points only once.

Green Bay has been scoring but Vince Lombardi had to go to the air for three touchdowns last week against Minnesota. They have rolled for 32 TDS, 18 on the ground and 14 in the air, but the Bear defense has allowed only 10 touchdowns all year, only three on the ground. Only 82 points have been scored on the Bears, or nine a game.

It just could come about that neither club can dent the other's defense. The Bears are the tightest in the league and Green Bay is third.

If it comes to kicking, the Packers are in great shape with Jerry Kramer leading the NFL in scoring. Kramer, who took over the kicking job that Paul Hornung used to handle, has made good on 15 of 25 field goal attempts. You may remember he kicked three last December against New York in the title game despite a 50 mile per hour wind.

The Bears switched away from Leclerc, who made only 13 of 27 last year, and gave the job to Bob Jencks, a rookie from Miami (Ohio) at the start of the season. Jencks made his first but missed nine straight and was one for 10 when Coach George Halas went back to Leclerc. The former Little All-America from Trinity had made 6 of 11. Back in 1961, Leclerc tied the NFL record by kicking five in one game against Detroit.

Local Swim Teams Compete In Denver Meet

The Colorado Springs YMCA Barracuda swim team, coached by Tim Kelly, participated in a "Small Fry Swim Meet" in Denver last weekend with the gals placing four in Sunday's "All-Girls Meet."

In the Saturday meet, among those placing in first three places were: Janet Dumars, 2nd in the butterfly; Doug Tucker, 3rd in the butterfly; Kathy Tiemann and Ricki Matthews, 3rd in the backstroke; Jay Buckley, 2nd in the breast stroke; Kathy Tiemann and Ricki Matthews, 3rd in the breast stroke.

Kay Matthews, competing in the 13-14 age divisions, was the sole local tanker to cop first place as Miss Matthews won the butterfly in the "All-Girls Meet." Others placing in the first three places were: Leslie Isaac, 2nd freestyle; Judy Miller, 3rd freestyle; Corey Connell, 3rd breast stroke; Kay Matthews, 2nd breast stroke; Leslie Isaac, 3rd butterfly; Leslie Isaac, 3rd and Judy Miller, individual medley; and the medley relay team placed second in the 13-14 age division composed of Kristine Anderson, Carol Blumenstein, Kay Matthews, and Judy Miller.

U.S. Davis Cup Squad May Lose Froehling

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP)—The United States Davis Cup team may lose Frank Froehling of Coral Gables, Fla. for the challenge round matches against defending Australia.

Froehling, ranked No. 2 in the U.S. will enter a hospital in Melbourne for an examination to determine if an operation is necessary to cure a deep-stated internal abscess.

Missouri May Establish New Attendance Marks

By United Press International

Missouri attendance records may be smashed again Saturday when the Tigers ,trying to keep their heads above water in the Big Eight Conference race, play Oklahoma.

The only tickets left for the crucial game are standing room only, a situation similar to the Nov. 2 game when a record breaking 50,500 saw Nebraska edge Missouri 13-12.

A Missouri victory would put the Tigers on the path of a three-way tie for the conference crown with Nebraska and Oklahome.

Oklahoma coaches will decide today whether star fullback Jim Grisham will be able to play Saturday. Grisham was still wearing a plaster cast on his left ankle Tuesday. He was injured in the Iowa State game last Saturday.

Devaney said the Oklahoma State line is the small, quick type that has given Nebraska the most trouble this year. Devaney said of quarterback Dennis Claridge and fullback Rudy Johnson are still doubtful starters because of injuries.

Oklahoma State Coach Phil Cutchin said his squad "looks like more of a team" after going through its paces Tuesday.

Cutchin said the line "is beginning to play like a line — a midget line compared with Nebraska — but they are getting to the point where they can take care of themselves."

Pirates End Another Fine Grid Season

Meanwhile, the Bucs finished their non-league schedule with a 20-20 tie against rival Cheyenne Mountain last week for an overall 7-2-1 won-lost-tied mark.

With only six returning veterans from last year's DPL champs Chuck Haering, in his second term as Pirate bossman, saw the Bucs drop two encounters. The Pirates were humbled by Regis, 42-0, while scrappy St. Joseph's presented the Colorado Springs school with its second loss, 13-6.

Haering will lose the service of 14 players to graduation this June, but the Pirate mentor will have nine regulars back next year. Included in that returning bunch will be junior quarterback Jerry Knauf; fullback Sam Zavatti and running backs Gary Dobson and John Van Horn.

Knauf was an outstanding passer this season as the front line quarterback completed 24 of 58 aerials for 510 yards, including six TD tosses.

Mineral Bowl Considers Five for Nov. 30 Game

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo. (UPI)— The Mineral Water Bowl selection committee today listed five outstanding football teams under consideration for the 15th renewal of the post-season game at 2 p.m. Nov. 30.

At the top of the list was Northern Illinois, who lost 23-20 in last year's Mineral Bowl to Adams State of Alamosa, Colo. The Huskies have completed this season with a 9-0 record.

Another contender for a bid, Luther, Iowa, also has a 9-0 season mark. The Decorah Norsemen downed its nine Iowa opponents with little strain.

Southwest Missouri State of Springfield, another candidate, was crowned Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association champion with an 8-0 mark. It has one game left on its schedule, against Akron (Ohio) University this weekend.

Two other teams being screened by the committee were South Dakota State of Brookings, and Colorado Western State at Gunnison.

With one game remaining, the South Dakota State has an 8-1 record with its only loss to Nebraska of the Big Eight. Its final season game will be against Kansas State this weekend.

Western Colorado lost 14 - 7 last weekend to Flagstaff to make it a 7-1 record. It plays Weber, Utah, this weekend for its final season contest.

CBS Plans Expanded Coverage of NFL Tilt

NEW YORK (UPI)—Expanded coverage of Sunday's National Football League game between Green Bay and Chicago has been planned by the Columbia Broadcasting Company. A spokesman for the network said the Packers-Bears game will be substituted for the NFL game in certain parts of the South, West Coast, Dallas and Minnesota areas. It will be seen on 116 stations.

Cincinnati Games Aired Over WCKY

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI)—The Cincinnati Reds' 1964 games will be broadcast over radio station WCKY. Waite Hoyt will handle the broadcasts over the 80-station network. WCKY is a 50,000 watt station one of the nation's most powerful.

Oddsmakers See Top Four Teams Having Easy Time This Weekend

NEW YORK (UPI)—There'll be no holding the nation's four top-ranked teams this weekend according to the college football oddsmakers.

Texas, Navy, Mississippi, and Michigan State — the power elite of the major college set—all have been installed two-touchdown or better favorites for Saturday's games, as has been ninth-ranked Nebraska.

The rest of the nation's top 10 are expected to have their hands full with tough opponents, especially Illinois (No. 8) which is a three-point underdog to Big Ten rival Wisconsin.

Top ranked Texas, with only two teams standing between them and the Southwest Conference title, a Cotton Bowl bid, and the national championship, risks its perfect record against Texas Christian (3-3-1). The Longhorns, the only major college outfit with a spotless slate, are 12½ point choices.

Roger Staubach's sensational passing has made Navy (No. 2) a solid 12-point favorite over a 20-20 Duke team, although the Blue Devils are presently in a three-way tie for the Atlantic Coast Conference title.

Third ranked Mississippi, skipping merrily to another Southeastern Conference championship, rates 15½ points better than erratic Tennessee; punch-drunk Notre Dame, battered and bruised by Navy and Pittsburgh in its last two games, is unlikely to get any sympathy from Michigan State (No. 4) which rates a 13½-point selection on the strength of its Big Ten leadership; and Nebraska are 16 points stronger than Oklahoma State.

Pitt (No. 5), Oklahoma (No. 6), and Alabama (No. 7) all rate one-touchdown favorites over ranked opponents. The Panthers are 7-point picks over Army (No. 12) in the East's feature game; the Sooners are favored by 6½ over Big Eight rival Missouri (No. 15) and 'Bama is given the same spread over 13th-ranked Georgia Tech with versatile Billy Lothridge.

Georgia, paced by passer Larry Rakestraw, is a six-point underdog, to 10th-ranked Auburn's ground forces, led by Jimmy Sidle.

In a pair of Friday night games, Southern California is a 12½ point favorite over Oregon State in a West Coast clash, and Xavier is an eight-point choice over Detroit.

In other Saturday games:

East: Harvard is favored by 5½ over Brown; Princeton 8 over Yale; Columbia 11 over Pennsylvania; Boston College 12½ over Virginia; Dartmouth 12½ over Cornell; Syracuse 20 over Richmond; Penn State 26 over Holy Cross.

South: West Virginia 1 over Virginia Tech; Tulane 1½ over Vanderbilt; Mississippi State 2 over Louisiana State; North Carolina 2 ½over Miami (Fla.); Florida State 3 over North Carolina State; Clemson 9 over Maryland; South Carolina 17 over Wake Forest.

Midwest: Ohio vs. Bowling Green, even money; Wichita vs Cincinnati, even; Michigan 2 over Iowa; Ohio State 5 over Northwestern; Purdue 6 over Minnesota; Miami (Ohio) 8½ over Dayton.

Southwest: Arkansas 4 over Southern Methodist; Arizona State 6 over Wyoming; Houston 7 over Tulsa; Rice 12 over Texas A&M; Air Force 12 over New Mexico; Baylor 12½ over Kentucky; Kansas 13½ over Colorado.

West: California 3 over Utah; Oregon 6 over Indiana; Stanford 12 over Washington State; Washington 13 over UCLA.

In professional football:

National League: Baltimore 3 over Minnesota; Green Bay 3½ over Chicago; Dallas 5 over Philadelphia; Pittsburgh 6½ over Washington; Cleveland 8 over St. Louis; Detroit 10 over Los Angeles; New York 17 over San Francisco.

American League: San Diego 1½ over Buffalo; Denver 5 over New York; Boston 6½ over Kansas City.

Local Campaign Underway For Olympic Hockey Team

Colorado Springs residents will have an opportunity to participate in sending the United States Hockey team to the 1964 Olympic Games in Innsbruck, Austria, according to Andy Gambucci, fund chairman for the Colorado Springs area.

The goal for the state is set at $10,000 and will be gained by donations. An Olympic Games souvenir book will be given to those who pledge $25 or more; $10 donators receive an Olympic plaque; $1, an Olympic pin or window decal. Canisters for this purpose will be displayed thruout Colorado Springs business houses.

An Olympic Fund Week is planned for the last week in November, when the United States team will be in Colorado Springs to play a two-game series with Colorado College, Nov. 26 and 30, in the Broadmoor World Arena. Civic leaders will officialize the week and players, coaches and managers of the team will be available for appearances at service clubs or similar organizations.

Alumni hockey players from Denver University and Colorado College will put on an exhibition game in December, at the Broadmoor World Arena, for the purpose of raising funds.

The entire sum needed to send the U. S. team is $65,000. Thayer Tutt, president of the Broadmoor, is national chairman of fund raising. This amount will be used for transportation, training, equipment and other affiliated expenses.

Prep Stars of the Week

MIKE TEAGUE
Record Runner

Mike Teague, 156-pound senior fullback of the Wasson Thunderbirds, has been selected as Back of the Week for the final week of the season by the sports staff of the Gazette-Telegraph for his record-setting performance in the T-Birds' 12-7 win over Pueblo East last Friday.

Teague, capping a brilliant high school career, rushed for 144 yards to establish a new one-game record for Wasson players and also raised his season's record total to 1,032 yards. It was the seventh time this season that he had topped 100 yards in a single game. In addition, he scored Wasson's first touchdown of the contest to finish in second place among South Central League scorers.

Other given mention this week are Dave Adamson and Sam Zavatti of St. Mary's, Bob Richardson and Gary Graham of Cheyenne Mountain, Roger Korolick and Rob Stockhouse of Academy High, Lonnie Mayo of Harrison, Jim Smith and Clay Chambers of Wasson, and Walt Hylton and Alan Snyder of Palmer.

RODERICK ROSS
Defensive Demon
LINEMAN

Roderick Ross, 179-pound center of the Palmer Terrors, has been selected as Lineman of the Week for the final week of the season by the sports staff of the Gazette-Telegraph for his outstanding performance in the Terrors 21-13 win over Pueblo Central last Saturday.

Ross, an outstanding two-way performer for the Terrors for the past two seasons, had one of his finest games against the Wildcats. He played well offensively and was a virtual demon defensively where he either made, or was in on, the majority of the tackles during the evening. Like Teague, the Back of the Week, this is the second time this season Ross has been honored.

Others considered in making the pick this week were David Grantz and Dale Schendzielos of St. Mary's, Jack O'Brien of Cheyenne Mountain, Doug Sharpe of Harrison, Bill Culver of Academy High, Bobby Joe Williams and Don Breeding of Palmer, Ron Nighswonger and Charlie Green of Wasson.

Green Bay-Chicago NFL Tilt May Hinge on Place Kickers

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The big battle between the Green Bay Packers and Chicago Bears at Wrigley Field in Chicago Sunday could develop into a duel between two field goal kickers—Jerry Kramer of the Packers and Roger Leclerc of the Bears.

The Bears' offense has been sputtering in recent weeks. They couldn't break through for a touchdown Sunday against the Los Angeles Rams and had to settle for victory on two field goals by Leclerc. In their last five games the Bears have scored more than 17 points only once.

Green Bay has been scoring but Vince Lombardi had to go to the air for three touchdowns last week against Minnesota. They have rolled for 32 TDS, 18 on the ground and 14 in the air, but the Bear defense has allowed only 10 touchdowns all year, only three on the ground. Only 82 points have been scored on the Bears, or nine a game.

It just could come about that neither club can dent the other's defense. The Bears are the tightest in the league and Green Bay is third.

If it comes to kicking, the Packers are in great shape with Jerry Kramer leading the NFL in scoring. Kramer, who took over the kicking job that Paul Hornung used to handle, has made good on 15 of 25 field goal attempts. You may remember he kicked three last December against New York in the title game despite a 50 mile per hour wind.

The Bears switched away from Leclerc, who made only 13 of 27 last year, and gave the job to Bob Jencks, a rookie from Miami (Ohio) at the start of the season. Jencks made his first but missed nine straight and was one for 10 when Coach George Halas went back to Leclerc. The former Little All-America from Trinity had made 6 of 11. Back in 1961, Leclerc tied the NFL record by kicking five in one game against Detroit.

Local Swim Teams Compete In Denver Meet

The Colorado Springs YMCA Barracuda swim team, coached by Tim Kelly, participated in a "Small Fry Swim Meet" in Denver last weekend with the gals placing four in Sunday's "All-Girls Meet."

In the Saturday meet, among those placing in first three places were: Janet Dumars, 2nd in the butterfly; Doug Tucker, 3rd in the butterfly; Kathy Tiemann and Ricki Matthews, 3rd in the backstroke; Jay Buckley, 2nd in the breast stroke; Kathy Tiemann and Ricki Matthews, 3rd in the breast stroke.

Kay Matthews, competing in the 13-14 age divisions, was the sole local tanker to cop first place as Miss Matthews won the butterfly in the "All-Girls Meet." Others placing in the first three places were: Leslie Isaac, 2nd freestyle; Judy Miller, 3rd freestyle; Corey Connell, 3rd breast stroke; Kay Matthews, 2nd breast stroke; Leslie Isaac, 3rd butterfly; Leslie Isaac, 3rd and Judy Miller, individual medley; and the medley relay team placed second in the 13-14 age division composed of Kristine Anderson, Carol Blumenstein, Kay Matthews, and Judy Miller.

U.S. Davis Cup Squad May Lose Froehling

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP)—The United States Davis Cup team may lose Frank Froehling of Coral Gables, Fla. for the challenge round matches against defending Australia.

Froehling, ranked No. 2 in the U.S. will enter a hospital in Melbourne for an examination to determine if an operation is necessary to cure a deep-stated internal abscess.

Mineral Bowl Considers Five for Nov. 30 Game

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo. (UPI)— The Mineral Water Bowl selection committee today listed five outstanding football teams under consideration for the 15th renewal of the post-season game at 2 p.m. Nov. 30.

At the top of the list was Northern Illinois, who lost 23-20 in last year's Mineral Bowl to Adams State of Alamosa, Colo. The Huskies have completed this season with a 9-0 record.

Another contender for a bid, Luther, Iowa, also has a 9-0 season mark. The Decorah Norsemen downed its nine Iowa opponents with little strain.

Southwest Missouri State of Springfield, another candidate, was crowned Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association champion with an 8-0 mark. It has one game left on its schedule, against Akron (Ohio) University this weekend.

Two other teams being screened by the committee were South Dakota State of Brookings, and Colorado Western State at Gunnison.

With one game remaining, the South Dakota State has an 8-1 record with its only loss to Nebraska of the Big Eight. Its final season game will be against Kansas State this weekend.

Western Colorado lost 14 - 7 last weekend to Flagstaff to make it a 7-1 record. It plays Weber, Utah, this weekend for its final season contest.

Missouri May Establish New Attendance Marks

By United Press International

Missouri attendance records may be smashed again Saturday when the Tigers ,trying to keep their heads above water in the Big Eight Conference race, play Oklahoma.

The only tickets left for the crucial game are standing room only, a situation similar to the Nov. 2 game when a record breaking 50,500 saw Nebraska edge Missouri 13-12.

A Missouri victory would put the Tigers on the path of a three-way tie for the conference crown with Nebraska and Oklahome.

Oklahoma coaches will decide today whether star fullback Jim Grisham will be able to play Saturday. Grisham was still wearing a plaster cast on his left ankle Tuesday. He was injured in the Iowa State game last Saturday.

Devaney said the Oklahoma State line is the small, quick type that has given Nebraska the most trouble this year. Devaney said of quarterback Dennis Claridge and fullback Rudy Johnson are still doubtful starters because of injuries.

Oklahoma State Coach Phil Cutchin said his squad "looks like more of a team" after going through its paces Tuesday.

Cutchin said the line "is beginning to play like a line — a midget line compared with Nebraska — but they are getting to the point where they can take care of themselves."

Barlow started at the position at the beginning of the season, but Condit took it over after Barlow was injured three weeks ago.

Iowa State banged through a defensive workout in near-freezing weather with light snow falling Tuesday in an attempt to find a way to stop Kansas State's Ralph McFillen, who is second in the Big Eight pass receiving department.

Pirates End Another Fine Grid Season

Meanwhile, the Bucs finished their non-league schedule with a 20-20 tie against rival Cheyenne Mountain last week for an overall 7-2-1 won-lost-tied mark.

With only six returning veterans from last year's DPL champs Chuck Haering, in his second term as Pirate bossman, saw the Bucs drop two encounters. The Pirates were humbled by Regis, 42-0, while scrappy St. Joseph's presented the Colorado Springs school with its second loss, 13-6.

Haering will lose the service of 14 players to graduation this June, but the Pirate mentor will have nine regulars back next year. Included in that returning bunch will be junior quarterback Jerry Knauf; fullback Sam Zavatti and running backs Gary Dobson and John Van Horn.

Knauf was an outstanding passer this season as the front line quarterback completed 24 of 58 aerials for 510 yards, including six TD tosses.

CBS Plans Expanded Coverage of NFL Tilt

NEW YORK (UPI)—Expanded coverage of Sunday's National Football League game between Green Bay and Chicago has been planned by the Columbia Broadcasting Company. A spokesman for the network said the Packers-Bears game will be substituted for the NFL game in certain parts of the South, West Coast, Dallas and Minnesota areas. It will be seen on 116 stations.

Cincinnati Games Aired Over WCKY

CINCINNATI, Ohio (UPI)—The Cincinnati Reds' 1964 games will be broadcast over radio station WCKY. Waite Hoyt will handle the broadcasts over the 80-station network. WCKY is a 50,000 watt station one of the nation's most powerful.

FILTERED THROUGH A "MOUNTAIN" OF CHARCOAL

Smirnoff is filtered and refined through 7 tons of activated charcoal, literally a "mountain" of charcoal. This "black magic" removes most of the congeners. No wonder Smirnoff is the world's finest liquor, smooth and flawless. It blends perfectly with fruit juices or soft drinks. Try breathless Smirnoff on-the-rocks or in a Martini and find out why.

It leaves you breathless

Barry Sees Pressure for Spending Cuts

By WALTER R. MEARS

CHICAGO (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater sees pressure from a "rather fed up" America behind congressional slashes in President Kennedy's foreign aid bill—and he thinks the cuts should be bigger.

But although the Arizona senator tied into the administration's aid program Tuesday night, he said he is taking Kennedy's advice on another subject: presidential politics.

Goldwater's Chicago outing was his first since New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller declared himself a candidate for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination.

The conservative lawmaker said he still hasn't decided when or whether he'll enter the race.

FDR's Luxury Canal Yacht Put on Sale

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — For sale: a 72-foot yacht, used by Franklin D. Roosevelt for "official inspections" of the state barge canal—with a few "nonpolitical" speeches along the way.

Inspector II, a 38-year-old luxury vessel owned by New York State since 1930, has been declared surplus property. The state is advertising for bids and will sell it Nov. 20.

Roosevelt took several cruises on Inspector II during his second term as governor, 1930-32. FDR laughingly described the cross-state waterway trips as official inspections. it was his practice to stop at communities along the route to stump for his programs.

The state paid $30,000 for the yacht. Officials declined to estimate its value now.

The Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act specifies what facts a label on canned foods must include in order to make the product legal for interestate commerce.

Home Agent Outlines Tips For Gay Winter Bouquets

By Ruth Appelthun
Extension Home Agent

Summer is gone, and with it most of the fresh bright flowers. But you may still be able to preserve materials from the garden for winter bouquets, and you may find grasses, weeds and seed pods in the fields or along the roadside for home decoration.

Gather and preserve an abundance of material so that a variety of lines, shapes, textures and sizes will be available from which to choose. I suggest these different ways of preserving plant materials.

1. Drying upside down: Tie plant material in bunches and hang suspended in a dark, dry place for about two weeks.

2. Drying between newspapers: Ferns, grasses, flowers may be placed between several thicknesses of newspaper, with boards and other weights over them. The paper may need to be changed several times before moisture absorbtion is stopped. This takes several weeks.

3. Use one part borax to two parts of cornmeal (or four parts clean sand) to "save" summer flowers. Flowers should be placed flat with leaves stripped off and covered with the mixture. Let them dry for about two weeks, then shake off borax and cornmeal or sand. Since flowers dry into whatever position they are placed be sure that some are straight and some curved in order to have interestingly shaped material. (All borax can be used. It will work more rapidly but must be watched carefully)

4. Use a 50 per cent glycerine-and-water solution for leaves. Put them in the solution as soon as they are picked. It takes from two to three weeks for them to absorb as much of the solution as they can. Wipe leaves with an oiled cloth to keep them from curling.

Is a bushel of apples a bargain? Or is it better to buy only a few at a time?

The answer depends on how much cool storage space you have. A bushel of sound apples bought in the hard stage (mature but not ripe) will keep well for at least a month at 55 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit. The colder the storage temperature—down to freezing—the longer they'll keep. In commercial storage, apples are kept for several months at a storage temperature of 31-34 degrees and fairly high humidity.

If you have no cool storage space except the family refrigerator and you cannot use a large quantity within a short time, it will probably pay you to buy apples by the pound, or in "consumer-size" bags, even though they may cost a little more. Plenty of commercially stored apples should be available this winter as you need them.

Apples marketed at this time of year are usually in the hard stage suitable for storage. Their flavor and texture will improve as the fruit ripen and the starch turns to sugar.

At room temperature they will reach a desirable stage for cooking or eating within a week or 10 days. Once fully ripe, they should be kept in the refrigerator to prevent spoilage until they are used. Some apples, such as the Delicious, become mealy and lose flavor if allowed to ripen too much.

Care for Trees Urged During Winter Season

Park and Recreation Department officials are concerned about trees and their livelihood during the drowth period and thruout the winter.

Stuart Richter, director Parks and Recreation, prevailed upon Fred P. McKown, departmental forestry consultant, for information related to tree care.

"The fall season is upon us and it is most timely that we now give some thought and time to one of our most valuable assets, namely, the shade tree. It is valuable not only from an aesthetic but from an intrinsic standpoint.

"Many of the newcomers to the region do not realize that our shade trees, not the evergreens, are not the product of nature, but rather that of human hands. In the beginning, Colorado Springs was a barren territory, just like the plains to the east of us.

"This is not the tree planting season, and we are not urging our citizens to plant deciduous trees at this time. What we are asking people to do is to see that the trees already planted are properly watered so that they may go thru the winter in good condition.

"You will notice that the ash and hackberry trees already have dropped their leaves, while the leaves are still clinging to the branches of the maples, elms and lindens, but even so, you will notice that their leaves are beginning to be a little off-color, which means that they are no longer functioning as the "chemical laboratories," so to speak, of the trees. For this reason, the trees have discontinued making new growth which might be damaged by an early freeze, therefore the tree is in a different condition today from what it was four weeks ago, at which time exsive watering might have been detrimental.

"Summing up, — now that the trees have entered the dormat stage, we strongly urge every householder to dig a saucer around each tree to hold the water, thus avoiding the loss of water flowing into the gutters, which would be the case without the construction of the saucer.

"We suggest not only that you fill this saucer a few times with water, but also that you press the nozzle of the hose into the ground some two or three feet from the trunk of the tree and hold it there a few minutes until the water has penetrated the soil a foot or two, thus providing an underground watering of the tree. Do this in two or three locations arond the tree.

"This last suggestion is especially necessary in cases where trees have been neglected in regard to watering and are in danger of becoming impoverished, thereby inviting an infestation of insects.

"If you will deep water at this time, as suggested above, and repeat the surface watering of trees every month or two, the time interval depending upon the frequency or infrequency of snows, we believe your trees will come thru the winter in fair condition," McKown said.

Exposition Will Show 37 Live Stock Breeds

Livestock entries are predicted to approach the 10,000 mark at the 64th International Live Stock Exposition and Horse Show, to be held Nov. 29 to Dec. 7 in the 13-acre International Amphitheatre at the Chicago Stock Yards.

The International is the finals of the stock show year. State and county fairs are held in the summer. They are followed by regional stock shows in the fall; and the Chicago Exposition is the close and climax of the stock show year.

Nearly every entry has been a high-ranking winner at some previous show or fair; so a blue or purple ribbon win at the International is a recognition stockmen prize above all.

The International Horse Show, daily entertainment feature of the Exposition, is the country's largest showing of saddle and harness and hunters and jumpers.

Star attraction of the 1963 Horse Show will be the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in their renowned Musical Ride, a spectacular precision riding performance by 30 red-coated Mounties on matching black horses. It is their only appearance in the United States this year.

Streamflows during this year were below normal and about as forecast.

Some areas of the state that had good carry-over storage were not materially affected by the below normal runoff. However, areas dependent upon direct flow from the snow fed streams felt the effect of short water supplies.

Numerous cities thruout the state were forced into water restrictions to insure domestic supplies thru the summer months.

Reservoir supplies are now depleted or much reduced from last year and cannot be relied on as heavily next year as durin the past irrigation season.

Many more areas in the state will feel severe drought effects next year unless the snowfall is normal or above this winter.

The above seasonal temperatures and below normal rainfall pattern is reducing existing soil moisture rapidly. Much of this winter's snow pack will be used next spring to replace existing deficient soil moisture.

The Arkansas and Rio Grande drainages were the two areas most affected by 1963 reduced runoff. Neither drainage had enough carryover storage to be of material benefit. The same conditions currently exist in these areas. The South Platte drainage had excellent storage last year, but many of the reservoirs are currently short of water.

An above normal snow pack is needed in the mountains of Colorado to insure good water supplies in 1964.

Mark said moisture conditions and late summer range growth were generally good on the west slope and northeast Colorado due to summer precipitation. Southeast Colorado is generally in a severe moisture deficient condition which will require a large build up in soil moisture for favorable winter wheat and range production.

CSU to Hold Livestock and Horse Show

Colorado State University's 30th annual Little National Western Livestock and Horse Show will be held in CSU's fieldhouse Nov. 15-16 in Ft. Collins.

Forrest Nelson of Meeker, manager of this year's show, said approximately 40 classes of open student contests will be held. Division champions in fitting and showing horses, beef cattle, dairy cattle, sheep and swine will be selected and then compete for the Grand Champion Showmanship Award.

The horse show will include: men's, women's and junior western horsemanship, English horsemanship, junior and senior reining, cloverleaf barrel racing, girls' musical chairs, men's stake race, keyhole race, sorority and fraternity pig catching contests and performance roping.

Performance roping, introduced at the 1960 show, has proved to be a popular event as it draws cowboys from several states each year. Ropers are allowed two minutes to display the quality and roping ability of their horses. The individual's ability is not considered.

Last year's Little National drew more than 300 contestants, and the CSU Livestock Club, sponsors of the event, expect more this season.

The show will end Saturday night with the showmanship eliminations and selection of the various division and grand champions.

Farm Bureau to Hold 45th Annual Convention

Over 500 farmers and ranchers from nearly every corner of Colorado are expected in Denver Nov. 17-20 to take part in the 45th annual convention of the Colorado Farm Bureau.

The convention for the largest general farm organization in Colorado features some changes from the usual, retains some of the tradition and features outstanding speakers along with the usual business of the convention.

Gov. John A. Love, Senator Gordon Allott, and Donald Brotzman, Colorado's freshman representative in Congress are all scheduled to address the convention Nov. 19.

The convention also will have Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, to deliver the annual banquet address Nov. 19. Shuman, a livestock and grain farmer from Illinois, has presided over Federation since 1954.

Farm Bureau's legislative director in Washington, D. C. John C. Lynn, will address the convention Nov. 18. Also speaking on that date will be C. L. Kay, vice president for Public Services at Lubbock Christian College, Lubbock, Tex., and Mrs. Thelma Inmon, chairman of the New Mexico Farm and Livestock Bureau women's committee.

Lynn is one of the men closest to agricultural legislation and its development in the nation. Kay is widely known thruout the western states for his writings and speeches on freedom and Americanism. He designed Farm Bureau's "Liberty vs. Oppression" series held last winter and spring. Mrs. Inmon has managed her ninety section cattle ranch in New Mexico for the past 15 years and in 1962 was chosen the Southwesterner of the Year.

The convention gets under way Nov. 17 with the annual Talk Meet and Talent Quest sponsored by the Colorado Farm Bureau women's committee. The winners of these two contests will represent Colorado in Chicago in December at the Amrican Farm Bureau convention.

The business session opens on the afternoon of Nov. 18, with the annual report of the organization's president, Lloyd Sommerville of Grand Junction. During the business session, the organization's state policy for 1964 and its recommendations to be made to the American Farm Bureau for national farm policy will be adopted.

Agriculture Uses More Water

The use of water for agriculture is expected to increase 20 per cent in the next 20 years, and for industry and non-agricultural uses 133 per cent, according to predictions by the Economic Research Service, National Milk Producers Federation.

Agriculture, says the service, and specifically irrigation, nevertheless will remain the big user.

In 1960, for example, it accounted for about 38 per cent of all water withdrawn from ground and surface sources.

Irrigated crops make up about 20 per cent of the total value of crop output, and about 90 per cent of irrigated land is in the west.

Expert Gives Hints On Cooking Turkey

If you're buying fresh turkey or a frozen one, Ted Hartung, poultry scientists at Colorado State University, has some suggestions on proper handling.

For top quality, Hartung recommends thawing the frozen bird in the refrigerator — which means you'll need to allow at least two or three days for the thawing process. Leave the plastic bag on the bird during the thawing. If you must thaw it in a hurry, place it under cold running water. Hartung cautions against thawing their frozen turkey at room temperature.

If you buy a fresh turkey, Hartung recommends you know the source so that you're assured the turkey has not been held too long. He says you should avoid storing it more than three or four days before cooking.

The ideal method to test for doneness is to use a meat thermometer and it should read 185 degrees Fahrenheit, internal tempature, when the meat is done, he says. If the thermometer is in the center of the dressing, then it should register 180 degrees Fahrenheit. Be sure the tip of the meat thermometer is not touching bone.

Put Some Grass Away Ranchers Are Advised

Nearly all our lives, we have been told to "put some away for a rainy day," says Eugene Barnes, soil conservationist for the Teller-Park Soil Conservation District.

This year many ranchers wish that they had some grass put away for a dry spell. It is in a period such as this that the advantages of moderate use or grazing on a range become apparent.

The biggest advantage is that there is something on the ground for stock to eat. True, it may be old and tough, but it sure beats rabbit-brush or Aspen leaves.

Next is the fact that the grass has a better chance for recovery after a rain comes, and that recovery is much faster. Then too, the litter on the ground holds moisture pretty close to where it falls, and gives the soil a chance to soak up more. Most of us have seen snow pile up behind grass clumps during a blow, or have found where old grass stems have formed small dams after a big rain.

Just what is moderate use? Well, take half and leave half is the best way to put it. That's half of the pounds of forage produced in a year, not half of the height of the seed stalk or leaves.

A good rule of thumb to follow is that about ¾ of the stems and leaves can be taken from ¾ of the plants. This will leave the range with good, strong plants, enough old litter to catch and hold any moisture that falls, and will keep some feed for a dry spell, too.

Water Problems Discussed at Club Meeting

"The future of the Pikes Peak region is tied up with water. Water will limit our population growth. It is the duty of all of us to learn as much as we can about water."

This was emphasized by Prof. L. T. Grose, of the Department of Geology, Colorado University at the first fall meeting of the Farmers' Luncheon Club Saturday in the Swiss Chalet restaurant.

"Not over 500 people are working in the science of ground water in the nation," Prof. Grose said. More people are needed to help with water problems, he went on.

Altho not considred so in economic statistics, he said, water should be considered as a raw material, like other raw materials.

Water costs between $10 and $20 per acre-foot.

Oil costs about $22,000 per acre-foot; milk, $100,000 per acre-foot; and whisky, about $1 million per acre-foot.

Water is the cheapest raw commodity, except air.

"We use 200 times more water than anything derived from the earth," Prof. Grose said.

He went on to describe the different types of water: surface water, the fringe zone, water tables and the saturation zone.

Ground water and surface water should be considered the same, he told his audience.

"It is ground water with which we are concerned," he said. "And rain and snow are virtually the only supplies to ground water.

"The reserves of ground water are becoming less and less.

"The state of the water tables is the $64 question," he said. "Their depth varies according to use.

The water tables are not flat, Prof. Grose wen on. They rise and fall like the contours of the earth, except that they are a little flatter.

Prof. Grose then discussed the geology of the land in the Pikes Peak region. He said that the region has the best soil for water: gravel and sand. Another good thing is that the region has shale rock a mile in depth below the sand and gravel.

Prof. Grose concluded his talk by recommending several books on water to his audience. They are:

"The Role of Ground Water in the National Water Situation," and "Outline of Ground Water Hydrology," both of which are published by the government and may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C., by sending $4.50 and 30 cents respectively.

A third book recommended by Dr. Grose was "Colorado Ground-Water Problems," published by Colorado State University, Ft. Collins, and may be obtained free.

The meeting was closed by the club president, Tony Venetucci, who announced the Nov. 23 meeting would be addressed by County Commissioner Charles E. Smith, who will talk on "Roads and Highways of the County.

The 30th annual livestock and horse show will be presented at the CSU Fieldhouse Nov. 15-16.

Farm Credit Banks Borrow From Public

"Next to the U. S. Treasury the Farm Credit Banks are the biggest borrowers in the public market," John T. Knox, fiscal agent of the banks told the Federal Land Bank of Wichita Stockholders Conference at their meeting Tuesday morning in the Broadmoor International Center.

The 12 Federal Land Banks have been serving the long-term credit needs of agriculture since 1917, he told his audience. The banks are entirely farmer-owned, with total loans outstanding in the amount of $3,200 billion.

"I want to make clear," Knox said, "that the money the Land Banks lend to the farmer on 1st mortgage is not government money. In other words, it is not money which comes from the U. S. Treasury, but it is secured thru the sale of bonds of the 12 Federal Land Banks in the public market.

"The bonds are known as Federal Land Banks bonds," he went on. "They are sold under the direction of the bank's fiscal agent, located in New York City, with the assistance of a nationwide selling group of investment dealers and banks who retail the bonds to private investors. A small commission is paid the dealer for his efforts, standing a total of $2,800 billion with all types of investors," Knox said. "Many of the largest corporations, state and local funds, pension funds, trust funds, commercial banks, savings banks and individuals own Federal Land Banks bonds.

These securities, which are actively traded in the bond market, are not guaranteed by the U. S. government. They are, however, instrumentalities of the United States.

"For the 10 months this year, the Federal Land Banks have sold $723 million of bonds to the investor," he said.

There are two other groups of banks which make up the Farm Credit System in lending farmers money, Knox told the group.

They are the 12 Federal Intermediate Credit Banks, he said, organized in 1933, which make commodity loans, capital loans, and facility loans to farmers, cooperatives thruout the country.

Last year all the Farm Credit Banks sold a total of $4,150 billion of bonds and debentures to the investor.

"Farming," Knox said in conclusion, "is big business today and requires plenty of capital."

Home Agent Outlines Tips For Gay Winter Bouquets

By Ruth Appelthun
Extension Home Agent

Summer is gone, and with it most of the fresh bright flowers. But you may still be able to preserve materials from the garden for winter bouquets, and you may find grasses, weeds and seed pods in the fields or along the roadside for home decoration.

Gather and preserve an abundance of material so that a variety of lines, shapes, textures and sizes will be available from which to choose. I suggest these different ways of preserving plant materials.

1. Drying upside down: Tie plant material in bunches and hang suspended in a dark, dry place for about two weeks.

2. Drying between newspapers: Ferns, grasses, flowers may be placed between several thicknesses of newspaper, with boards and other weights over them. The paper may need to be changed several times before moisture absorbtion is stopped. This takes several weeks.

3. Use one part borax to two parts of cornmeal (or four parts clean sand) to "save" summer flowers. Flowers should be placed flat with leaves stripped off and covered with the mixture. Let them dry for about two weeks, then shake off borax and cornmeal or sand. Since flowers dry into whatever position they are placed be sure that some are straight and some curved in order to have interestingly shaped material. (All borax can be used. It will work more rapidly but must be watched carefully)

4. Use a 50 per cent glycerine-and-water solution for leaves. Put them in the solution as soon as they are picked. It takes from two to three weeks for them to absorb as much of the solution as they can. Wipe leaves with an oiled cloth to keep them from curling.

Is a bushel of apples a bargain? Or is it better to buy only a few at a time?

The answer depends on how much cool storage space you have. A bushel of sound apples bought in the hard stage (mature but not ripe) will keep well for at least a month at 55 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit. The colder the storage temperature—down to freezing—the longer they'll keep. In commercial storage, apples are kept for several months at a storage temperature of 31-34 degrees and fairly high humidity.

If you have no cool storage space except the family refrigerator and you cannot use a large quantity within a short time, it will probably pay you to buy apples by the pound, or in "consumer-size" bags, even though they may cost a little more. Plenty of commercially stored apples should be available this winter as you need them.

Apples marketed at this time of year are usually in the hard stage suitable for storage. Their flavor and texture will improve as the fruit ripen and the starch turns to sugar.

At room temperature they will reach a desirable stage for cooking or eating within a week or 10 days. Once fully ripe, they should be kept in the refrigerator to prevent spoilage until they are used. Some apples, such as the Delicious, become mealy and lose flavor if allowed to ripen too much.

Care for Trees Urged During Winter Season

Park and Recreation Department officials are concerned about trees and their livelihood during the drowth period and thruout the winter.

Stuart Richter, director Parks and Recreation, prevailed upon Fred P. McKown, departmental forestry consultant, for information related to tree care.

"The fall season is upon us and it is most timely that we now give some thought and time to one of our most valuable assets, namely, the shade tree. It is valuable not only from an aesthetic but from an intrinsic standpoint.

"Many of the newcomers to the region do not realize that our shade trees, not the evergreens, are not the product of nature, but rather that of human hands. In the beginning, Colorado Springs was a barren territory, just like the plains to the east of us.

"This is not the tree planting season, and we are not urging our citizens to plant deciduous trees at this time. What we are asking people to do is to see that the trees already planted are properly watered so that they may go thru the winter in good condition.

"You will notice that the ash and hackberry trees already have dropped their leaves, while the leaves are still clinging to the branches of the maples, elms and lindens, but even so, you will notice that their leaves are beginning to be a little off-color, which means that they are no longer functioning as the "chemical laboratories," so to speak, of the trees. For this reason, the trees have discontinued making new growth which might be damaged by an early freeze, therefore the tree is in a different condition today from what it was four weeks ago, at which time exsive watering might have been detrimental.

"Summing up, — now that the trees have entered the dormat stage, we strongly urge every householder to dig a saucer around each tree to hold the water, thus avoiding the loss of water flowing into the gutters, which would be the case without the construction of the saucer.

"We suggest not only that you fill this saucer a few times with water, but also that you press the nozzle of the hose into the ground some two or three feet from the trunk of the tree and hold it there a few minutes until the water has penetrated the soil a foot or two, thus providing an underground watering of the tree. Do this in two or three locations arond the tree.

"This last suggestion is especially necessary in cases where trees have been neglected in regard to watering and are in danger of becoming impoverished, thereby inviting an infestation of insects.

"If you will deep water at this time, as suggested above, and repeat the surface watering of trees every month or two, the time interval depending upon the frequency or infrequency of snows, we believe your trees will come thru the winter in fair condition," McKown said.

Gov. John A. Love, Senator Gordon Allott, and Donald Brotzman, Colorado's freshman representative in Congress are all scheduled to address the convention Nov. 19.

The convention also will have Charles B. Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, to deliver the annual banquet address Nov. 19. Shuman, a livestock and grain farmer from Illinois, has presided over Federation since 1954.

Farm Bureau's legislative director in Washington, D. C. John C. Lynn, will address the convention Nov. 18. Also speaking on that date will be C. L. Kay, vice president for Public Services at Lubbock Christian College, Lubbock, Tex., and Mrs. Thelma Inmon, chairman of the New Mexico Farm and Livestock Bureau women's committee.

Lynn is one of the men closest to agricultural legislation and its development in the nation. Kay is widely known thruout the western states for his writings and speeches on freedom and Americanism. He designed Farm Bureau's "Liberty vs. Oppression" series held last winter and spring. Mrs. Inmon has managed her ninety section cattle ranch in New Mexico for the past 15 years and in 1962 was chosen the Southwesterner of the Year.

The convention gets under way Nov. 17 with the annual Talk Meet and Talent Quest sponsored by the Colorado Farm Bureau women's committee. The winners of these two contests will represent Colorado in Chicago in December at the Amrican Farm Bureau convention.

The business session opens on the afternoon of Nov. 18, with the annual report of the organization's president, Lloyd Sommerville of Grand Junction. During the business session, the organization's state policy for 1964 and its recommendations to be made to the American Farm Bureau for national farm policy will be adopted.

Agriculture Uses More Water

The use of water for agriculture is expected to increase 20 per cent in the next 20 years, and for industry and non-agricultural uses 133 per cent, according to predictions by the Economic Research Service, National Milk Producers Federation.

Agriculture, says the service, and specifically irrigation, nevertheless will remain the big user.

In 1960, for example, it accounted for about 38 per cent of all water withdrawn from ground and surface sources.

Irrigated crops make up about 20 per cent of the total value of crop output, and about 90 per cent of irrigated land is in the west.

Expert Gives Hints On Cooking Turkey

If you're buying fresh turkey or a frozen one, Ted Hartung, poultry scientists at Colorado State University, has some suggestions on proper handling.

For top quality, Hartung recommends thawing the frozen bird in the refrigerator — which means you'll need to allow at least two or three days for the thawing process. Leave the plastic bag on the bird during the thawing. If you must thaw it in a hurry, place it under cold running water. Hartung cautions against thawing their frozen turkey at room temperature.

If you buy a fresh turkey, Hartung recommends you know the source so that you're assured the turkey has not been held too long. He says you should avoid storing it more than three or four days before cooking.

The ideal method to test for doneness is to use a meat thermometer and it should read 185 degrees Fahrenheit, internal tempature, when the meat is done, he says. If the thermometer is in the center of the dressing, then it should register 180 degrees Fahrenheit. Be sure the tip of the meat thermometer is not touching bone.

Put Some Grass Away Ranchers Are Advised

Nearly all our lives, we have been told to "put some away for a rainy day," says Eugene Barnes, soil conservationist for the Teller-Park Soil Conservation District.

This year many ranchers wish that they had some grass put away for a dry spell. It is in a period such as this that the advantages of moderate use or grazing on a range become apparent.

The biggest advantage is that there is something on the ground for stock to eat. True, it may be old and tough, but it sure beats rabbit-brush or Aspen leaves.

Next is the fact that the grass has a better chance for recovery after a rain comes, and that recovery is much faster. Then too, the litter on the ground holds moisture pretty close to where it falls, and gives the soil a chance to soak up more. Most of us have seen snow pile up behind grass clumps during a blow, or have found where old grass stems have formed small dams after a big rain.

Just what is moderate use? Well, take half and leave half is the best way to put it. That's half of the pounds of forage produced in a year, not half of the height of the seed stalk or leaves.

A good rule of thumb to follow is that about ¾ of the stems and leaves can be taken from ¾ of the plants. This will leave the range with good, strong plants, enough old litter to catch and hold any moisture that falls, and will keep some feed for a dry spell, too.

Water Problems Discussed at Club Meeting

"The future of the Pikes Peak region is tied up with water. Water will limit our population growth. It is the duty of all of us to learn as much as we can about water."

This was emphasized by Prof. L. T. Grose, of the Department of Geology, Colorado University at the first fall meeting of the Farmers' Luncheon Club Saturday in the Swiss Chalet restaurant.

"Not over 500 people are working in the science of ground water in the nation," Prof. Grose said. More people are needed to help with water problems, he went on.

Altho not considred so in economic statistics, he said, water should be considered as a raw material, like other raw materials.

Water costs between $10 and $20 per acre-foot.

Oil costs about $22,000 per acre-foot; milk, $100,000 per acre-foot; and whisky, about $1 million per acre-foot.

Water is the cheapest raw commodity, except air.

"We use 200 times more water than anything derived from the earth," Prof. Grose said.

He went on to describe the different types of water: surface water, the fringe zone, water tables and the saturation zone.

Ground water and surface water should be considered the same, he told his audience.

"It is ground water with which we are concerned," he said. "And rain and snow are virtually the only supplies to ground water.

"The reserves of ground water are becoming less and less.

"The state of the water tables is the $64 question," he said. "Their depth varies according to use.

"The measurement of water in wells — its rise and fall — can tell the status of the water tables."

The water tables are not flat, Prof. Grose wen on. They rise and fall like the contours of the earth, except that they are a little flatter.

Prof. Grose then discussed the geology of the land in the Pikes Peak region. He said that the region has the best soil for water: gravel and sand. Another good thing is that the region has shale rock a mile in depth below the sand and gravel.

Prof. Grose concluded his talk by recommending several books on water to his audience. They are:

"The Role of Ground Water in the National Water Situation," and "Outline of Ground Water Hydrology," both of which are published by the government and may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C., by sending $4.50 and 30 cents respectively.

A third book recommended by Dr. Grose was "Colorado Ground-Water Problems," published by Colorado State University, Ft. Collins, and may be obtained free.

The meeting was closed by the club president, Tony Venetucci, who announced the Nov. 23 meeting would be addressed by County Commissioner Charles E. Smith, who will talk on "Roads and Highways of the County.

TO DIRECT HORSE JUDGING COMPETITION — Robert H. Day, left, of 2501 W. Mulberry St., Ft. Collins, and Miss Betty Lou Wulff, Calhan, will direct the horse judging competition at Colorado State University's Little National Western Stock Show. Day, a senior in animal production, is superintendent of the horse division judging and Miss Wulff, junior in physical education, is his assistant. The 30th annual livestock and horse show will be presented at the CSU Fieldhouse Nov. 15-16.

Farm Credit Banks Borrow From Public

"Next to the U. S. Treasury the Farm Credit Banks are the biggest borrowers in the public market," John T. Knox, fiscal agent of the banks told the Federal Land Bank of Wichita Stockholders Conference at their meeting Tuesday morning in the Broadmoor International Center.

The 12 Federal Land Banks have been serving the long-term credit needs of agriculture since 1917, he told his audience. The banks are entirely farmer-owned, with total loans outstanding in the amount of $3,200 billion.

"I want to make clear," Knox said, "that the money the Land Banks lend to the farmer on 1st mortgage is not government money. In other words, it is not money which comes from the U. S. Treasury, but it is secured thru the sale of bonds of the 12 Federal Land Banks in the public market.

"The bonds are known as Federal Land Banks bonds," he went on. "They are sold under the direction of the bank's fiscal agent, located in New York City, with the assistance of a nationwide selling group of investment dealers and banks who retail the bonds to private investors. A small commission is paid the dealer for his efforts, standing a total of $2.800 billion with all types of investors," Knox said. "Many of the largest corporations, state and local funds, pension funds, trust funds, commercial banks, savings banks and individuals own Federal Land Banks bonds.

These securities, which are actively traded in the bond market, are not guaranteed by the U. S. government. They are, however, instrumentalities of the United States.

"For the 10 months this year, the Federal Land Banks have sold $723 million of bonds to the investor," he said.

There are two other groups of banks which make up the Farm Credit System in lending farmers money, Knox told the group.

They are the 12 Federal Intermediate Credit Banks, he said, organized in 1933, which make commodity loans, capital loans, and facility loans to farmers, cooperatives thruout the country.

Last year all the Farm Credit Banks sold a total of $4.150 billion of bonds and debentures to the investor.

"Farming," Knox said in conclusion, "is big business today and requires plenty of capital."

Ancient Method Used To Decide Election

NICHOLASVILLE, Ky. (AP) —The Jessamine County Election Commission resorted to an ancient method to decide the winner in the 5th District magistrate's race.

Republican John D. Fain and Democratic incumbent Nellie Stinnett wound up in a tie in last week's election with 244 votes each.

At an election commission meeting Tuesday, three flips of a coin determined the election outcome. Fain called tails on the third flip and won.

Ancient Method Used To Decide Election

NICHOLASVILLE, Ky. (AP) —The Jessamine County Election Commission resorted to an ancient method to decide the winner in the 5th District magistrate's race.

Republican John D. Fain and Democratic incumbent Nellie Stinnett wound up in a tie in last week's election with 244 votes each.

At an election commission meeting Tuesday, three flips of a coin determined the election outcome. Fain called tails on the third flip and won.

Green Thumb Derby Lists More Men Than Women

by Earl Aronson
AP News Feature Writer

A political type of survey indicates that the man of the house is now leading in the green thumb derby.

This particular poll shows the male gardener ahead of the female 6 to 5, or wielding 55 per cent of the hoes, rakes or whatever they use to maintain this alleged superiority. Only five years ago, the ladies were plowing ahead.

Edward Durell, president of a big tool manufacturing company (Union), who estimates that there is a $4 billion gardening market, figures there are 33 million male gardeners to 27 million women, many of them toiling in or tilling the same soil side by side.

It isn't that the women gardeners have been discouraged by callouses, Durell says. It's just that the ranks of the male gardeners have increased more rapidly.

Durell has an explanation for the change. He says men are increasingly aware that a well-kept garden adds value to property, that men have more leisure time these days, more women are holding jobs outside the home, and the therapeutic value is luring more male senior citizens to the back yard.

He also notes gratuitously that 41 per cent of American husbands are doing most of the family shopping now, compared with 21 per cent five years ago. He doesn't pin this down but we expect some of the same factors would fit.

Even though more men garden than women, the diplomatic Durell tactfully reveals that "the wives often are the inspiring force behind their husbands' interest in green thumbery" in the field of flowers for beauty and vegetables for budget economy.

And why do the ladies enjoy gardening, in addition to the home-beautification aspect?

They find it relieves the monotony of housework and improves their health and figures.

The plowing pollster reports that nearly seven out of eight gardeners plant flowers and about half grow vegetables; one in four prefers to work with vines and shrubs, one in eight glories in lawn-making and one in 10 fancies trees above all.

The data-doting Durell also notes that most of the gardeners prefer planting seeds with bulbs, seedlings, cuttings and matured plants following in that order of popularity.

Interpreted, this means to him that the gardener generally would rather forsake a head start in development of the plants at the outset and strive for simplicity in gardening at the least possible cost. Our own feeling is that starting with seeds gives the gardener a greater feeling of accomplishment.

You, therefore, are among the 30 million families growing flowers and 14 million raising vegetables in the U.S.A.

Toothpaste Tube Had Hacksaw Blades

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich. (AP)—Authorities say a county jail prisoner had more than brushing his teeth in mind when he received a tube of toothpaste from his sister.

A turnkey spotted Favis Martin, 26, of Warren, Mich., taking the toothpaste from his sister, Avalon Elder, 23, of nearby Madison Heights, Saturday. The tube was checked and found to contain two small hacksaw blades.

Mrs. Elder was arrested Monday and joined her brother in jail on a charge of aiding and abetting a jail break. He is awaiting trial on a bad check charge.

Traffic Policeman Lands Behind Bars

LOCUST GROVE, Ga. (AP)—A new policeman's enthusiasm for enforcing traffic laws landed him behind bars today.

The man the folks of his town of 400 knew as John Paul—an officer who made more than 100 arrests in a month. The many arrests led to an investigation of Paul's background.

Sheriff Hiram Cook of Henry County said Tuesday that Paul turned out to be John Nick Pavlakos, 21, of Decatur, who was fined $300 for impersonating an officer in Gwinnett County last year.

"I just wanted to be a policeman and I knew if I gave my right name I wouldn't get the job," the sheriff quoted Pavlakos as saying.

Latest figures show life expectancy for a man in Sweden is 71.69 years, compared with 66.5 years in America. A Swedish woman can be expected to live 75.24 years, compared with 73 years for an American woman.

Crash Leaves 34 Orphans in Swiss Village

By GEOFFREY ATKINS

HUMLIKON, Switzerland (AP)—The pretty little girl with blonde pigtails clutched her doll and smiled a simple smile of childlike faith. "My mummy and daddy are in heaven," she said.

Susanna Steiger is just 6 years old. She is one of 34 orphans in this tiny farming village of 158 people.

Their parents were members of a happy, excited group of 43 villagers who set off on an excursion flight to Geneva. A few minutes after taking off from Zurich airport their Swissair Caravelle jetliner caught fire and plunged to earth. All 82 on board died.

Nineteen married couples from Humlikon were on he plane. The village lost its mayor and all five members of the village council.

The first thought of the surviving villagers was for the children. Thirty-four under the age of 20 were suddenly orphans. Thirty were under 16 years old. Five more young children lost one parent.

Two months after the disaster, the little village with its neat farmhouses nestled between gently rolling hills counts up the results.

Only two orphans, both witho relatives in Humlikon, have left to be cared for elsewhere. Despite hundreds of adoption offers from all over the world, many from rich families, the children wanted to stay in their home village. Many are being cared for by grandparents or relatives.

Volunteers from neighboring villages and towns rallied round to help gather the harvest.

A former Humlikon farmer jumped on his tractor as soon as he heard news of the disaster and drove 60 miles to the stricken village.

He has been here ever since. His tractor is a familiar sight as he moves from farm to farm helping wherever he can, working by moonlight if he is needed.

The Steigers were the family worst hit by the crash. Five children 6 to 15, were orphaned. Under the guidance of their 74-year-old grandmother, Lina Steiger, they have helped reap the harvest sown by their dead parents.

"It's a hard time without my son and daughter-in-law," said grandmother Steiger. "But the way the children have rallied round we'll get the harvest in."

Despite its appalling loss, Humlikon is a village alive with hope, for it has become a village of the young. More than one quarter of the population is under 21.

Their inborn love of the land and their youthful optimism have overcome the first shattering effects of the catastrophe.

Joseph Zindel the village registrar whose son died in the crash, watched a group of teen-age boys hauling sacks of potatoes to a car.

"The young are strong. We will survive," he said quietly.

Today in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the news from Washington:

ESTES REPORT: Senate investigators are reportedly drafting a report on the Billie Sol Estes case which features stinging criticism of get-rich-quick schemes engineered by the Texas promoter.

Estes, who built a fortune on the proceeds of farm aid contracts with the Agriculture Department, refused to answer questions about the deals when he went before the Senate Investigations subcommittee Tuesday as its last scheduled witness.

The subcommittee announced its next act in the long and sometimes hotly controversial probe will be to seek agreement among its members on a report of findings. Well-placed sources predicted a split verdict, with the majority sharply critical but stopping short of any finding that political influence was involved.

TAX CUT: Sen. Abraham Ribicoff says the Kennedy administration should be trying to sell its $11-billion tax cut bill as an economic stimulant, instead of as a cure for hard core unemployment.

"Tax rates are too high," said the Connecticut Democrat. "They throttle incentive. They should be adjusted to encourage industry to more initiative. But to say that a tax cut will solve all the problems of unemployment just won't do it."

Ribicoff, formerly welfare secretary in President Kennedy's Cabinet, commented in an interview Tuesday night.

INSCRIPTION: Two Southern congressmen are pressing a bill to put the inscription "In God We Trust" above the bench of the Supreme Court—in spite of Chief Justice Earl Warren's opposition.

Rep. Robert T. Ashmore, D-S.C., author of the bill, told the House Tuesday that Warren had written the architect of the Capitol that the original decor of the high court's chamber should not be changed, in the interests of "beauty and symmetry."

The tone of Warren's letter, Rep. Ashmore said, "is most indicative that the Supreme Court would be made painfully aware of the fact that there is an Authority higher than that of the Supreme Court of these United States."

by Earl Aronson
AP News Feature Writer

A political type of survey indicates that the man of the house is now leading in the green thumb derby.

This particular poll shows the male gardener ahead of the female 6 to 5, or wielding 55 per cent of the hoes, rakes or whatever they use to maintain this alleged superiority. Only five years ago, the ladies were plowing ahead.

Edward Durell, president of a big tool manufacturing company (Union), who estimates that there is a $4 billion gardening market, figures there are 33 million male gardeners to 27 million women, many of them toiling in or tilling the same soil side by side.
